CALENDARS.

Instructions to Editors.

The Master of the Rolls desires to call the attention of the Editors of Calendars to the following considerations, with a view to secure uniformity of plan in the important works on which they are engaged :—

He is anxious to extend, as far as is consistent with proper economy and despatch, the utility of the Calendars of State Papers now publishing under his control : 1st. As the most efficient means of making the national archives accessible to all who are interested in historical inquiries ; 2nd. As the best justification of the liberality and munificence of the Government in throwing open these papers to the public, and providing proper catalogues of their contents at the national expense.

The greater number of the readers who will consult and value these works can have little or no opportunity of visiting the Public Record Office, in which these papers are deposited. The means for consulting the originals must necessarily be limited when readers live at a distance from the metropolis ; still more if they are residents of Scotland, Ireland, distant colonies, or foreign states. Even when such an opportunity does exist, the difficulty of mastering the original hands in which these papers are written will deter many readers from consulting them. Above all, their great variety and number must present formidable obstacles to literary inquirers, however able, sanguine, and energetic, when the information contained in them is not made accessible by satisfactory Calendars.

The Master of the Rolls considers that, without superseding the necessity of consulting the originals, every Editor ought to frame his Calendar in such a manner that it shall present, in as condensed a form as possible, a correct index of the contents of the papers described in it. He considers that the entries should be so minute as to enable the reader to discover not only the general contents of the originals, but also what they do not contain. If the information be not sufficiently precise, if facts and names be omitted or concealed under a vague and general description, the reader will be often misled, he will assume that where the abstracts are silent as to information to be found in the documents, such information does not exist ; or, he will have to examine every original in detail, and thus one great purpose will have been lost for which these Calendars have been compiled.

As the documents are various, the Master of the Rolls considers that they will demand a corresponding mode of treatment. The following rules are to be observed :—

1st. All formal and official documents, such as letters of credence, warrants, grants, and the like, should be described as briefly as possible.

2nd. Letters and documents referring to one subject only should be catalogued as briefly as is consistent with correctness. But when they contain miscellaneous news, such a description should be given as will enable a reader to form an adequate notion of the variety of their contents..

3rd. Wherever a letter or paper is especially difficult to decipher, or the allusions more than ordinarily obscure, it will be advisable for the Editor to adhere, as closely as is consistent with brevity, to the text of the document. He is to do the same when it contains secret or very rare information.

4th. Where the Editor has deciphered letters in cipher, the decipher may be printed at full length. But when a contemporary or authorised decipher exists it will be sufficient to treat the cipher as an ordinary document.

5th. Striking peculiarities of expression, proverbs, manners, &c. are to be noticed.

6th. Original dates are to be given at the close of each entry, that the reader may know the exact evidence by which the marginal dates are determined.

7th. Where letters are endorsed by the receivers and the date of their delivery specified, these endorsements are to be recorded.

8th. The number of written pages of each document is to be specified, as a security for its integrity, and that readers may know what proportion the abstract bears to the original.

9th. The language of every document is to be specified. If, however, the greater part of the collection be in English, it will be sufficient to denote those only which are in a different tongue.

10th. Where documents have been printed, a reference should be given to the publication.

11th. Each series to be chronological.

12th. The Prefaces of Editors, in explanation of documents in the volume are not to exceed fifty pages, unless the written permission of the Master of the Rolls to the contrary be obtained.

THE period embraced in the present volume of Calendar, though only eight months, from July 1653 to February 1654, is one of great importance, including almost the whole period of the Convention Parliament, its resignation, and the assumption of power by Cromwell as Lord Protector.

The country was in eager expectation of what would be done by the new house of representatives, commonly known as the "Praise God Barebones Parliament;" the one great anxiety being that they should not tread in the steps of those who went before them (p. 39). They opened their proceedings by a declaration of their good intentions for the liberties of the people, which reads more like a pulpit discourse than an official paper (p. 21), but of Parliamentary transactions the State Papers contain few notices, being chiefly confined to those of the Council of State.

This was continued precisely as before, the members being severally approved on July 9th and 14th by the new Parliament (pp. 16, 25), and they remained in office till its legal expiration at the end of six months in October 1653.

Shortly before this time it passed several regulations, probably intended to influence its successors; as that all Council orders be entered into a fair book, to be read at the next sitting; that no warrants be signed till read and approved in Council; that petitions be read by any three or more members who first come in, and those unfit for Council laid aside; that all letters to Council be opened by the President and read aloud; and that the salaries of all the servants of Council, including Wm. Jessop, lately appointed assistant secretary, be reported on and settled (pp. 171, 201, 205).

The eighth and last Council of State was elected on 1 November 1653. It was appointed only for six months, but its sittings terminated in less than two, on the breaking up of the Parliament.

Of Cromwell's influence in the State during the sittings of this Parliament, we hear little. The authors of a printed paper, entitled "A charge of high treason exhibited against Oliver Cromwell, for several treasons by him committed," were ordered to be searched for and severely prosecuted (pp. 151, 156, 197). He was requested to report to Parliament the opinion of Council concerning the articles of the surrender of Galloway, injudiciously granted by Sir Chas. Coote, and therefore only partially confirmed (pp. 254-5). Also their opinion in favour of payment to the widow of Major John Burton of money by him advanced towards the reducing of North Wales (p. 257). His last recorded act as Lord General Cromwell was to write to Col. Whichcot, governor of Windsor, to raise an extra company of 100 soldiers for the castle. This bears date Dec. 10th 1653 (p. 296).

On Dec. 11th, a letter written from Bruges reports, as news from England, that "Sir Andrew Cogan's letter says that the soldiers petition hard for a monarchy, and it is thought Cromwell will ere long make himself a King" (p. 297).

A few days later comes the proclamation of his appointment to the Protectorship, which is to be published by the sheriffs in the several counties, and in London and Westminster, with sound of trumpet, in the most solemn manner possible, the officers of the College of Arms attending "in an equipage suitable to such a solemnity," and the Lord Mayor and aldermen of London were also required to be present (pp. 297-9).

The title of Council of State was now dropped, and that of the Council, or the Lord Protector's Council, was assumed, to be exchanged a year or two later for that of Privy Council. The first list given of the members comes through a copy in the handwriting of Sir Edw. Nicholas, secretary to Charles II., and consists of 13 persons only, 11 of whom were members of the former Council; and the new names were Majors General Lambert and Skippon. To these Cols. Mackworth and Montague were afterwards added. From the tables of attendance given at the close of this preface, it will appear that Cromwell was not often personally present in Council, but as all orders of any moment required his approval for validity, unless he were present at their passing, they were sometimes carried to him at once, and returned approved, though occasionally with some variation; but more frequently they were presented in batches. The approval is noted in the calendar at the close of each order, to avoid repetition.

The first acts of Council were orders for information to foreign ministers of the change of government, and for alterations in the forms of writs, patents, and other legal records (pp. 299, 301, 311). The next was to secure for the Protector such portions as still remained unsold of the royal parks and domains, and the repurchase of part of those which had been sold, especially Hampton Court, Greenwich House, Windsor and Bushey Parks, &c. (pp. 299, 300, 354-6, 396-71, 408-9, 419).

Committees were also appointed to settle a revenue for his household, to examine the bills for furnishing his kitchen, and to bespeak from Sir Thos. Vyner, Lord Mayor of London, two services of plate for the use of the Protector and his lady.

An instrument entitled the "Government of the Commonwealth" was also to be speedily prepared by Thurloe; it formed the basis of the Protectoral rule, and as such was formally enrolled in Chancery (pp. 301, 309, 314, 349, 413). A copy of this instrument, either mutilated, or unduly printed without license, was seized in the house of Rob. Wood, the printer, and he and the persons employed about it were taken into custody (pp. 309, 447).

Council was appointed to sit each day, except Saturday, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., with a penalty of 2s. 6d. fine to the poor for non-attendance without reasonable excuse allowed by the President; on Friday it was to sit both morning and afternoon, but on Saturday not at all without special order from the Protector (p. 315).

This rule, combined with the effect of personal importance given by paucity of numbers, told so well upon the attendance of the members, who were only 14 exclusive of the Protector, that from 16 December to the end of February the average was 9.98, whereas in the previous November and early part of December, out of 32 members the average attendance had only been 13.9; but as the quorum was seven, this average answered all practical purposes (p. 28).

The expenses of the under clerks and officers are given in detail (pp. 386-7), and amount to the yearly sum of 3,835*l.* 1*s.* 8*d.* This does not include the salaries of Thurloe, the secretary, who received 800*l.* a year, nor of Jessop, assistant secretary, at 1*l.* daily, nor of John Milton, who received 15*s.* 10½*d.* a day, or 288*l.* 18*s.* 6*d.* a year, but it does include that of Phil. Meadows, named Latin secretary, at 200*l.* a year.

In one important point the Protectoral government showed a liberality of feeling that had not characterised its predecessors. No oath of fidelity was required from civil or military officers, there being "a tenderness of multiplying promissory oaths, further than is necessary for public safety" (pp. 314, 316, 358, 362, 364).

It was not to be expected, however, that the sudden return to a government by one man, invested with almost despotic powers, would be tolerated without opposition by those who had shed their blood in the cause of freedom. A bold and firm, though respectful remonstrance was issued by several army officers, pointing out how greatly the powers granted to the Protector were in excess of those which they had wrested from the late King. Yet no notice seems to have been taken of their proceeding except by a two days' imprisonment of one of the subscribers (pp. 302-4). A severer penalty awaited the 5th monarchy men, who inveighed in the strongest terms against the present state of things in a meeting at Christ Church, Blackfriars (pp. 304-8). Their discourses being reported at great length by a spy, two of their preachers, Chris. Feake, or Freake, and Vavasour Powell, were at once apprehended and taken into custody by the sergeant-at-arms (p. 308). Witnesses were examined, and a report was ordered (pp. 353, 368, 449). What became of Powell does not appear, but Feake and John Simpson, the latter taken up seemingly on the same ground, were committed to Windsor Castle, "in order to the preservation of the peace of this nation" (p. 371), and the churchwardens at Blackfriars were warned that the usual Monday meeting was to be discontinued (p. 309).

A similar meeting was held at Allhallows, to which the spy above alluded to also repaired. He reports it as a dull assembly, without Feake and Simpson, but adds that the happiness of the two sufferers in prison was magnified, and their deliverance and the confusion of their enemies were prayed for. The spy urges the dissolution of that meeting also, as lowering the Protector's reputation among foreigners, and leading to the expectation of change "though it is but a confluence of silly wretches" (p. 393).

On the other side of the question we find a curious allegorical narrative, by an unknown hand, describing the late political parties under the symbol of a fleet of ships as Reformation, Dissension, Covenant, Turnsail, &c., whose movements are ingeniously detailed, till a council was held on board the Dissension, and the ship G. O. C. (General Oliver Cromwell) abandoned, as being too heavy, for the Protector, which was "a strong ship all built of the heart of oak" (pp. 322-4).

The notices of the royalist party are neither many nor important. In July 1653 it was reported that 16 officers of quality, including Colonel Legge and Major Thomas, had landed at Rye, and orders were issued for prevention of suspicious meetings, for care in admitting strangers to forts or castles, and for removal 20 miles from London and Westminster of persons deemed prejudicial to public safety (pp. 3, 16).

In August a Committee of Council was appointed to examine persons supposed to be dangerous, with power to commit them until the pleasure of Council should be known (p. 66). In September Major-Gen. Desborow was ordered to have a special eye upon those who rode armed or held meetings in the western parts (p. 136). A great meeting of 10,000 people took place in Warwickshire, on the border of Northamptonshire, on pretence of bear baiting, and this was considered dangerous to the peace, and Major-Gen. Boteler was ordered to prevent such gatherings by force (p. 171).

In December the justices of peace for Lancashire and Cumberland were warned of an intention of disaffected persons to land in Lancashire, and march thence into the Highlands of Scotland, and were ordered to take all possible care to prevent it, and to intercept the persons in question (p. 291).

At sea the royalists were very active, and much damage was done to English trade by privateers, chiefly from Brest, acting under letters of marque from Charles II., James Duke of York, titular Lord Admiral, or Prince Rupert, and seizing trading vessels belonging to the so-called traitors of England, which were deemed lawful prize, and found a ready sale in French ports (pp. 139, 283, 319, 408, 568, 570, &c.).

It was reported that the Emperor and Princes of Germany had declared their resolution to assist the exiled King with men and money (p. 242). Also that Holland would lend him 80 men-of-war for an immediate invasion (p. 295). That the King was paying court to the German Princes appears by a long letter from Sir Edward Walker, Garter-king-at-arms, on the subject of a mission on which he was sent (the Earl of Rochester declining it), to invest the Elector of Brandenburg with the Order of the Garter (pp. 394-6).

Of Charles personally, the only notice is a record of a sitting of his Privy Council at Paris,  $\frac{3}{13}$  Jan. 1654, at which he was present, with his mother and two brothers, the Lord Keeper (Sir Edw. Herbert), Lord Chamberlain (Lord Percy), Lord Inchiquin, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland (Marquis of Ormond), Lord Jermyn, and (Sir Edward Hyde) Chancellor of the Exchequer. Sir Rich. Grenville had accused the said Chancellor of paying a visit to England, conferring privately with Cromwell, and receiving a pension from him as intelligencer. After careful investigation, the charge was declared unfounded and libellous, and Grenville was forbidden the royal presence\* (pp. 359, 360).

The only papers bearing on foreign policy worthy of notice in the present volume relate to Holland and Sweden. Ambassadors to negotiate a peace with the Dutch had reached England in July (p. 42), but the Government treated sword in hand, and asked conditions so hard that a letter from the Hague reports that "the loss of another fleet could not render them in a worse condition than England looks upon them now to be," therefore they ventured the engagement of July 29 and 31, and were again defeated (pp. 67-70). Still the treaty made so little progress that Gen. Monk urges in November the speedy fitting out of the great ships, to be ready for the spring, because unless a speedy peace can be ensured, the Dutch might get their summer fleet ready first "and block us up in our harbours instead of our blocking them" (p. 274).

The advent of Cromwell to the Protectorship, by lessening the hopes of the royalists in Holland, seemed likely to render the negotiations more successful (p. 302), but a letter of Jan. 6, 1654, speaks with exultation of the treaty as broken off, the proposed terms being thought by the writer too advantageous to the enemy (p. 350). The fact was that the deputies, Lords Beverning and Nieuport, had departed home, but only to carry proposals for the States General, and Beverning returned in a few days with their reply, landing at Harwich on Jan. 24th (p. 367).

On Feb. 4th Generals Blake and Penn express their regret that the treaty "has been delayed, as delay portends "no great hopes of agreement," and quickens their desires to have the fleet ready for service (p. 388). A few days later, the post from England to Amsterdam brought tidings that "the English will have no peace with us," and on Feb. 20th, Vice-Admiral Lawson writes that he hears the conclusion of a peace with the Dutch is very dubious (p. 578). In this position of uncertainty the present volume leaves the case.

With Sweden the Commonwealth desired to enter into a closer alliance, which would strengthen her against the Dutch, and also against the royalist party, one of whose cherished hopes was a marriage between Charles II. and Queen Christina of Sweden. An English privateer had seized upon a ship supposed to be Dutch, but which contained as part of her lading "a pair of harpsicalls, lutes, "and other instruments, music books, an image of two "boys wrestling, a cabinet of strong waters, a bag of "balloting balls, and two boxes of washing balls," all for the personal use of the Queen, and these, which had been declared prize goods, were demanded on her behalf by her ambassador, Lord Lagerfeldt, and granted (pp. 199, 442, 445).

Numerous notices occur of conferences with this ambassador, to whom a State supper was given before his return home in October (p. 207, and see Index), and an ambassador was ordered by Parliament to be sent from England to Sweden "the Queen of Sweden being favourably inclined "to the Commonwealth" (p. 146). The late Parliament had proposed a similar embassy, and had selected Viscount Lisle, to whom the office was again offered, but he declined it on the ground of ill health, and Bulstrode Whitelock, one of the Commissioners of the Great Seal, was chosen (pp. 146-7). Great pains and expense were bestowed upon his equipage. Travelling carriages, coach harness and liveries, horses, rich bedding and furniture, plate, table linen, hangings, carpets, tapestry, &c. were provided at the State's expense (pp. 164, 171, 437, 439, 456).

His allowance was to be 6,000*l.* for the first six months, 3,000*l.* to be paid at once, 1,000*l.* on Oct. 12th, 1,000*l.* on Jan. 1st, and 1,000*l.* on Feb. 4th, 1654, and 600*l.* a month afterwards, if he remained longer (pp. 164, 223, 454, 457, 458).

He made, in addition, a charge of 1,500*l.* for extras for his journey, about which some demur was raised, and a committee appointed to consider it, but it was allowed on their report, and ordered to be paid from Council's contingencies (pp. 381, 390).

Among his attendants were two chaplains, who had been selected by Viscount Lisle, John Dury and Ingelo, and he was allowed a third if he wished it, 100*l.* being granted to each for expenses. He accordingly chose Dr. De la Marsh (pp. 164, 171, 195). Dr. Dan. Whistler was sent to attend him as physician, and 200*l.* was allowed for him (pp. 184, 278). The managers of secret intelligence were ordered to acquaint the ambassador from time to time with what they judged fit for his knowledge (p. 256).

Suitable vessels, four in number, were selected for the transport of himself, retinue, and horses (pp. 496, 505, 509), and on Nov. 6th he sailed from the Hope in the Phoenix, reached Gottenburg on the 15th, where he was honourably received by the Governor and magistrates, and on the 30th began his journey towards Stockholm (p. 346). Once arrived at his destination, his negotiations belong to the Foreign State Papers.

Though in particular cases expenditure was lavish, the want of money embarrassed every department of Government. Thos. Fauconberg, receiver general of the revenue, reports arrears of salary due on warrants signed by the Revenue Committee to the great legal officers and judges, the lieutenant and warders of the Tower, the agents employed in foreign parts, and the officers of the Court of Wards, and grants to the late King's servants, amounting in all to 63,716*l.* 17*s.* 3*d.*, besides numerous unpaid augmentations due to ministers (pp. 33-4). An order was issued to pay to the most necessitous of the King's servants half the sums due to them, which amounted to 5,149*l.* 12*s.* 3*d.* (p. 35). Out of five annuities due to persons in great want, amounting to 900*l.* yearly, the arrears came to 7,689*l.*, or more than eight years' value (p. 135).

Major-Gen. Harrison was requested to move Parliament to appoint a committee to receive propositions for raising money to defray public charges (p. 59), and Col. Sydenham to move for 10,000*l.* for Council's contingencies, pressing affairs requiring a speedy advance of money (p. 173). A special joint meeting was summoned of the Army Committee, Irish and Scotch Committee, and a Committee of Council, to acquaint them with a letter from Col. Lilburne, urging a speedy supply of money for the forces in Scotland, and to report what should be done (p. 75).

The Admiralty Committee was ordered to see that sums amounting to 5,926*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.* due to poor artificers, for goods delivered into the stores, were paid (p. 196). The Trustees for Sale of Forfeited Estates were ordered to distribute 10,000*l.* in proportion among their surveyors, clerks, and messengers, being part of a much larger sum due to them (p. 314). The Excise being unable to pay the debts assigned upon it, the creditors were to be treated with for continuance of the money, on interest (p. 315). The Commissioners for Public Debts specially commended to Parliament the payment of sums amounting to 13,406*l.* 11*s.* 6*d.* long due to persons for goods, salaries, or service (pp. 324-5).

Among the seamen the results of the scarceness of money was severely felt. Their victualling was bad and defective, and led to frequent sickness. Complaints on this score to the navy victuallers were met by excuses on the ground of defective payment, and they promise satisfaction provided they may receive punctual payments (pp. 13, 17, 20, 54, 77, 142, 232).

No wonder that, with their spirits exasperated by want of wholesome food and regular pay, a mutinous spirit should frequently break out among the seamen, some of whom, after vainly crying out for money to their captains and the port officers, marched up to London to demand it (pp. 188-9, 191-2, 210). On Oct. 26th and 27th a number of them assembled tumultuously at Tower Hill, Charing Cross, and other places in London and Westminster, with pistols and other arms, and threatened to vindicate their rights by violence; but the ringleaders were taken into custody, and a proclamation issued threatening death to any mutineers or their abettors (pp. 219, 220).

On July 10th, the bailiffs of Ipswich, Southwold, and other places where sick and wounded seamen were quartered, complain bitterly of non-payment for the quarters of the men, so that the inhabitants "begin to weary of them." Not a penny can be had from the Prize Commissioners, and General Monk, who was riding near Southwold, being appealed to, was obliged to pledge his personal credit for payment of the money due for the looking after the sick in that town, the bailiffs having spent 200*l.* of their own money and being unable to advance more (pp. 18, 28). On July 19th the bailiffs of Ipswich complain in like manner that they can get no money from the Prize Commissioners, and that 700*l.* due for quartering the sick should not rest on their private estates. They beg that their disbursements may be paid from the weekly assessments (p. 36).

On Oct. 9th, the bailiffs of Southwold, Woodbridge, and Yarmouth complain that they are 500*l.* in arrear for discharge of quarters, and that the inhabitants on whom the men are quartered, being very poor, are much discouraged (p. 195).

From Harwich, Major Bourne writes on July 6th, that having taken up 400*l.* or 500*l.* on bills of exchange which remain unpaid, he cannot carry on affairs without money (p. 9). On the 31st he renews his request, having had to take up 200*l.* from the Assessment Commissioners on his own engagement, and begs that money may be raised on the sale of prize goods, some of which are perishing (p. 62).

A navy officer, thrown into prison in the Poultry Compter for debts which he was unable to discharge through want of pay, declares that he has only had one bit of victuals in three weeks, and that his friends mock him by saying "What have you gotten by serving the State?" (p. 414). Col. Simon Rugeley pleads that he lost an estate of 800*l.*, and his mansion house worth 3,500*l.*, by the Royalists; has had to sell land worth 500*l.* a year, yet his discontented family is "within the jaws of ruin." The State owes him 11,280*l.* 12*s.*, for which he has vainly petitioned Parliament, and 4,454*l.* 17*s.* 11*d.* is due to him for service; this sum he is ordered to be paid out of concealments of Crown lands to be discovered by him (p. 398-9).

In fact, the only plan suggested for the supply of additional funds was that of countenancing discoveries to be made by private individuals, either of fresh means of raising moneys, on promise of reward, which were no.

unfrequent, though seemingly futile (pp. 13 (2), 281), or of mines, or concealed Crown, bishops', deans and chapters' or delinquents' property, the allowance to the discoverer being one fourth or one fifth of what was realised on his discovery, or more if the State was already indebted to him, and Parliament appointed a special committee on the business of discoveries (pp. 48, 83, 164, 170, 174, 184, 198, 200, 209, 210, 212, 229 (2), 285).

An Act was passed for clearing public debts and discovering frauds, ordering all claims on public faith bills, and all soldiers' accounts to be brought in; all discoveries to be prosecuted at once; all delinquents discovering their own estates to compound at one fourth of the value; and all persons detaining public moneys 30 days to be sequestered until payment (p. 190).

A further Act was ordered to be presented to the House for bringing into one treasury all moneys arising from discoveries, convictions of fraud, &c., which were to be applied towards the discharge of public debts, the first 20,000*l.* to be towards the payment of the public faith bills of poor persons (p. 275).

One of the first steps taken by the Protector was to attempt a remedy of this general bankruptcy by nominating a fresh committee to inspect the treasuries (pp. 316, 319). He also appointed five members of his Council as a committee to consider the fittest and quickest way for raising and bringing in money, and the most exact method of managing the public treasury, authorising them to send for and examine whom they please, "and to be very careful of this important matter" (p. 398).

The notices of Scotland are not numerous or important. The whole revenue of the country, whether arising from assessments, customs, the late King's rents, or otherwise, was ordered to be expended on local objects, the fortifications, payment of the troops, and carrying on the service (p. 12); and the Scotch Commissioners were required to give in to the Commissioners for Inspecting the Treasuries an account of receipts and disbursements since the departure of the English Commissioners (pp. 12, 140). Fresh fortifications were ordered for Lewis and other islands, which were to be garrisoned, and ships were sent to ply about, to disturb the enemy's trade in fishing, to keep up intelligence with Ireland, and between the several parts of Scotland, and to secure those parts (pp. 166-7, 190, 212).

The commissions granted to the Civil Commissioners for Justice, &c., expiring in October 1653, they were all renewed, and the clerks and other officers of the courts forbidden to take fees, but allowed additional salaries. Wm. Laurence and Hen. Goodyear were added to the previous Commissioners, and ordered 100*l.* each in advance.

The University Commissioners were empowered to dispose to local pious uses of the profits of all vacant places (pp. 202-3, 273).

The inhabitants of Edinburgh presented a petition relative to their sole right in the town and trade of Leith, where some of the English had resolved to settle, whom they were willing to admit on condition of their becoming free citizens of Edinburgh. They also requested restoration to the former uses of the revenues of Heriot and Trinity Hospitals, and allowance to their magistrates of the patronage of their churches, free schools, &c. These requests were granted in the main, with a proviso that the sick and maimed soldiers should be cared for in the hospitals or elsewhere. Another request for a tax of 4*d.* Scots on every pint of ale or beer spent or brewed in the city, towards repayment of a debt of 60,000*l.* sterling, contracted in the 15 years of trouble, was referred to Parliament (pp. 203-5).

The Bill for the union of the two kingdoms was before Parliament, and was to be attended by the repeal of the Act banishing all Scots from England (p. 258), but the dissolution of Parliament prevented its passing, and an Ordinance of the Protector and Council for the union was passed in lieu thereof (pp. 365, 382).

The prospect of the union elicited a petition from the mayor, aldermen, and citizens of Carlisle, to Parliament. Their corporation had for centuries enjoyed a toll of 1*d.* per beast on all four-footed goods, both English and Scotch, passing through their town, for which they paid a Crown rent of 40*l.* This toll was purchased from the city by Capt. Man Dowson for 60*l.* a year, and his widow joined her petition to that of the city that they might not lose their toll by reason of the projected union (p. 255).

Among other papers of local interest may be named a piteous complaint of the inhabitants of Barnstaple, of the ruin of their town owing to the insecurity of the English Channel, and the havoc made on vessels by the Irish, Prince Rupert's fleet, the Dutch, and now the Brest men-of-war, which have so reduced their shipping that, from 50 or 60 fishing boats which they used to send to Newfoundland, they now send only 10 or 12, and their 150 trading ships suffer in like proportion, so that many vessels are afraid to stir, and their owners have to beg their bread (p. 126).

At the other end of the country, Berwick-on-Tweed, a like complaint comes from a different cause, viz., the losses by the invading armies of Scots, so that their bridge, the only easy passage into Scotland, is much decayed, and will be impassable for troops, and they request, in order to keep the bridge in repair, the renewal of a former grant of the pastures about the town, claimed by Lord Mordington, for which he wishes to compound (pp. 367-8)

The officers of Dover harbour complain of injury to the harbour by the use of the beach pebbles as ballast for ships, and urge renewal of grants by late sovereigns for its repair, and payment of 4,000*l.* ordered them by Parliament on 6th April 1652, but of which they have only received 750*l.*, and that from a seizure made there (pp. 88, 168, 237).

The Commissioners for disposing of the proceeds of the late cathedral at Lichfield were required to call in the money, much of which remained in private hands, and to give half, as ordered by Parliament 4th April 1651, to the poor of Stafford, who were very numerous, through the pulling down of part of the town to secure the garrison in the late war, and to repair the house of correction, in order that the poor may be set to work (p. 407).

Information being given that the Dutch prisoners lately sent to Salisbury, and confined in the cathedral premises, had done much damage to the pillars of the cloisters and windows of the library, Council wrote to the mayor to send an account of the damage, and how many prisoners still remain, and to report the whole state of the business (pp. 195-6).

Complaint was made by the Protestant foreigners of the French and Dutch churches in London and Westminster of disturbance in the exercise of their trades by proceedings on penal statutes, contrary to the order of Parliament of Sept. 2nd 1653, allowing Protestant strangers to exercise manufactures within the State. Council thereupon requested Parliament to reconsider the penal statutes, and stayed proceedings meantime (pp. 155, 156 (2), 159). The masters and wardens of the handicraft corporations of London presented a counter petition against the encouragement of foreign labour, which was referred to the same Committee of Council as was appointed on the foreigners' petition, and a copy of that petition was ordered to be delivered to the Londoners (pp. 163-4).

The merchants of the Intercourse, being 27 persons, Dutch and Burgundians born in the Netherlands, petition the Protector for continuance of their freedom from assessments, pleading ancient treaties and orders of Parliament, and the immunity granted to English merchants in Antwerp and Rotterdam, on account of this exemption. They complain that the Assessment Committee has greatly overrated them, and taken their goods by force, breaking open locks for payment, and that all applications to the Committee of Parliament for petitions, the Committee for Trade, and the Dutch and Spanish ambassadors, have failed to obtain redress. They beg restitution of the goods distrained, and suspension of further distrains, on the ground of the inconveniences which must else fall on the English abroad by the violation of the ancient privileges. Their appeal was referred by the Protector to Council, and by Council to a committee (pp. 389, 390).

Several disturbances arose on the subject of enclosures. At Walsall, in Staffordshire, a riot broke out, and an enclosure made by a Mr. Pershouse was thrown down. Commissary Gen. Whalley was ordered to march with two troops of his regiment to the town, to assist the mayor in apprehending the chief rioters, and suppressing riots and unlawful assemblies in and about the town, and the ring-leaders were ordered to be sent up to London, though they were ultimately sent home to be proceeded against according to law (pp. 110, 111, 179, 180, 268).

There are several proceedings upon a midnight riot connected with the enclosures in the fen country. On Aug. 14th, Whalley was sent with two troops of horse to the Isle of Ely, with orders to disperse the mutineers who had thrown down the level of the fens, to examine the ringleaders, and to send them up to town (p. 114).

On Aug. 31st, letters from Wilberton in Norfolk record that the rioters assembled with arms, beat the workmen, threw down the works, and destroyed the drains, and there was great fear that local legislation would be ineffective, because from the strong feeling against enclosures in the county, the jury were likely to take part with the rioters. "I doubt," writes one of the fen adventurers, "the jury will serve us as they did in the case of John Lilburne, and then we are worse than we were before. Nothing would fright and quiet them more than if there were 100 of these desperate fellows pressed for the service; they, being all watermen, and having little to do at home, make these night excursions, and show their valour against my Lord General's men, which would be much better employed against the Dutch" (pp. 114-'6, 118-121).

The Commissioners sent out to make inquiries found their investigations difficult, because "the business is so much in the dark, and so subtly and cunningly carried out by the country, that no considerable discovery is yet made, neither is there much probability of it in the future" (p. 128);—a prediction seemingly fulfilled, for no more is heard of the rioters,—but the adventurers request an order for examination into all riots committed within two years, and for sending up the actors and abettors to Council, the order already given only extending to the last midnight riot (p. 141).

A report being returned upon a riot committed in June 1653 against the draining of Hatfield Chase, in which much grain, many houses, and the town of Lantoft had been destroyed, and advising settlement of the adventurers in 7,400 acres, an order was issued to employ military power, and to quarter troops in the neighbourhood, to protect the owners of the 7,400 acres. Also for a special commission of oyer and terminer to punish the offenders, and for a grant to the owners of reparation of damage (pp. 57, 118).

A contest, important in the interests of trade, was carried on between the Greenland or Muscovy Company, who claimed the sole right to the fishery there, and the free traders to Greenland, or, as they were considered, interlopers. The arguments of the company are their discovery of the trade and protection of it from the Dutch; their chartered rights, confirmed by the Navy Commissioners and Committee for Trade; and their vested interests. They beg to retain possession of Horn and Bell Sounds, pleading the difficulties and disputes that might arise from the fishing by conflicting interests in one harbour, and urging that private adventurers could not succeed, because the erection of storehouses is needful to store the oil of a successful year, which will occur every three or four years when the whales come in shoals, and compensate for two or three losing years, and these storehouses, involving large outlay, would not be erected by private individuals (pp. 362, 378-380).

The free adventurers, being chiefly Hull merchants, plead that the trade was discovered 40 years ago by Hull men; that there is ample room for all who desire to fish; and that it is inconsistent with the public weal to restrain the fishing to 50 people, who enhance the price of oil by their inability to bring in a sufficient quantity; that Bell Sound is 30 miles by 15, and Green Harbour still larger, and that by admission of all, there would no longer be the need of importing oil and furs from Holland, and the State would be strengthened by the increase of shipping (pp. 378-380).

They propose that the Greenland harbours be open to all; that the number of shallops competent to fish any harbour be settled; that the first comers choose their places; and, when the appointed number has arrived, no others thrust into the harbour (p. 393). They argue that of the 3,000 tons of shipping required to guard and fish in the English harbours of Greenland, the company only supply 1,600, whilst Hull and York find 400, Yarmouth 500, and other free adventurers 500 tons (p. 421), and propose that each port should be tied to send a certain number of vessels yearly to fish with the company (pp. 419–421).

Several papers occur relative to the redemption of English captives taken by African pirates, and enslaved in great misery in the kingdom of Barbary, at Sally, Tunis, Tripoli, Algiers, &c. A committee was appointed to receive petitions from any whose friends were in captivity, and consider means for their redemption with the moneys—a small percentage called Argiers or Algiers duty—which had long been levied at the Custom House for that express purpose (p. 122).

This committee employed Chas. Longland, agent at Leghorn, to undertake the redemption of the captives at Tripoli, and he undertook the task with energy. “You may console those poor men and women who have friends there,” he writes on Oct. 24th, “that no time will be lost, and that I will not sleep in quiet until I have put the business in a way for their redemption” (p. 213). On Nov. 21st, he writes that he has hired a bark at Genoa for 1,000 dollars to go to Tripoli and back, and has offered the Bashaw, to whom he sends presents value 60 or 80 dollars, 200 dollars a man; he objects to the request of the committee for five or six persons named to be first redeemed, because in that case they will not be had under 100*l*. a man, one individual, Abraham Rogers, having “cut his own ransom there at 400 dollars.” “You “ will see,” he adds, “ by the enclosed list, that half of the “ men are officers, so that if you can get them for 200, I “ shall esteem it very reasonable. All care shall be had “ to manage the business with frugality, although there “ will be other large charges besides the ransoms before

“ they get to England, except some shipping come out “ whereon they may be embarked ” (p. 263).

After the dispatch of the bark with an agent on board who was ordered “ to stand hard at 150 dollars ” a man, and not to go beyond 200, Longland heard of a Sicilian friar, who had collected 14,000 dollars to redeem the captives of that nation, and had paid 350 dollars for officers, and 250 for common men, and asks directions in case the Bashaw insists on similar terms (p. 89); but although there are several later letters from Longland in the volume, no further notice of the captives occurs.

As to individual cases, an attempt was made to redeem Mat. Holt, captive in Tripoli, for 320 dollars, and 20 per cent. exchange, the money being paid on his arrival at Leghorn, and the redeemer running the risk afterwards, but even that could not be accomplished unless the money were paid beforehand (pp. 42, 167-8).

Mat. Aderam of Plymouth was freed by Edm. Casson, and served him and Hum. Oneby, consul at Algiers, four years before a vessel arrived that could take him to England; the amount of ransom is not named (p. 52). Rob. Downe in Sally redeems 22 men from the west of England, but is obliged to abandon to their fate seven others, who belong to “ the Saint,” and he will not let them go for money (p. 86).

Among individuals who figure in the present volume one of the most remarkable is the blunt, rash soldier, Lieut.-Col. John Lilburne. The preceding volume notes his return from abroad without leave, and his seizure and imprisonment in Newgate thereupon. An inquiry was set on foot into "his carriage in foreign parts" (p. 22), the result of which seems to have been unfavourable, for it was decided that Lilburne should undergo a trial at the Old Bailey, and it took place in July, but was not terminated till Aug. 20th.

Grievous offence was taken by Parliament at the presentation on his behalf of a printed petition from the young men and apprentices of London, Westminster, and Southwark, styling themselves "well-affected and constant adherers to the interests of Parliament and their own fundamental rights and freedoms." It was pronounced a high breach of the privileges of Parliament, scandalous and seditious. The six persons who brought it in were committed to the custody of the serjeant-at-arms (p. 65), and a committee was formed to examine the authors, contrivers, printers, and presenters of it (p. 98).

At request of the Lord Mayor and Recorder of London that the judges who were in town might be present at the trial, Justices Warburton and Aske were summoned. The former attended, but the latter was represented by Keble, one of the Lords Commissioners of the Great Seal (p. 88). The prosecution was entrusted to the Attorney-General, aided by the Solicitor-General, the attorney of the Duchy, and Mr. Graves (pp. 4, 85); yet to the ineffable disgust of Government, the jury acquitted the prisoner (p. 120).

The Lord Mayor and Recorder, the Attorney-General, and Keble and Warburton, were immediately summoned before the Council of State, to give an account of their proceedings, "expressing the same as particularly as may be" (pp. 98, 101). The jury were also examined, and the clerks of the court gave in their notes, taken in shorthand, of Lilburne's "scandalous and seditious speeches," made during the trial.* The case was then referred from Council to Parliament, who, instead of liberating the man according to the verdict of acquittal, ordered that "for the peace of the nation" he be further secured, and requested the opinion of the Council of State on the papers presented (pp. 101, 105).

Meanwhile, on Aug. 27th, Col. Hacker was sent with a party of horse to Newgate, to receive Lilburne and deliver him in safe custody to the Lieutenant of the Tower (p. 107). The following November, Lilburne was summoned on some private matter to the Upper Bench Court, and he was allowed once to appear, being conveyed thither in a barge, under strict custody (p. 311), but Council refused to permit him to leave the Tower again, he being placed there by authority of Parliament, and not to be removed without their order (pp. 242, 253, 254, 266). His wife was permitted to repair to him, but only on condition that she should remain with him, and that no visits should be allowed to either (p. 126). On Cromwell's access to power, his position was so far improved as that he was allowed visitors, at the discretion of the Lieutenant of the Tower (p. 344), and a regular allowance of 8*l.* a month was granted for his subsistence (pp. 457, 458).

Of other noteworthy persons may be named General Blake, who, though appointed to join Monk in the generalship of the fleet, had to be put on shore at Walderswick, near Southwold, on July 5th, in a very weak condition, through an attack of gravel; though suffering from pain, fever, and headache, he was quartered in a place so noisy that he would find it impossible to take rest, even if his physical condition permitted it (p. 79). It was thought advisable to send to him Dr. Whistler, the head of the medical staff on the eastern coast, for management of the sick and wounded (p. 15). His illness, combined with the death of General Deane, as recorded in the preceding volume, left Monk for some time sole commander of the fleet (p. 17). Blake was, however, sufficiently recovered to take part in the engagement with the Dutch of 29th and 31st July, in which the English fleet obtained a signal victory over Van Tromp (pp. 67-71), and he received with Monk the thanks of Parliament, with a gold chain value 300*l.*, whilst chains worth 100*l.* each were given to Vice-Admiral Penn and Rear-Admiral Lawson (p. 77). There are numerous letters of Blake in the present volume (see Index), but of official rather than personal interest.

Several letters also occur of Eliz. Alkin, alias Parliament Joan, the Florence Nightingale in humble life of the period. Her womanly instincts ever prompted her presence and help to the sick and suffering sent ashore from the fleet, up to and beyond the range of her means. On June 2nd, she writes from Harwich that she has spent on necessaries for the sick and wounded, three times as much as the 5*l.* given her when sent down there, for she "cannot see them want" if she has it, though in consequence she owes money for her own diet. She has given much "to have their bodies cleaned, their hair cut, and "their clothes mended," and only been able to obtain 20*s.* from the Mayor of Harwich, and therefore begs a speedy supply. She has been to look after the men at Ipswich, and would have brought up to London those who were fit to bear the journey, but that Major Bourne is anxious for her to remain to wait the issue of the next engagement (p. 5). Major Bourne promised to accommodate her with money, and paid her 10*l.*, but the large-hearted woman spent 4*l.* on the English sick and wounded, and 6*l.* on the Dutch prisoners landed at Harwich and Ipswich after the fight of 29th and 31st July; "seeing " their wants and misery were so great," she writes, " I could not but have pity upon them, although our " enemies."

The consequence of her exertions was that she herself fell ill, and had to return to London, with only 3*s.* in her pocket. Although the Council of State ordered her 10*l.* on Dec. 6th, 1653, and the Protector 10*l.* on 10th Jan. 1654, she writes in February 1654 two pitiful letters, begging for further aid, her many infirmities being brought on by continual watchings day and night. She says she now requires two nurses, and has been forced to sell her bed and other goods, and begs either relief or admission to some hospital, that she may end her days less miserably (pp. 353, 413, 422, 457, 480).

The Major Bourne alluded to by Parliament Joan was another complainant of want of consideration. He gives an outline of his services as commander for two years of a squadron on the coast of Scotland, though only receiving captain's pay at 12*s.* a day; then for a short time as rear-admiral of the fleet in the Downs; then as navy commissioner at Harwich, where, in the pressure of business, he did not stand upon the dignity of his position, but " willingly took up any man's work " and exerted his utmost efforts in repair of the numerous ships sent in, though with little aid from the dockyard officers. He was also commissioned by the General, during his own absence, to give orders to all ships on the coast. He found the expenses of his position heavy, especially in a place where the proximity of the fleet enhanced the prices of provisions; and the multiplicity of his public business prevented him during many months from spending six hours in his private affairs, which suffered in consequence.

He professes to have done all this from an apprehension of necessity to act with all his might, and on principles of conscience, seeking his compensation in the interest of the Lord Jesus and his Saints, so deeply concerned in these affairs, yet urges that he ought to be so treated as to be able to keep what he had when he entered the service " unless the necessity of the public require it, to which I " shall freely submit " (pp. 154-5).

He writes later of want of sufficient accommodation, and must have more if he is to remain at Harwich; then of an earnest desire to come to town to see his family; of being nearly killed by the November cold in coasting up and down, and of harass from the mutinous dispositions of the seamen on board several of the ships in harbour for want of pay, which it needed the intervention of the soldiers from Landguard fort to suppress. He does not work for wages, and would have been content with his expenses, " but the world is unequally divided " (pp. 181-2, 207, 210, 232).

His request to come to town, though often repeated, found no response (p. 270), and his troubles were increased by the failure of a private enterprise. He had sent three vessels to New England to purchase large masts, much wanted for the Navy, but two of them were captured by the Dutch and one foundered at sea, to a loss of 1,000*l*. On representation of his case to the Protector, however, he was specially recommended for favour to Council, who ordered him the gift of a Dutch prize ship, value 400*l*. If he chose one of greater value, 400*l*. was to be deducted from the purchase money (pp. 375-6, 413).

The engineering Earl of Worcester renews his appeals for relief, as alluded to in the preface to the last Calendar. The allowance from the State of 3*l*. a week will, he complains, only pay his prison charges; he much needs freedom on the ground of health, and his poor lady, who brought him a very good estate, is in danger of perishing through want. He begs help and release on bail (pp. 295, 380), pleading that he has not been engaged against the State since the time limited by the Act of Pardon, and "came in only out " of confidence to submit to this Government"; but his plea was vain. He was allowed in December to go in charge of the Lieutenant of the Tower to Worcester House, to give information before the Commissioners of Accounts and Public Debts, on an information of his son, Lord Herbert, but was to return to the Tower (p. 315).

In Feb. 1654 he begs leave to come with his keeper to York House, Strand, his presence being necessary for a trial of his invention "to raise water in a 7-inch bore " pipe, by the strength of one man, for which people " have hitherto used horses at vast expense." This request was complied with, but the noble inventor had to return to his captivity (p. 401).

There are few literary entries of importance. The late King's great Bible, with rich bosses, in custody of Carew Harvey Mildmay, is ordered to be brought in to Council (p. 437).

The import is ordered, duty free, of 7,000 reams of paper, required by Dr. Brune Ryves for printing the translation of the Bible into Oriental and other learned tongues (pp. 16, 428). The gentlemen who undertake the printing of the said Bible are to have delivered to them the copy of Tecla's Septuagint, belonging to the library at James's House, for perfecting the work, on security of its restoration without defacement (pp. 58-9). There is also an order for taking care of the James's library, and a committee appointed to carry out the instructions of Parliament concerning it (pp. 16, 234). Henry Lawrence, a member of the Council of State, was appointed its keeper, and Mr. Cockayne was ordered to give him the keys, and deliver to him all the catalogues of the books, medals, &c. therein contained (pp. 238, 273).

Several letters from Jas. Allestrye to Viscount Conway on the purchase of books have a value as to the current prices (pp. 35, 43, 85).

A few notices occur of proceedings towards writers against Government (pp. 188, 199, 438, 448), as John Speed, author of the "Parliament's Catechism" (p. 173); Rob. White, Geo. Wharton, and John FitzSmith, for printing scandalous almanacs (pp. 193, 209, 436); John Clowes and Rob. Austin, for printing "A charge against the Lord General" (p. 446); John Bidle, for "A twofold Catechism" (pp. 414, 425); Thos. Locke and Hen. Barnes, for printing and publishing seditious books generally (p. 438); and Wm. Rand, for scandalous papers (p. 437).

The books named which met with the approval of Government are Dr. Holmes' "Resurrection revealed, or the dawning of the Day Star"; and "Curia politiæ," which is to be printed only under orders of Secretary Thurloe (p. 287).

VOL. XXXVIII. JULY, 1653.

COUNCIL OF STATE. Day's Proceedings.

1-3, 10, 12. The Whitehall Committee to provide lodgings for Alderman Dickinson of York, Rich. Sweet, and Mr. Bouthill, and to give those late Col. Hutchinson's to Sir Wm. Roberts, and the stables and coachhouses, late Solicitor Reynolds', to Mr. Moyer.

4. The petition of Garrett Castele, tailor of London, to be sent to the Merchant Tailors' Company, who are to return to Council the state of his case, and meantime to suffer him to work without disturbance.

5. The petition of Dame Lettice Holcroft referred to the Committee appointed to consider the warrants charged by the Revenue Committee on Capt. Falconbridge.

6. That of John and Edward Bushell, and others interested in the prize Golden Oven, referred to the Customs' Commissioners, to cause the wines mentioned to be surveyed, and if they find them defective, to allow the usual abatement of customs to the said ship's lading of decayed wines.

8. Order on petition of Capt. Rob. Massey, that a letter be written to the Militia Commissioners for co. Dorset, about so much of the petition as relates to his debt, and to require of them an account of the money ordered to be assessed for the militia, as to what is received and paid, and what remains in cash or uncollected, and also to show cause why Massey has not yet been paid.

11. The report from the Army Committee on Capt. Blackwell's behalf, appointed to have been made to Parliament, referred to the Committee for Ireland.

13. John Smith appointed controller of the Excise Office in London, in place of Mr. Bonner.

14. Col. Okey, Lieut.-Col. Biscoe, Majors Miller and Haines, Mr. Margets, and Col. Clerke added to the Committee to hear the petition of Mr. Anguish.

17, 18. Order on petition of the inhabitants of Whitechurch, Salop, that Thos. Porter, now minister there, be continued, till further notice by the supreme power or this Council. The justices of peace to see that he is not molested.

19. The quorum of trustees and contractors for bishops', deans', and chapters' lands, reduced to three.

22. The late order of Council, whereby all persons who subscribed the petition from several aldermen and other inhabitants of London were suspended from all places of employment, for which they received salaries, to be taken off as to such as were treasurers, trustees, or contractors for sale of bishops', deans', and chapters' lands.

23. The Posts' Committee to adjust the accounts of Mr. Malyn, Mr. Oxenbridge, and the rest of the new undertakers, and to report.

24. Lambert, Disborow, and Carew appointed a Committee to confer with the Commissioners for Inspection about the business contained in a letter of Capt. Deane to Lambert and Disborow. Deane to get the said commissioners to meet at 10 a.m. to-morrow.

25. A pass to be granted to Cpts. Cornelius Arentse Cruyck, Jan Gedeonse Verburghs, and Cornelis Lourense to Holland, being ordered to be exchanged for Cpts. Appleton, Marsh, and Seaman, now prisoners with the Dutch.

26. The report from the Committee to confer with some of the officers of the army concerning their petition presented to Council, recommended to the supreme authority, as being most proper for their consideration.

27. The petition of Charles Earl of Nottingham, referred to the Irish and Scotch Committee, to report.

28. Capt. Falconbridge to pay Mr. Scobell the arrears of his salary as clerk of Parliament.

29. Order that as on statement of the case nothing appears whereby Viscount Mansfield should be excluded from the benefit of the Act of Oblivion, his case be recommended to the supreme authority. [I. 69, pp. 470-476.]

July 1.

Order by Lord Gen. Cromwell and the Council of State that the powers of the Committee of Indemnity conferred by Parliament on Sam. Moyer, Jas. Russell, Edw. Winslow, Josias Berners, Wm. Molins, Art. Squibb, and Rich. Moore until this day, be continued to Moyer, Berners, Squibb, and Moore, with Edw. Cary and Geo. Foxcroft, to 1 November next. [I. 69, pp. 479, 480.]

July 1.
Navy Office.

1. Navy Commissioners to the Admiralty Committee. We have endeavoured to make the several supplies of masts, cordage, anchors, and other necessities from the yards to the fleet, but unless there is a timely supply of money to recruit the stores, we shall be at great disadvantage, and the stores will cost 20 per cent. more. There are bills signed for upwards of 100,000*l.* for ready money, and the hemp, masts, tar, &c. required will cost above 200,000*l.*

We have used all means to keep the men that have come in of late, by ordering them to be paid to the end of December, and giving tickets to the captains of the ships to which they are turned over for the remaining time. They have absented themselves, but we hope they will appear now, as Col. Barkstead is abroad. We have often complained of the debauching of seamen by the swarm of ale-houses on the Thames.

We wish the business of attending to Dutch prisoners and the widows of slain seamen may be transferred to other hands, as we have more business than we can well manage. You order us to pay some ships that only came into the service since 1 February, and we have hitherto obeyed your orders not to sign tickets payable since 1 January, though the clamour of the seamen for money is very great. Pray send further directions. [ $1\frac{2}{3}$  pages.]

July 1.
London.

2. Thos. Atkin to his brother Alderman Tichborne. The Parliament Committee for the Customs ordered that  $\frac{1}{3}$  of the money received at Yarmouth for coals for the poor [should be paid] to the poor of Norwich. The whole receipt for last year was 326*l.* 16*s.*, of which Norwich had 108*l.* 18*s.* 8*d.* There was no return from Yarmouth of what was received up to last April, before the disturbance in the Parliament House. It is desired that you and the other Commissioners will order the receiver there to pay that  $\frac{1}{3}$  to the Mayor of Norwich for the poor there, as most of the coals that come to Yarmouth are vented at Norwich, and places from thence. [ $\frac{2}{3}$  page.]

July 2.

COUNCIL OF STATE. Day's Proceedings.

1. John Hagget appointed chief justice for cos. Carmarthen, Pembroke, and Cardigan. The Lord General to send his warrant to the Lords Commissioners of the Seals to give him a commission.

2. To write the Governor of Portsmouth that 16 officers of quality landed at Rye this week, including Col. Legge and Major Thomas, and to desire him to be watchful and prevent suspicious meetings in his garrison or the country round, and to examine strictly all who come into the garrison.

3. To write to the Mayor of Rye and officers of the port to the same effect, and desiring them to give what account they can of the said persons.

4. Major Wade appointed Commander-in-Chief in the Isle of Man. Major-Gen. Lambert to speak with him thereon.

5. The information of Abraham Johnson and others referred to Mr. Thurloe, who is to confer with Dr. Walker concerning putting the matter into such a way of examination as shall prove useful in the trial.

6, 7. Mr. Eltonhead, Norbury, Powell, and Perke, late judges for Wales, to bring in their patents to Mr. Thurloe.

8. Col. Sydenham to be desired, on information of the landing of the 16 commanders at Rye, to write to the commanders of the forts in the Isle of Wight, to take care of their charges, and be careful whom they admit to the castles.

10. The appointed Commissioners to meet the Swedish agent at 4 p.m. at Whitehall, Sir Oliver Fleming to give him notice.

11. To write to the Commissioners of Parliament in Ireland that the 200*l.* a year settled upon Mrs. Cook, widow of Col. Cook, is not to be charged with assessments.

12. The petition of Martin Lister, Hugh May, and Chas. Valois referred to the Committee for Obstructions, to report.

15. The lodgings, late Mr. Scott's in Whitehall, given to Col. Geo. Fleetwood and Lieut.-Col. Geo. Baldwin, the Queen's closet in the little gallery excepted.

16. The Committee for Whitehall to take care that Cols. Norton, Bingham, Kenrick, Mr. Broughton, Mr. French, Robt. Fenwick, Mr. Ogle, and other gentlemen appointed to be of the supreme power, be fitted with convenient lodgings in Whitehall, Somerset House, the Mews, and Stephen's Court, Westminster, out of those voided by order of Council.

18. The petition of Richard Wollaston referred to the Committee appointed to consider what warrants are fit to be paid and signed by the Revenue Committee.

19. Mr. Strickland and the Committee for redemption of Captives to take care that Henry Peach, captive in Sally, be redeemed, and the paper given to Council concerning that business referred to them.

20. Desborow, Sydenham, Strickland, and Moyer to examine the account of Capt. Boreman, and state what is due to him, and out of what treasury it should be paid.

21. The Commissioners for Prize Goods to pay to Robt. Blackburne 100*l.* more towards paying for Gen. Deane's funeral.

22. The Irish and Scotch Committee to examine the account of John Emery of his disbursements about the house of Whitehall, and report.

26. The petition of Alex. Bowling, and the papers annexed, referred to the Navy Commissioners, to state the account, and report.

27. The petition of Wil. Hulls referred to Harrison and Sydenham, to report.

28, 29. Mr. Solicitor to be assistant to Mr. Attorney-General in the trial of Lieut.-Col. John Lilburne at the next sessions of gaol delivery, held in the Old Bailey, London, and such judges of Westminster Hall as are in town to be present.

30. The bill of William Du Gard for books printed for the use of the State to be paid out of Council's contingencies, Mr. Scobell first examining it and certifying his allowance thereof.

32. The petition of Capt. Reeves Williams referred to Capt. Cozins, commander of Pendennis Castle, to examine the business, secure the persons complained of, if he shall see cause, and such of the stolen goods and plate as shall be discovered, and certify.

33. The petition of Richard Bostock, Thos. Harper, and Jeremiah Copping, for themselves and others, referred to the Committee for the Posts, to consider whether they be fit to continue their respective employments, and report.

35. The lodgings of Jane Neale to be continued to her, and this signified to the Committee of Whitehall.

37. Order on petition of Thos. Coke, prisoner in the Tower, that he be set at liberty on bail, on security to the Lieutenant of the Tower to be forthcoming when summoned, either by the supreme power or Council. [I. 70, pp. 1-9.]

July 2.
Harwich.

3. Major N. Bourne to the Admiralty Committee. The Kentish and other ships are detained by contrary winds. As a greater portion of the beer on board the victuallers is very bad, it will not be advisable to send it to the fleet. I wish some instrument were appointed to survey and dispose of it, and discharge the ship. I will inquire into the sick and wounded in the town, and send the worst up to the hospitals, and those who are well on board the ships, but the place is not advantageous for their recovery, the water being brackish and bad. [1 page.]

Harwich.

4. Major N. Bourne to the Navy Commissioners. The provisions promised have not arrived. I am going to Yarmouth on Monday. I have sent up the Ann Piercy as she is unfit for service. There are several ships here with provisions for the fleet, and as beer is the principal part, and it is bad, I have stayed them until further order; let some competent person be sent down to examine it. I have discharged two ships with victuals from Ipswich, and desire orders as to discharging three others, lying in the harbour at great charge. [1 page.]

June 2.
Harwich.

5. Elizabeth Alkin to Robt. Blackborne. I have expended the 5*l*. with which you sent me down, and three times as much for necessities for the sick and wounded. I cannot see them in want if I have it. I have given a great deal to have their bodies cleansed, their hair cut, and their clothes mended, so that I have spent both your money and my own, and I owe for my diet. I often go to Ipswich to see the men there. I got 20*s*. of the Mayor of Harwich, but he is in great want himself; send me money speedily.

P.S.—Major Bourne wants me to stay till he hear the event of this new engagement, or I should have come to London with the wounded men. [ $\frac{3}{4}$  page.]

July 4.

COUNCIL OF STATE. Day's Proceedings.

1, 2, 6. 6. Mr. Leman's lodgings in Whitehall assigned to Mr. Wingfield, and Major Salway's to Majors Smith and Salway. The Committee to put them in possession, and also to take care that the room and closet desired by Mr. Barton, near the Cockpit, be assigned to him, if it be not part of the lodgings belonging to the Cockpit, or a passage leading thereto.

3. The Irish and Scotch Committee to consider the letter from Colonel Heane of 26 June, examine the business therein relating to Captain Mason, and report.

4. To write to the Lieutenant of the Tower to take care that the money lately coined and placed in a room there be kept till further order, after paying 5,000*l*. to Mr. Frost for Council's contingencies, on a warrant received.

5. To write the commander of the Phoenix and Constant Warwick to sail to the fleet.

7. The petition of John Manley referred to the Committee for the Posts, to send for and examine the persons complained of, and any others who obstruct the carrying of letters by Manley or any employed by him, and if it be as alleged by petitioner, to take care that he be put into quiet possession of the said post office.

10. To issue warrant to the keeper of the Gatehouse, to deliver Jeffry Brown and Wm. Brent to the officer of a party of horse appointed by the Lord General to carry them to Chester, there to remain till a ship arrives to transport them to Dublin, to be delivered to the Commissioners there, in order to their trial. [I. 70, pp. 13, 14.]

Whitehall.

Declaration of the Council of State that—having considered the condition, as to exemption of taxes, on which Sir Theodore Mayerne, a stranger born and very eminent in his profession, was invited to England, and which has been hitherto continued to him,—to express their esteem of his quality and abilities, and to manifest how acceptable his residence here is to them, he is to be free from all taxes and assessments, provided that his land in all parts be liable as hitherto. [I. 70, p. 15.]

July 4.
The Resolution,
off Winteron.

7. Generals Blake and Monk to the Admiralty Committee. We were driven by the wind as far to leeward as Flamborough Head, in our way to Sole Bay, but expect to get to the rendezvous with the fleet to-morrow. We desire the victuallingships may be expedited. We have a considerable number of sick men, 80 in this ship only, and we shall be compelled to send them to Ipswich, where Dr. Whistler writes there is plenty of room and good accommodation. A fresh supply of sound men must be made, or the fleet will be very weakly manned. We have sent the Worcester to Chatham for repairs. We recommend her captain, a godly and valiant man, also Capt. Newbery of the Entrance, Capt. Blagg of the Marmaduke, and Capt. Hermon of the Welcome, for commissions in the frigates now building. We want paper and canvas for cartridges, junk, victuals to last to the end of September, and all the clean ships and frigates that are now ready. [2 pages.]

Dartmouth.

8. Capt. Rich. Mill to the Admiralty Committee. I have shipped aboard the Lily 100 men to sail for Portsmouth. I have sent up 150 since I left London, and find more men in Cornwall and the west than in the east. I hope to get 200 more. I want a frigate or two to attend about Falmouth three weeks hence for them. Capt. Stanerd of a privateer, and his lieutenant, Nutt, have detained several men that I had pressed. Nutt was a pirate, and threatened to shoot Capt. Blowfield, who attempted to come aboard him. The country is very much unsatisfied that such should go to sea. With note for the seamen to be despatched by the Warwick. [1 page.]

July 4.
Harwich.

9. Major N. Bourne to the Admiralty Committee. The Kentish and President have sailed to the fleet, and the Marmaduke and Society will be ready to-morrow. I am glad Col. Pride has come to judge the provisions and beer; he has condemned the beer on two ships. I wish Mr. Lewis could reside here, and attend to that business. I will despatch all ships that come in from the fleet to be refitted. I shall save money for the State; but for this, I should move for a removal. [1 page.]

July 5.

10. Certificate by Rich. Sherwin and John Leech, the Goldsmiths' Hall treasurers, to the Admiralty Committee that the late treasurers received 11,038*l.* 15*s.* on the Act for Sale and Compounding, between 18 Nov. 1652 and 22 Feb. 1653, and the present treasurers 5,172*l.* 5*s.* up to 2 July, making an average for the nine weeks of 853*l.* 4*s.* weekly. [ $\frac{1}{2}$  page.]

[July 5.]

11. Certificate on an Admiralty Committee order of 4 July, that from 28 Jan. to 2 July there has been received [for the navy] on the last Act for sale of delinquents' estates, 34,038*l.* 13*s.* 11*d.*, being an average of 1,479*l.* 18*s.* 10 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. a week. [ $\frac{2}{3}$  page.]

July 5.
Dartmouth.

12. Stephen Knowing to the Navy Commissioners. The Lily has shipped 80 seamen and gone for Portsmouth. The coast is much infested with French pirates, who lately captured 4 colliers from Wales; a small frigate or two would clear us from these thieves. There is a report that 90 sail of Hollanders have arrived at Rochelle, of which 12 are men-of-war, said to be Van Tromp's squadron, and are ranging to and fro to get purchases about these parts. [1 page.]

July 5.
Harwich.

13. Major N. Bourne to the Navy Commissioners. I have just received advice that the fleet has come to Southwold Bay, and several frigates are ordered in to Harwich. As tallow is 50*s.* per cwt. here, and no doubt cheaper in London, let 40 or 50 cwt. be sent with the other stores. [ $\frac{1}{2}$  page.]

July 5.
The Resolution,
Sole Bay,

14. General Monck to the Admiralty Committee. We are here and hard at work. Let the provisions and victuals be hastened down. The Reserve with some of the victuallers has arrived very seasonably, and we will soon send them back. We hope the paper and canvas demanded will be sent by a special messenger. The greater part of the beer is not fit to drink, and as it occasions much sickness, we desire it may be looked into. General Blake has gone ashore sick. [1 page.]

July 5.
The Resolution,
Sole Bay.

15. John Poortmans to Robt. Blackborne. The fleet is at the rendezvous, and all hands are at work to get the ships ready for service; we are sending the sick on shore at Ipswich, Aldborough, Dunwich, and Sole. The strictest course should be taken lest they should get away. A supply of men and good victuals are much needed and would stop many complaints. [ $\frac{2}{3}$  page.]

July 6.

16. Petition of Edw. Lewes and 9 other Eastland merchants to the Council of State, for licence to import goods from Dunkirk and Hamburg, notwithstanding the Act for prohibition. Petitioners are factors at Dantzic, and last October, loaded four ships named with east country commodities for England, according to the tenor of the late Act, but the ships were surprised in Denmark Sound by some Dutch men-of-war, and carried to Amsterdam, whence they could not be released without the masters engaged on oath that they should ail to Dunkirk, and not to England, so that they are thereby disabled to bring the goods hither. Ten signatures. With reference thereon to the Irish and Scotch Committee. [1 page.]

VOL. XXXVIII.

July 6. COUNCIL OF STATE. Day's Proceedings.

1. Bennet, Sydenham, Moyer, and the Lieutenant of the Tower to be a Committee to examine into the coining of false money lately discovered; to send for and examine all persons concerned in it, or able to give testimony against those engaged in it; and if they find them questionable by law, to commit them to prison, to be proceeded against according to law; the Committee to give accounts of their proceedings from time to time.

2. The Master of the Mint to observe, in coining the money in hand, the rule for coining a certain proportion of small money to a certain proportion of large, according to the indentures of the Mint.

3. Sam. Moyer, and Arthur Squibb, to give the oath enjoined to be taken by Commissioners for Compositions, Advance of money, and Indemnity, to Geo. Foxcroft and Edw. Carey, lately appointed Commissioners.

5. The petition of Sam. Wilson, preacher at Peterborough Cathedral, referred to Desborow and Thomlinson, appointed a Committee to consider desires of that nature. [I. 70, pp. 16, 17.]

July 6.
Whitehall.

Additional instructions to Josias Berners, Fras. Mussenden, Sir Wm. Roberts, John Packer, Hen. Pitt, Mathias Valentine, and Rob. Aldworth. To hear and determine before 15 August next, any claims upon estates in the late additional Act for sale of delinquents' estates forfeited for treason, which provided that all who had any interest therein before the date of the treason, and had allowance thereof by the Committee for removing Obstructions, before 1 Jan. 1653, should have the allowance made good; but several of the claims, though given in, could not be determined before the time, and therefore they are to hear the causes still pending. [I. 70, pp. 17, 18.]

July 6.
Weymouth.

17. Geo. Pley, customs' officer, to Robt. Blackburne. I want to know to whom to send my quarterly books, as Jas. Russel, the cheque general, does not continue in that employment. I hear that it is intended to bring the receipt of the Excise into that of the Customs. I hope we of the Customs who have been found faithful shall not be laid aside, and give place to those of the Excise. It is said the business of the outports is to be managed by sub-commissioners. If such a change be made, pray continue my friend, and keep me in this port. [ $\frac{3}{4}$  page.]

July 6.
The Resolution,
Southwold
Bay.

18. John Poortmans to his brother [Rich. Creed]. Thanks for the news books. You say our friends much wonder at our coming in at such a juncture. It was very opposite to my thoughts, but I hope we shall prevail over the enemy. I hope we shall sail to our former station on the 9th. The Advantage has come in from Holland, with three prizes and two others much suspected ; they are not considerable, but all helps to pull down our enemies.

P.S.—Mr. Blackborne is expected here, so I have not written to him. [1 page.]

July 6.

The Resolution,
Sole Bay.

19. Generals Monck and Blake to the Admiralty Committee.

We are glad to hear the ships sent into the river for repairs are nearly ready, and desire they may be hastened down and supplied with men, as we cannot help them, having had to send many sick on shore. We have always turned over the men from the merchant ships whose contracts have expired to others, but there are none such here now, except the Brazil, which, being a frigate, we have continued. There is great complaint of victuals, especially of beer and water. Col. Pride promises a better supply. We have disposed of the stores that have come, but still want cables and anchors. Particulars of ships. [2 pages.]

July 6.

Harwich,
Noon.

20. Major N. Bourne to the Admiralty Committee. I have deferred my journey to Yarmouth, the fleet having arrived in Southwold Bay ; 12 ships have come into Harwich for repairs, and more are coming in. I will despatch them as fast as I can, but the low tides will prevent any but the smallest coming ashore for some days. I am going to the Generals to know more fully what they intend to do.

I am much troubled for money, and it is very difficult to take up any upon exchange, as those who lent me 400*l.* or 500*l.* have been disappointed of their money. Unless bills are paid at sight, I cannot carry on affairs to advantage. I hope to be back to-morrow night. [1½ pages.]

July 6.

Harwich,
Noon.

21. Major N. Bourne to the Navy Commissioners. To like effect. We have no provisions here for careening the ships sent in, and what is to be had is dear, tallow being 50*s.* per cwt., pitch 30*s.*, and no tar. Let a supply be sent down, and also six pinnaces and skiffs and some masts ; and let the bills drawn on the Navy Treasurer be paid. [1 page.]

July 6.

Walderswick, near Southwold.

22. Robert Blackborne to the Admiralty Committee. As General Blake came on shore last night, I and Capt. Limbrey repaired to his quarters, where we found him in a very weak condition, full of pain, both in his head and left side, which had put him into a fever, besides the anguish he endures by the gravel, insomuch that he has no rest night or day, but continues groaning very sadly. This place affords no accommodation at all for one in his condition, there being no physician to be had hereabouts, nor any to attend him with necessary applications. Mr. Haslelock, his surgeon, is with him for the present, but expects to be called on board every hour. Should not Dr. Whistler be speeded down to him, and he removed from this place, where it is impossible he should take any rest, if he were inclined ?

In my passage between here and Woodbridge ; I met many seamen with their clothes, travelling towards London, who said they had discharges from their captains, but could not produce any. I fear the fleet's coming in will occasion the loss of many of them, and in a great measure render your care and pains in levying mariners of little or no effect. I shall repair on board the Admiral to-morrow, and acquaint General Monk with the discharges of the seamen, and pray his order of restraint to all the captains of the fleet for the future, as also a warrant to the magistrates of Woodbridge, Ipswich, Colchester, and parts adjacent, for apprehending the runaways found in their jurisdictions ; let directions be sent from you to that effect.

I hear by General Blake's nephew that there are 30 ships sent to Harwich, where Major Bourne still remains, and will have his hands full ; and there are 90 between Southwold and Dunwich. The men daily fall sick, and no less than 80 out of the Resolution, and 24 out of the Hound, besides many others to the number of 300, are sent on shore to the town of Southwold, where the straightness of quarters will yield no conveniences for their relief ; they should be removed to Ipswich and Woodbridge, and I will speak to Commissioner Pett, if he comes down, for their disposal. Their present sickness, so far as secondary causes go, is imputed to the want of fresh meat. Capt. Limbrey and Mr. Lodington have provided 20 oxen, which are killed and dressed, and will be here this evening, and 30 more will be brought from Woodbridge to-morrow ; I have quickened them therein, so that the want of it may be no prejudice to the service. 23. Capt. Thos. Trenchard, commander of the ships from Venice, to [the Admiralty Committee]. I received your commission from Capt. Jonas Poole at Venice, by order of your agent Charles Longland, and my warrant as Commander-in-Chief of the squadron taken up there for the service, and have observed the commands of Capt. Rich. Badiley, Commander-in-Chief of the squadron in the Mediterranean, and after his departure, the advice of the said Longland, by which we escaped the Holland forces, who waylaid us.

We stopped at Tunis, where Longland said we should find the Harry Bonadventure and her prize, but hearing they were kept in at Messina by Van Tromp, who expected to meet our squadron there, we sailed to Alicant, where Mr. Bence gave us notice of another squadron of the Dutch, expected from Leghorn ; so we took three pieces of brass ordnance and eight of iron, and sailed for Muttrill Road, where we fetched up the Neptune, a Hamburgher from Marseilles bound for Hamburg ; but finding by a letter to Henry Laurence in Amsterdam that she was to stop there, and deliver part of her lading, and proceed with the rest to Hamburg, as also other letters for Amsterdam, by advice of Captains Peter Whittey, Jacob Searle, Thos. Lancaster, Rob. Hutson, and Wm. Tiddeman, in our squadron, I put men on board her, and have her here in custody until your further order. I enclose the manifest of her goods on board ; although she had letters and bills of lading, I cannot find any books of freight, or those usually kept by commanders.

At the taking of her, her consort, a pink of 300 tons, got close under shore, and in the night, a Spanish brigatine towed her under Salabrina Castle, and the Governor of the town and captain of the castle promised their protection. At daybreak I sent to demand license to take our enemy, but they fired from the castle, and threatened if we came nearer, we should have more, and kept Captains Hutson and Tiddeman with their boats and men. I wrote the Governor to know the reason; he soon after came on board with others of quality, at which time I had got into the road in command of the vessel, and was glad to see them. While entertaining them, I sent Capt. Whittey and the captain of the Hamburgher to summon the Hollander to come off, or to let him know what he should trust to, although his vessel was aground, as that would not keep us from firing her, and that if he would come off, he should have fair quarter; but there being many Spaniards, soldiers, and others on board plundering, and the skipper being perplexed, he sent me word that if I would promise him his own and his men's goods, and to clear his ship and pay him his freight, when delivered, he would yield; otherwise he was resolved to blow her up, which he undoubtedly would have done, had I not sent what he required, under my hand, and that of the rest of the commanders. I also sent him our boats well manned, and though the Spaniards ashore plied their small shot like hail, and fired many great ordnance, our men brought her off. The Alcaldey and the rest were ready to tear their hair, but knew not how to help themselves. She is called the Bear's Foot, Capt. Jno. Hendrick. I enclose her manifest of loading.

The skipper's goods are not much, and all without marks. The warm weather makes the oil leak, so that I hope you will send order here for her disposal.

We stopped at Malaga to provide ourselves with water, when Wm. Lewis sent off a boat to advise us of four gallies of Genoa from Alicant, who had left the Great Boor or Commander-in-Chief of the Holland forces in the Mediterranean, with his squadron of 17 men-of-war and a quantity of merchant ships; and that he might be on his way for Malaga and Cadiz to convoy all vessels of theirs bound home, so that he cannot be long after us as the winds have been fine.

We saw some great ships, 20 leagues to the east of Cape Vincent, which we hear were French men-of-war from Toulon, bound to Bordeaux, to join with the rest of their forces. We gave chase to a Holland man-of-war, and fetched her up, but the wind and sea prevented boarding her. We fired 300 shot at her, which mostly took effect in her hull, sails, and rigging; and when it was dark, our two prizes, with the Freeman, who had received the most damage of any of our ships, were forced to clap by the lee, being leaky; but we, fearing the French might trouble them, got near them, and put more men on board. We met 10 Hamburghers, with passes from the Generals, in our soundings. There is only a Flemish vessel here with a convoy of colliers, and as there is no one here to confer with as to the disposal of the prizes, I desire directions therein. [3 pages.] Enclosing,

There were a large quantity of looking glasses imported last winter, which were disposed of by order of the Council or Navy Committee, but they came in the Great St. Mark, which among the best Italians I cannot find to signify Grimani; they were without frames, and seeing the spoil that was made of them, I sent them up to the office. There is a ship called the Green Man in the office, and if the name be mistaken for that, you shall receive a further account. This is all I can do unless I had more power. [ $\frac{3}{4}$  page.]

29. General Monck to the Admiralty Committee. Thanks for your promise of an additional supply of paper, canvas, junk, shot, cables, hawsers, and anchors. I wish they had arrived, in regard to the suddenness of our motion hence, which I hope will be to-morrow. Commissioner Pett has not yet arrived, and if he has anything to communicate, I would like to see him before our departure. The fleet will not stay for the remainder of the victuals promised by Capt. Limbrey and Mr. Lodington, who came on board yesterday, and said there would be an amendment in the quality for the future. Pray hasten down the four surgeons we wrote for.

Gen. Blake went on shore sick two days since, and as his condition is very dubious, I think Dr. Whistler's repair to him at Walderswick will be very seasonable and welcome; we have sent to the said doctor acquainting him with the disposition of our sick men in several places. The Phoenix, Elizabeth, Constant Warwick, and Satisfaction, with some more victualling ships, arrived here yesterday. One of the gentlemen from the Victualling Office ought to be here to assist. The disquiet and confusion about victuals trouble me more than all my work. Particulars of ships. If this present difference is not soon accommodated, I think this port very fit for a magazine and storehouse. Despatch would thus be given, and money saved which I see spent, to the daily trouble of my spirit. I left Mr. Pett with the fleet.

The Resolution.
Southwold
Bay.

34. General Monk to the Admiralty Committee. Although it has been rough weather, we have taken in most of our victuals, &c. except the beer, which is generally very bad. We intended to sail yesterday with the main body of the fleet towards the Holland coast, but were delayed by the arrival of an additional supply of victuals from London. I hope the victuallers will send the remainder early, and that it will answer our expectations in quantity as well as quality. Their agent, Mr. Lewis, will be able to state for how long the fleet is victualled; it should be to the last of September.

As our men fall sick daily, I desire a supply of seamen, and an order to the Mayor of Hull to receive and take care of such sick and wounded as may be sent to him from the fleet, as that will be the nearest place to send them to, during our continuance on the Dutch coast.

I enclose a list of what flag ships should be fitted out for the winter guard, and they should be ordered to be ready to come forth by the time those now out come in.

Great complaints are made by the bailiffs of Ipswich, Aldborough, Southwold, and Dunwich that they cannot get money to discharge the quarters of the sick men sent thither, whereby the inhabitants begin to be weary of them; therefore let care be taken for weekly payment of their quarters. I sent several orders to the Collectors of Prize Goods at Harwich to pay all moneys on this account, upon the certificates of the bailiffs attesting the truth of such disbursements, but do not hear one penny can be got from them; so that yesterday I was forced to engage myself to one of the captains of the fleet, who engaged himself to the bailiffs of Southwold for payment of such money as should grow due for looking after the sick men in that town. Let this be seriously weighed and timely prevented, but Commissioner Pett has promised to take care therein.

You will see by the enclosed demand what quantity of shot is necessary to complete the proportion of powder now in the fleet, which when supplied will make up but 30 rounds to each ship. Let it be speedily sent after us, as also so much powder and shot as will make up 10 rounds more, all which will be but a reasonable proportion, if we should come to an engagement. Three cwt. of twine and a supply of water should also be sent, as there are little in the fleet. [2 pages.]

35. Commissioner Peter Pett to the Admiralty Committee. I have been on board the fleet, and done my best to expedite their departure. The provisions from Chatham have arrived, but the beer is defective, and is the main want. I have ordered the victualling ships to return for more. The General will sail to-morrow, and I want to get as many of his men on board as I can. I have been to Yarmouth, and begged that a drum might be beaten, and all the men that could be found sent to the ships, and I will go on shore in the afternoon to get our men from thence by night.

The bailiffs of Yarmouth are very careful of the sick sent on shore there, far beyond other places. It is conceived a proper place for receiving such men from the fleet, as also for sending money to defray the expenses. I will take what care I can of those at other places. I audit such accounts for quarters as have been unpaid since last year, which has not a little discouraged the country. [ $1\frac{2}{3}$  pages.]

Sole Bay. sending some more beer to the fleet, as what they have is very defective, and they have only a month's beer; four or five victuallers have been ordered to Gravesend to take it in.

I have been to Yarmouth to see the sick men, and on my return will settle the business touching the sick and wounded at Sole, Ipswich, and Harwich. The officers of prize goods at Yarmouth have no money, and there is a want of it here for sick men ashore; besides the quarters of many prisoners last year yet unpaid has discouraged the country in receiving more. If there is no prize money to be got at Harwich, some must be sent from London. [1 page. Misdated June 10.]

The Resolution, in as much victuals as is thought necessary during our stay here, Southwold Bay. taking along with us what is yet remaining, to be disposed of the next opportunity, we have set sail, with the main body of the fleet, for the Holland coast, and will ply between the Fly and the Texel.
I hope the contents of yesterday's letter will not be forgotten, but speedy order given that what is mentioned therein may be forthwith provided and sent after us; and that the ships fitting out in the river and at Chatham may be hastened away, and ordered to repair to Major Bourne at Harwich, with whom we have left orders for their further direction; and in their way thither, to sail within the Sands for their better security. The Hamburg merchant, Four Sisters, and some victuallers arrived yesterday from Hull, and I understand from Major Bourne that the Newcastle and three vessels with ammunition are at Hull, which he is sending after us. [1

July 11. 40. Capt. John Taylor to the Admiralty Committee. Particulars Chatham. of ships. Most of our men work early and late to despatch the ships, but if the seamen were ordered as they should be, it might be done in half the time and at  $\frac{1}{3}$  of the charge. Although there are 140 men on a ship, none of them will help to get out the ballast or take it in, or do anything towards despatching the ships.
The plea of the men is the defective state of the victuals and beer.
They have brought me beer, bread, and butter worse than I ever saw in the dearest times. They have to take in pork salted before December or none. They drink water rather than the bad beer.
The brewer says he cannot mend, as he only has 3s. 6d. a barrel.
The men impute their sickness to the state of the victuals. The captains suggest payment to the seamen of petty warrant money, and if that was adopted, the service would be benefited, for they would then work from morning to 2 p.m. [ $1\frac{1}{2}$  page.]

England, which I hope they did before the Dutch fleet departed hence arrived. The Dutch report that they are besieged at Alicant; if it should be so, it would stand exceedingly with the honour of the State to send a squadron to relieve them. We were advised two days since that a squadron of seven Dutch men-of-war which left this port a month since were lately seen off Palermo, and that a notable fight was heard thereabouts; and that it is doubted the Harry Bonadventure and her prize have met them, having left Messina for home. We have heard of the great victory obtained over the Dutch; may the same good hand of Providence direct and guide your wisdom to improve it to the utmost, and may we here feel the effects of it, by the continuance of a good squadron in these seas to open trade, which is very necessary to the well being of a nation. It is not improbable, but the Dutch East India fleet may now fall into your hands, and in such case, this place will be a good port for sales of pepper, the proceeds whereof may either redeem captives, or furnish your ships' occasions in these seas. Declaration of Parliament. We judge it meet to undertake the great burden of the supreme government, being summoned thereto, and in order thereto, we declare ourselves to be the Parliament of the Commonwealth of England, and hope to demean ourselves for the good of all, and to be tender of the liberties of the people.

We are tender of pressing engagements upon the people, as we hope they will so deport themselves as to merit our protection. God has brought us through many troubles, and we are thankful to those who have assisted in carrying on those great works which have filled our enemies with amazement, and our friends with admiration; and although the work is not yet accomplished, we trust the dawning of the day of deliverance is come.

God's people through the world are looking for strange changes, as they were before the birth of our Lord. The records of no nation, not even the Jews, so show the actings of God as those of this nation, and our enemies themselves see the finger of God.

We trust He will not now forsake us, but complete His work. We trust not in ourselves, and should tremble at the mighty work before us, but that we look to God. We beg the prayers of His people, though we are tender of appointing days of fasting and prayer. We pray to be kept little in our own eyes, and to be faithful to His will. We wish to be instruments for promoting His Gospel, breaking oppressive yokes, and removing burdens. But whatever the Lord may please to do with us, we pray that He may raise up governors after His own heart, that the earth may be filled with His glory, swords beaten into ploughshares, and holiness to the Lord written on the bells of the horses, and that God may reign and be all in all. With order that this declaration be sent to the sheriffs of the several counties who are enjoined to disperse it. ## COUNCIL OF STATE. Day's Proceedings.

1. No persons having occasion to attend Council on any business depending there are to attend in the Horse Chamber, or in the lobby or entry leading to it. The keeper of the back door to observe this order, and to keep the said places free from all attendants.

2. Mr. Falconberg to pay to Mr. Bawn, minister at Windsor, the augmentation allowed him.

3. Mr. Strickland to present to Parliament the informations, examinations, and other papers concerning Lieut.-Col. John Lilburne and his carriage in foreign parts.

4. The trustees for sale of deans' and chapters' lands to admit Major Richard Salway to purchase with his debenture of 312*l.* 15*s.*, without doubling.

5. The Navy Commissioners to make out a bill to their treasurer for 210*l.* 19*s.* to Capt. Thos. Garret, being full payment for 41 barrels of powder and 170 iron shot, provided by him at Norwich for the use of the fleet in the late engagement.

6. The appointed Commissioners to meet the deputies from the States General of the United Provinces to-morrow at 2 p.m. in Whitehall. Fleming to give them notice. [I. 70, pp. 39, 40.]

July 12.
The Sparrow,

42. Capt. Jno. Wetwang to the Council of State. I have been to Hamburg, and delivered the packet to the Resident, and also convoyed four ships over, and brought some back, who are gone to Hull with pitch, tar, hemp, flax, and iron. I did not see any of the Holland fleet, but only a fishing buss, which I took and have brought into Hull, with two received from Capt. Brandy, commander of the Essex. He had 11 English frigates with him on the coast of Holland, but they had no intelligence of the East India fleet. When I was at Hamburg, there were several Holland ships loading a great quantity of timber, corn, and other commodities, all they could possibly get. I am on the coast waiting instructions. 43. Capt. John Wetwang to the Navy Commissioners. To like effect. When I was at Hamburg, the Hollanders were building five frigates, [and shipped all the timber and corn they could lay their hands upon for Holland by land. I shall be victualling on the coast or at Hull. I want a supply of colours, as I have none to wear but such as are not commendable. [ $\frac{3}{4}$  page.]

44. Rich. Popplet and Nich. Philips, bailiffs of Ipswich, to the Admiralty Committee. We thank you for your order for payment of the quarters of 80 sick and wounded men. We have since quartered 400 more sent by the Generals at sea, and desire directions as to the clothing of those who recover, of which there will be 100 in a few days, who are to return to the fleet, which it will be hard to persuade them to do without clothing. Let the paymaster be sent down to pay their quarters, but do not tie him to a strict rule, for some of their diseases being attended with extreme weakness, and delirium, cannot be attended without much more labour and expense than others, and the maintenance which they had in other places should not be abridged. July 12.

Harwich.

45. Major N. Bourne to the Admiralty Committee. I have dispatched several of the ships sent in from the fleet to be fitted out, but the want of victuals and beer hinders. The business here is very troublesome. It is hard to keep men close to their work when so near the shore. I have charged the captains to have a daily muster of the men, and ordered 2s. a day to be deducted from the pay of absentees, and divided amongst those giving constant attendance. The Generals write me that the fleet is under sail for the coast of Holland, where the other ships are to follow them. [1 page.]

July 12.

46. Ann Mildmay to Mr. Carew, Major Salway, and other Navy Commissioners. I beg you to consider as to settling the 500*l.* ordered by Parliament to be given to the children of Capt. Mildmay in the name of trustees for their benefit. Names have been presented, and if those are not approved, I will bring in others. Until this is done, the money is of no advantage to the State or to the children. If there is any obstacle let me know, and I will endeavour to remove it, that I may see my poor orphans provided. 3. The Whitehall Committee to provide Mr. Lucie with a convenient lodging in Somerset House.

4. Liberty given to transport 600 trees from Dort to Ostend in Dutch bottoms.

9. Mr. Moyer to represent to Parliament that Major Heane, a foreigner by birth, who performed many services in the war in Scotland, is skilled in fortifying and other engineering, of eminent godliness and undoubted affection to the Commonwealth; and to petition Parliament, in consideration of these services, to settle lands value of 100*l.* a year in Scotland on him and his heirs, to encourage him and his family to settle in this nation.

10. 47. The Admiralty Committee to appoint some fit vessel to be a convoy for the ordnance and other provision ships bound for Inverness.

11. To signify to the Portuguese Ambassador that the Nonsuch, now ready at the Gallions in the Thames, is appointed to transport him to Portugal, with his retinue and baggage.

48. General Monck to the Admiralty Committee. We are endeavouring, wind and weather permitting, to stand over for the Texel, desiring to wait upon that good hand of Providence which has hitherto gone along with us, and which I hope we shall find still accompanying us. We are not much to the northward of Southwold at present, though out of sight of land, the wind being N.E. by N. The Laurel has just come to us with three prizes, one being a small hoy laden with sugar, spice, rasins, &c.; and as they are all very useful for our sick men, I have taken her along with us. The others, laden with French wine, brandy, iron, and anchors, I have sent to the Collectors of Prize Goods at Harwich. Enclosed is an account of powder, shot, and cordage which is lately come to us. Let all expedition be used to get out the frigates now building by the time the great ships come in, for they will be the only ships in the winter time. [1 page.]

49. Geo. Kendall to the Admiralty Committee. I am fitting out the four prizes, and recommend Benj. Michell as boatswain of the Rosebush. I must present the cry of some poor, oppressed people for justice and mercy.

1. The complaints of the seamen for the withholding of their wages, earned at hazard of their lives, is almost unbearable; and their wives and children suffer many hardships thereby.

2. The violent pressing and carrying away of poor men whose wages are so stopped.

3. The bad provision made for them at sea, whereby many of them have to feed upon unwholesome and stinking victuals, which brings sickness and death. Will not their blood be required at the hands of those who undertake the victualling for gain, though they are in favour, and appear godly and honest? Let the wages be paid without stop or diminution, that their families may not perish during their absence, and let their diet be good and wholesome, and they will serve willingly, and you will not have to use compulsion, which breeds much heart-burning between seamen and soldiers. 50. Capt. Thos. Sperling to the Admiralty Committee. I have often written to the Council of State, telling them of my being here in performance of their orders, and of my waiting their orders, and also naming several obstructions to the service, but I have not yet received any order or reply. Did I not know their multiplicity of business, I could only conclude that they consider me a person whose lines were not worth noticing. I was much startled by an order I received from them, when in obedience to the General's order, I was acting as Commander-in-Chief of the Irish squadron, that I should be called off to attend a service for which my ship was the least capable, when other ships lie in harbour without whose assistance the end proposed cannot be answered. It is time the Generals ordered me to call the Nightingale, Hopewell, and Lily to my aid; but one is in Portsmouth, another in Plymouth on business, and cannot come, and I know not where the other is. Meantime vessels are daily surprised and plundered by pirates. I believe the captain of the Hopewell pink cannot give an account of eight days' service at sea since he victualled, or the Lily so many since her fitting out. The State is at great charge in fitting out ships, and reaps little benefit. I am ashamed to bear the name of a servant to my country, and not to be able to answer the ends for which I am appointed.

On the 12th, at 4 a.m., I met two freebooters, and had them between me and the shore, so that they could not have escaped, had I had one small vessel with me; but as they sailed quicker than I, they got away, though I chased them 17 hours, till I lost sight of them in the night. [2½ pages.]

July 14. Commissioners last Tuesday, and they promised to gain your further explanation. We also desired them to ascertain what quantity of strong beer and water we should send to the fleet, so that we might contract for the same, and upon what account; if upon a new proposal, we desired a contract; and if in lieu of sea beer, then we desired that for of 3 tuns of sea beer, 2 tuns of strong beer, and 1 tun of water should be accepted, and the respective stewards ordered to give us receipts accordingly, whereby the State would be no further charged, nor our accounts disturbed by this extraordinary supply. Without this we know not how to proceed, for the order sent us rather imports a supply by way of commission than by contract.

Upon discourse with the brewers, we find some of them think this way of supply may be as uncertain as the former, and in practice we find those that go on brewing sea beer for us will not brew this strong beer; but certainly the extraordinary strength of one ingredient should prevail over the deficiency of the other. However, we shall proceed as you direct, and meantime lose no opportunity of sending beer to the fleet, having now 600 tuns going, which, with the 530 tuns of water last sent, and with what is now with the fleet, we hope may supply them to the last of August, and we intend sending 500 tuns more each week, to be expended as it comes; it will not decay, when it does not lie above three weeks on board.

We intreat you to write the Generals that, as any ships arrive with beer, what is good be presently spent in the fleet, and the old beer that is good and now in the fleet reserved for the last spending, it being past hazard; and so by sending a constant supply with fresh water, the fleet may be kept in good condition, notwithstanding the unseasonableness of the present season.

We hear there are some vessels with wine at Harwich sent in as prize; if it were sent to the fleet to make beverage, it would be of more value to the State than bringing it to the Prize Office, all waste and deductions considered. [1½ pages.] Enclosing,

54. 1. Note that as to supplying the fleet of 16,000 men with beer to the end of October, being 83 days from the 9th inst, it is estimated there are 21 days' good beer in the fleet; and to supply the rest, the victuallers propose to send two ships of strong beer at 46s. per hogshead, and one third of water with all expedition, which will be 2,756 hogsheads beer, and 1,377 hogsheads of water.

The beverage, if to be had, will cost 68s. per hogshead, the allowance of water therewith considered. To furnish water with money will not content the seamen, and the service thereby will be uncertain, as water itself will for sometime stink, and afterwards come to itself again.

If the victuallers be required to manage the first proposal, they desire a surveyor may be ordered to examine the quality of the beer, that it be answerable to the price offered, the victuallers notwithstanding being obliged to its warranty for four months after delivery. [¾ page.]

According to orders from Generals Monck and Blake, and Commissioner Pett, we have provided for 600 sick and wounded sent on shore by the Generals of the fleet, at a cost of 30*l.* or 40*l.* a day ; having disbursed 200*l.* of our own money, and not being further able to satisfy the people quartering the men, we beg an order to draw a bill for 500*l.* upon Edw. Nevill, of Beccles, co. 56. Capt. Roger Marten to Generals Blake and Monck. I received your instructions, and since then an express from the Council of State, to go westward with the ships to look for our East Indiamen. The Smyrna Merchant, having arrived at Falmouth, was engaged by two Dutch pirates. If we can meet with the rest, we are to convoy them to Portsmouth. The Perrell has arrived ; I cannot hear of the rest of their squadron, but the old Warwick is to the west. We shall lie off the Lizard, where the rest of our consorts may find me. I suppose you heard of the damage done to the Bristol going out of Portsmouth, and that we were forced to take out all her victuals, ballast, and beer ; of beer there were 86 tuns, but only 23 fit to drink, and I fear that will stink before we shall drink it. Ipswich.

58. Commissioner Peter Pett to the Admiralty Committee. I send a list of ships undergoing repair at Harwich. Capt. Stokes of the Laurel brought in two prizes, and a third was left with the fleet, laden with sugar and spice, which will be a very great relief to the sick men. I want an order to send the prize with iron to Chatham, and will direct the Henrietta to convoy her up; the others should be sold. I have taken all the care I can for the sick and wounded, but I can get no money from the Prize Goods' Commissioners at Harwich or Yarmouth, for the prizes have not been adjudicated and sold, and the goods are spoiling.

I agreed with General Monck to hasten away all the State's ships and frigates in the Thames and Medway, if even half manned, and complete their number on the other side out of merchantmen. There will be 100 convalescents at Ipswich fit to be sent to the fleet shortly. [1½ pages.]

59. Major N. Bourne to the Navy Commissioners. The provisions of stores loading at London will be very acceptable, as they are dear here. The Laurel took four prizes on the Holland coast, and has brought in two. I want orders for their sale, as they will waste or be squandered. I want money, having had to supply surgeons who have been out seven or eight months, and others for the sick and wounded. I hear by the Nonsuch, who has come in with a Danish prize with deals, that our fleet was off Lowestoft, plying towards the Holland coast. Particulars of ships repairing. There will be continual intercourse between the fleet and this port, as long as this work lasts. If it were to last much longer, I should want help. No small matter of money will carry on the matter of repairing and paying so many ships. I had the beginning of an ugly mutiny here on Tuesday, by drunken sailors who resisted the soldiers, but having secured some, and sent them to the Generals, and given strict orders to restrain the alehouses, our work has since gone on quietly. July 15.
Harwich,

60. Major N. Bourne to the Admiralty Committee. I send this by a messenger who brings a packet to Lord General Cromwell. Upwards of 30 ships have been tallowed and refitted at this port, and several named are nearly ready to sail. There has been some disturbance in the town by a number of drunken seamen whom I ordered on board, and when they would not go, sent for some soldiers, and ordered two of them to the mainguard. They would not go; 20 or 30 more came in, and were so violent and mutinous that some of them were wounded; but after securing two or three of them, threatening the inhabitants for harbouring them, and ordering all on board their ships, the place was quiet. Next day the Mayor and I sought for the men, found three whom we sent prisoners to the Generals, and fined each house that harboured them 10s. I have ordered a strict muster to be made on board daily, and a fine of 2s. to be laid upon every man absent, and divided amongst those on board.

The Laurel has brought in two Dutch prizes with wine and iron, and the Nonsuch a Dane with deals, &c., taken by the Sussex; the wine should be sold, and the Collectors for Prize Goods pay the money for the sick and wounded here. The Generals were 16 leagues off Lowestoft yesterday. I want money to discharge bills. [2 pages.]

The Little President, off the Lizard.

62. Capt. Thos. Sparling to the Admiralty Committee. After my long lying here alone, on the 13th the Hopewell pink has joined me, and I will use this addition of strength to the best advantage. I have seen several small pirates, but at such disadvantage that we have not been able to do any good, only we have retaken two barks with coals. It is high time the two frigates appointed by the Generals arrived, as there are several freebooters newly come upon the coast carrying from 14 to 24 guns, besides the small vessels out of Brest, and there are four Dutch ships lying off Scilly to intercept our East Indiamen daily expected in the channel. I wish I were in a capacity to act; the Generals' warrant to call ships to my assistance will not do the work unless I could tell where to find them. I am in some hopes of the Lily's company, but the Nightingale is in Ireland, where it is impossible for me to send for her. [ $1\frac{3}{4}$  pages.]

63. Charles Longland to the Admiralty Committee. As I am unfortunately half owner of the Mary Rose, one of the ships taken up here for the service, and now arrived home, and as she suffered much by the late encounter with the Dutch before Porto Longone, and the present war renders her useless for the merchant's service, I desire she may be continued in that of the State, at the same pay you give to others.

She is a stout ship of 400 tons, and can carry 40 pieces of ordnance, and you may appoint what captain or commander you please. [ $\frac{3}{4}$  page.]

64. Petition of Thos. Corbitt, governor, and Rob. Whitlock, and Fras. Asty, assistants of the Merchant Adventurers, on behalf of themselves and other Eastland merchants, to the Council of State, for a convoy for their ships to Hamburg. By the injurious dealing of the King of Denmark, they have been deprived of all trade through the Sound, and are necessitated at very great charge and trouble to find a conveyance of their goods for the East country by way of Hamburg, bringing back goods necessary for navigation. They have now several ships laden with cloth and other English manufactures, ready to go in company with others designed for Hamburg by the Merchant Adventurers. [3 page.]

2. Capt. Falconbridge to pay to Mr. Resbury, minister of Oundle, Northamptonshire, the arrears of 50*l.* a year granted by the late Committee for Plundered Ministers out of the tenths and first fruits, notwithstanding the late order of restraint.

4. 65. Liberty to be given to the owners of the ships newly arrived from Venice to let them out, the Admiralty Commissioners having first taken out of them 300 able seamen such as they shall choose. [I. 70, pp. 61, 62.]

66. Matthew Cozen to the President of the Council of State. I have examined the matter contained in the petition of Capt. Reave Williams, and find that the Helena, commanded by him as a private man-of war, by virtue of letters of reprisal granted against the French, Dutch, and other enemies, captured the White Calf laden with ballast and some money, the World laden with money, wool, and iron, and the Black Rutter with the same lading; also that there were altogether 34 bags of louis, French coin, and pieces of eight, and 13 of such bags being sent on shore, I secured them on behalf of the proprietors, and in them 8,385 louis and 450 pieces of eight. There were also six other bags containing 2,709 louis and 718 pieces of eight, which were embezzled by Capt. William Wheatley, commander, and conveyed by him to the house of Rich. Lobb. I have also secured 60*l.* more, being some of the coins embezzled by two seamen of said frigate, which, upon a search, were seized and delivered over to Capt. Williams, who will be accountable for them.

VOL. XXXVIII.

I also find that three other bags of louis were also embezzled by Capt. Wm. Wheatly and delivered to Lieut. Geo. Wyatt of this garrison, which I have desired him to restore; but he affirms he has disposed of them for 536*l.*, of which sum he has given Capt. Wheatley a bill of exchange for 200*l.*, but has since written to withdraw it. He also affirms he paid 212*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* by Capt. Wheatley's order, to several persons, and that 123*l.* 19*s.* 6*d.* is in hand, which he promises to deliver to me; upon his doing so, I will return him the receipt he gave Wheatley for it.

I also find that Lieut. Geo. Wyatt has 300 pieces of louis, delivered him by John Lee, a boy belonging to the frigate, and for which he alleges he and John Chapman gave a bill to the boy, and as he refused to deliver it up without the bill returned, I secured him. Captain Wheatley has embezzled three other bags of the money, and conveyed them to the house of John Clemes, one of which was redelivered him at the house of John Alkins, of Flushing, and the other two have been delivered by Wheatley's orders to Samuel Lumly of Penryn. As Wheatley was charged with receiving 34 bags of money into the frigate, and denied that he received more than 29, I secured him. I have discovered that Ben. Serjeant, the master, has also embezzled four bags of louis, which he conveyed to the house of Christ. Lee of Smithrick, who delivered them back to Serjeant, and he exchanged 1,000 of them at 4*s.* a piece with Ussala, wife of Hen. Spurr of Penryn, and the other bag he gave to Wheatley. As Serjeant also refused to deliver them up, I secured him. Fifty other louis were given to Edw. Pearce, a soldier of this garrison, by some seamen of the frigate, and as he declined to deliver them, I secured him also. I find that more money was embezzled by Fras. Maycock, one of the company, who fled with it, but has since been apprehended at Bristol. [3 pages.]

67. William Rausse to the Navy Commissioners. I have arrived from the coast of Ireland with four prizes, being Dutch fishermen, a pink from France, and a hoy from Amsterdam, and have been desired by the Generals to deliver them to the Prize Collectors at Hull. There are 40 sail of Dutch men-of-war at the Fly and Texel, and 60 sail of merchantmen, whose men are taken for the men-of-war, and they are laid up for the present. I will return to the Fly, where I expect to meet Capt. Branley of the Essex. [1 page.]

73. Major N. Bourne to the Admiralty Committee. Particulars of the sailing and condition of ships. Harwich is undesirable for the sick and wounded, from its nastiness and great resort for people. When the cleaning of the fleet is completed, I shall be glad to remove. The Diamond has arrived, and reports that several others are coming in from the fleet; there are great complaints for want of men. I think the men out of the two merchant ships disposed of to other ships would more strengthen the fleet than those two ships, as there are so many. [1 page.]

74. P. Beel to the Navy Commissioners. I have received your letter, grounded on a paper delivered to you by Mr. Willoughby, wherein I requested many things pertinent to the service, and the comfortable acting of myself or any other in the place of clerk of the survey; but I find the contrary endeavoured, by embracing of scandalous and false accusations, which I had thought, considering my own innocence, could never have been preferred, much less received against me. The examination on malice and envy's information has not given satisfaction, notwithstanding the oaths of sufficient witnesses, by which it appears that neither I nor any by my connivance had any intent to prejudice the State, but to perpetuate the discharge of our trusts; but I presume it is not so much my occasions as my person that is distasted, for my actings have been such as I valued not who overlooked me, well knowing that I must one day be called to a stricter account than lies in the power of man to do.

I have been bred these 17 years in the navy, and am more perfect in that than any other, though it never yet lent me a livelihood, and had I not had somewhat of my own, you might have been induced to believe some clandestine workings, but I wish you were as free from that sense as I am from the sin which Col. Willoughby finding, caused the wages of the suspected officers to be paid, and Capt. Moulton, on examination, found it savour more of malice to me than affection to the service; but they are dead, and the fomenters of this evil still in being, and adhered to for such information's sake, and not for their service, which I am bold to say they are not capable of. You well know how tender the reputation of a man is, and whosoever blemishes or detracts from it commits murder in a second degree, and strikes at the very life, by abstracting that which should sustain it; therefore, I hope you will be as easily induced to pardon my boldness as you were to believe the false aspersion cast upon me. Other matter of vindication I have not, but shall leave that to God, who is a friend to the friendless and a vindicator of the wronged, hoping that He may put into your hearts to be ministerial herein, and to grant my reasonable requests presented in my late paper. 75. Charles Longland to the Admiralty Committee. Young Tromp and his squadron returned into this port two days since, and verified what I suspected as to the taking of the Harry Bonadventure and her prize, whom they chased into Trapani, a port on the island of Sicily, where she thought herself safe under the King of Spain's castle, having the captain's promise for their defence; but whether he was partial therein, or knew no better how to manage his guns, the Dutch did not forbear assaulting our ships until they became masters of both, and brought them here with great triumph. How long we shall have their company here we know not, but the general report here is that the Leopard and a dozen ships more must stay in these seas, and the rest, being about 20 ships of war, must go home. Our Venice ships left Alicant the 4th of June, and I hope ere this they have arrived safely. With copy of his letter of 11 July. [2 pages.]

I perceive you have been at much pains to transcribe out of the Frankfort catalogue divers books you desire, and am sorry I cannot send them; but it is a very usual thing for the booksellers of Germany to send the titles of their books to be put in the catalogue before they are printed, so that at present they are not to be had. I now send you Altorfij Harmonia, 12*s.*; Grotius de Imperio, 3*s.*; and the French Gazettes, 1*s.*; and by the next carrier will forward the following, which I could not get bound in time:—Geterus in Proverbia et Ecclesiasten: Casulanus de Lingua, Shickardi Horologium, and Johnstoni, Historia Naturalis de Insectis et Serpentinibus, fol., which are all I have of your notes, except Zwelferi Animadversiones, which is the same you have in octavo, and Langius de Annis Christi, which is an old book, printed in Holland five years since, which I think you have seen. We have a book entitled Bibliotheca Portabilis, sive totius Theologiæ Nucleus et Systema Integrum q<sup>o</sup>. 1653, 3 vols., which sells exceedingly well, and is much esteemed. Damaged. 80. General Monck to the Admiralty Committee. As to the victuallers' proposition in relation to beer for the fleet, I think if a competent proportion could be sent us, it would give the best content, provided it were good; if not, then your order that the victuallers provide a quantity of beer at 46*s.* a ton and  $\frac{1}{2}$  of water, will be the next way. Let it be hastened to us, special care being taken that the goodness answers the price. I wish the twine were here, there being little or none in the fleet, although the Ordnance officers inform you a quantity has been sent. I have given you an account of the receipt of the shot, but unless the remainder demanded is supplied, it will not make up our wants, whatever may be suggested to the contrary.

As to the bills of the bailiffs of Aldborough, Dunwich, &c., for money disbursed for sick and wounded, I am glad you have ordered the Commissioners and Treasurer of the Navy to pay them, although it would be better that they should be paid in their jurisdictions, for the bailiffs are not men of ability to forbear their money until it is returned from London. For the better effecting thereof, I have sent in several prizes to Harwich, so that they may be paid out of the money arising therefrom. I approve of Yarmouth as a place for sick and wounded men, and Hull another, yet both of them will be little enough that neither be burdened.

I earnestly desire that the flag ships for the winter guard may be got ready by the time the great ships come in, although the fitting out of prizes and other ships in the river and Chatham have been some hindrance; for if the Dutch do not fight us, or peace be not concluded between this and winter, we shall be forced to send in our great ships, which cannot well be fitted out before the spring, and if they could, will not be fit to keep the seas at that season of the year; if so, the want of those new frigates will cause it to go harder with us than is supposed.

The Nonsuch will be as useful as a convoy to the Portuguese Ambassador as the Phoenix, being as good a sailer. Another ship or two should be added to the Bristol as a convoy to the Love and other East India ships at Falmouth, bound homewards, in regard of your intelligence by the Pearl that there are some Dutch men-of-war near Cadiz. I wish we could spare three or four frigates to scour the coast thereabouts, but hope those ships designed for that station will serve the turn.

As to the Dutch Straits' ships which you hear are on their way home, all endeavours here shall be used to intercept them, in case they do not go into France, but come directly home; if otherwise I desire timely advertisement, and I hope there will be nothing wanting to answer your expectations, so far as the Lord shall enable us.

I hope the prizes and other ships fitting out by you are on their way towards us. It is strange that 20 ships should be so long fitting out from Chatham, Deptford, and Woolwich, where there are so many docks and instruments to give despatch, when there have been 22 or more fitted out from Harwich in half the time by Major Bourne, whose extraordinary care and diligence herein is worthy your knowledge. There are several honest and valiant commanders in the fleet whom I have recommended to you for removal into the great frigates now building, next to the flag ships, of whom I hope you are not forgetful, for it will be a great discouragement to them for those who were never in the service to be preferred before them; I beg to include Capt. Stoakes of the Laurel amongst them.

We are now near the Texel, where I hope we shall find the same presence of the Lord accompanying us as hitherto; we desire to receive wisdom and council from Him for the well ordering and managing the great affairs now in hand, that the issue thereof may be for His glory as well as our comfort.

P.S.—I have appointed Mr. Hodges, gunner of the Laurel, to the Fairfax, in the room of his father, now in the James; there are also several inferior officers in the fleet, who have carried themselves very well in all the engagements. I desire they may be preferred to those new frigates. Do not forget to send us a considerable quantity of water to dress our victuals with; if Boatswain Hancraft, now of the Sovereign, be made master of attendance [at Chatham] in Mr. Rabnet's stead, confer his place upon Seavern, the boatswain of the Andrew. 81. John Poortmans to Robert Blackborne. All that fear the Lord here are in much expectation what will be done by the new representatives; and they have our prayers that God will direct them to do that which may be most for his glory and the good of the Commonwealth, and that they may not tread in the steps of those who have gone before them, but that our Lord Jesus may be the foundation stone in all their actions and consultations, and that the superstructure may be answerable to such a foundation; if so, great will be the day of the Lord with us.

Thanks for your news, both in print as otherwise, but it hardly satisfies our gaping expectations. The goodness of the Lord still follows us, and although we have much blowing weather, yet we continue in the face of our enemies with little loss. The Princess Mary has lost her bowsprit and head, so must be sent in. The enemy have hardly a peeping hole, for our small vessels and frigates keep so near to the shore that their galliots for intelligence can hardly pass us, and many of them are forced in as soon as they come out, which they are resolved not to endure, but will fight us again, having prepared 150 sail of ships to that purpose. We were in hopes to have heard how the treaty with the Dutch, on which you are very silent, goes on; but surely if they stand it out with proud hearts and stiff necks, God will let them see that they are but men.

P.S.—A Dutch freebooter of 70 men and seven guns has been taken by the Phoenix, and the men are sent to Colchester prison on suspicion, by Major Bourne. [ $1\frac{3}{4}$  pages. Partly in shorthand.]

82. Major N. Bourne to the Navy Commissioners. I understand the ship laden by you with provisions is intended for the fleet; and I hear of nothing intended for Harwich, so we must shuffle on the best way we can, but it will create much disquiet and damage the service. The Crescent has come in wanting provisions, although she has been long in the river. I have discharged several victualling ships mentioned. Mr. Lewis is coming to town, but if any more ships are sent in, some one else must be sent down. I am sorry for your difficulties, and wish none I love to experience such as I have found in this place. [1 page.]

83. Major N. Bourne to the Admiralty Committee. I have despatched several of the ships which came in from the fleet for repairs, but the great obstruction is the want of beer. Particulars of ships. I will go to Southwold and Yarmouth, and send the recovered men to the fleet. The Phoenix has come in, with a Dutch man-of-war which she took off the Holland coast, with 70 men and six guns; she had sunk or burnt a collier, and can give no good account of the men; as I think these different from ordinary prisoners, I have secured most of the crew, and will send them under a guard to Colchester Castle. I have been to see the sick and wounded men at Ipswich, and as the bailiffs have promised to send those who have recovered to Harwich, I will ship them on board the Phoenix, to be transmitted to the fleet. I think the salt and wine prizes should be disposed of. [1 page.]

84. Charles Longland to Robert Blackborne. I have received your and Wm. Allen's letter, both tending to the redemption of Mathew Holt, now in captivity at Tripoly, but there seldom being any ships for that place, it being no town for trade (but only for thieving) I could not find any opportunity of writing thither. I have, however, lately given order to a Jew, that if his redemption could be obtained for 320 dollars, and he put on board a ship and got clear from the country, I would pay that amount on his arrival here, with 20 per cent. exchange; for which consideration the Jew runs adventure of the money hither, in the nature of assurance; but if Holt should die by the way, or make his escape at some port, the Jew runs no such adventure, but I am bound notwithstanding to pay the money here. This course I have taken, as I do for others, in regard your former order bid me draw the money upon his arrival here; but if you had ordered the money to have been sent over, this exchange of 20 per cent. had been saved. I hope in two months to hear something from thence.

I am thankful for your advice of the progress of our fleet before Holland, and of the arrival of their Ambassadors in England, and hope that if the State concludes a peace, it will be upon advantageous terms, or at least that they [the Dutch] never join with a foreign enemy against England. I confess if we had the cautionary towns it would bridle them; their malice against England has been sufficiently expressed in these wars, and more in words than in actions, which sufficiently declares it to be sheer malice; but as God has hitherto frustrated all their devices, so I hope He will do the like for the future, and I hope there will be a time when the authors of our sufferings in this port are called to account, notwithstanding the great distance.

You have doubtless heard how the Harry Bonadventure and her prize were taken, about 20 days' since, from under Trapana, a castle of the King of Spain's in Sicily, where they had fled for succour, and were promised it, but were notwithstanding taken by the enemy. They may pretend that the castle shot in their defence, but to no purpose. If the State resent this to the Spanish Ambassador, I see no reason but that His Majesty is bound to make good what insolencies are committed in his port. It is more than doubted that the captain of the castle sold these two ships to the Dutch, or else the Dutch themselves are liars. The Harry's prize was worth 20,000*l.* The Dutch ships now in port are going for Holland, and will touch at Cadiz by the way, so that if the Spanish Ambassador, upon the State's resentment of this action, should despatch a post to His Majesty, he might find those ships there, or at least young Tromp the actor, and order restitution. [July 22.] 86. Petition of Jonathan Randall to the Navy Commissioners. Has attended them, almost to his ruin, for a sentence on the difference between him and his captain, and begs a speedy end. Begs them to peruse the examinations of the Truelove's company, and his proof of the captain's counterfeiting men's hands to his articles, and to end the business; but if this cannot be, begs a copy of the examinations and articles, that he may seek redress some other way. The Resolution, off the Texel.

89. General Monck to the Admiralty Committee. We have had much contrary wind since leaving Southwold Bay, and been forced to anchor upon the leeward tides, and now intend plying about the Texel, to hinder the enemy's conjunction. Some of our ships are in great want of seamen, occasioned by many falling sick, who were put on shore while in Southwold Bay. Send us 400 seamen, if they can be had; and if not, then as many able soldiers, to be put on board the ships now coming out of the river, and sent to the fleet with expedition. Let them bring clothes, or they will occasion much sickness amongst us, as we have found by experience. Let those left sick at Ipswich, Harwich, and other places, on their recovery, be ordered to the fleet, there being many able seamen amongst them. I have written Major Bourne about it, but your order will make it more effectual.

As to the beer and water demanded to complete the fleet to October, it has since been thought fit, with advice of the flag officers, that  $\frac{3}{4}$  should be beer, and the rest water; order it accordingly that it may be sent away as soon as possible. 92. Charles Longland to the Admiralty Committee. 20 of the English captives in the Harry Bonadventure have made their escape from the Dutch, and having come to me for sustenance, I have been necessitated to allow it. Some of them were formerly taken in the Leopard, whom I sent to Messina to furnish the Harry, and some others wounded; all must be relieved until some means may be had to carry them to their country, and they must not now be neglected, as the State has occasion for their services. The Dutch are still here, but intend sailing for Cadiz, where the Spaniard may repair the dishonour done his port by seizing on the Harry and her prize, if the Ambassador be urged thereto by the State at home. We have the unhappy memory of the reprisal of the Phoenix in this road, out of the reach of any gun ashore, and for aught I know, without any promise of protection from this prince, though the contrary without any reason be pretended, they (the Dutch) being the besiegers; yet you know how dear it cost the State by the thrusting out of those ships into the enemy's mouth that before were taken into protection. You have much more reason to demand reparation of the King of Spain for what he took into his protection, especially when your enemies are to pay the loss.

I understand the Dutch have sent Commissioners to England to treat for a peace; if it succeeds, I hope you know where to be paid the large expenses of your ships in these parts, whereof you have had a particular account from me. With copy of his letter of 18 July 1653. [2 pages.]

93. ——— to ———. Our divisions in every town increase, and the common people are not able, through want of trade, to hold longer, which makes them generally ready to rise against the Lords, who are forced to use double diligence for their own safety, which is looked upon as tyranny, and truly their condition is sad.

VOL. XXXVIII.

Letters from their Ambassadors speak little hopes of any agreement with you, and say that the loss of another fleet could not render them in a worse condition than England looks upon them now to be, nor would it be then worse as to a treaty, and that no better way could be thought on than to provide and get forth their fleet. They likewise say that you have made no secret agreement with the Swede, but that you make slight of all friendship, and carry things contrary to all State policy, and that it could not hold out; that your people are all disobliged, no care taken for the increase of trade, or giving satisfaction to the people in anything, and that a little rub at sea would render you in a sad condition. This was the postscript, that if the sad condition of Bordeaux, whose relief Cromwell did affect, would not cause him to make a peace, if it should be taken, he would more violently prosecute this war, and nothing that could be devised would take him off but the enslaving of them.

All care is taken in our several councils for securing ourselves, and we seem resolved for the war, as long as we have any hopes, or can make any resistance. We are securing Helford and Goree, and every creek where we think you may hurt us is looked after. The necessity of a Stadtholder is set forth, and I am confident will be taken on, with all other interests whatsoever that can animate the business, whereby we hope to cement all our own broils within, and to withstand you, hoping that your own troubles within, and the charge of your war, will force you to retire, and come off on better terms, which we would willingly embrace, because necessity forces us to it.

The Swede's besieging Bremen startles us much, we fearing what place she will attempt next; and though our Ambassadors write that the Swedes and you are not agreed, yet we believe the contrary. The Dane is fearfully put to his trumps; they were alarmed that your fleet was coming that way, and the country people fled, and carried their goods towards Lubec. It is written by good hands, that should your fleet but come on there, his great ships, for all their vapours, would hardly resist you, they being possessed with a slavish, guilty fear. Indeed the Hamburgers are your greatest enemies privately, and prejudice you many ways. Necessity will force you to lay hold on that place that has been spoken of so much, whereby you may not only curb them, but utterly ruin the Dane.

All care is taken for the setting forth of our fleet, and to have them well manned, and they will want no necessaries of war. There are 800 soldiers sent from the Brill, and other parts, to Tromp, with more fireworks and engines of war, and they have some 16 fire-ships there; the management of this fleet is solely left to the Admiralty, and their great care is how they may join their fleets. Tromp with Enertsen will first engage your fleet, so that De Witt may come forth, who will ride ready at the Texel. When they are all together, they will be 125 sail, but the best ships are in the Texel, without which there is no hope of effecting anything. If you order your fleet so that De Witt may not come forth, you will keep them from joining, and do whatever we can, we are not able long to hold out.

Our trade is nearly gone, and our banks begin to look blank, and lose their credit every day, and cannot hold out long. Our East India actions fall to nothing, and there is no encouragement and great want of money, and were it not for contrary interests that help to manage this war, they would have wanted ere this. There is nothing to raise money upon. The farmers of excise or factors, from whom most of their money comes, break every day. I am confident the design I wrote you in my last will take, so give timely notice to your fleet. They had been out, had it not been for some ships of Enertsen's that wanted men; they are now furnished, though not well. Tromp has 78 men-of-war, some of them are slight, and others are fire-ships and little things, but they are the best they can make, and indeed are all. They are confident that the Emperor will work wonders with the Danish King, whom heaven has designed in all likelihood to fall with these. If art and promises can take off the Swede, it will be used.

Expect our fleet out with the first; they in the Texel have orders to be ready. Our counsels in general seem to be willing for a peace with you, but rather than it should be on low base terms, they will venture all. They privately complain of some friends, who, they believed, had more power and influence than they have. The King is assured from hence that, when their Ambassadors come away, he will be sent for. He is sending instructions to England, Ireland, and Scotland, and Lord Inchiquin has a design now ripe in the province of Munster. Let the Lord General take notice that, when all interests are ripe with you, this life will be attempted, which done, they do not fear to carry their business, which is the design of all interests at last. I am privately assured there is one will act when time serves, but the King's interest must be first taken on here, and thereby the cause made irreconcilable.

We permit 10 ships to go hence for the relief of Bordeaux forthwith, the Spaniard having sent them considerable naval aid already, but the Duke of Vendome (that King's admiral) with Sir Geo. mass chapel at Somerset House, Strand, and has done so there and elsewhere several Sundays of late. She claps her Bible and thumps the pulpit cushion with almost as much confidence (I should have said impudence) as honest Hugh Peters himself.

The Dutch East India fleet of 18 sail has returned, and is safely harboured in one of the French ports; they are making all the strength they possibly can to get safe home, which they much fear, and that makes their agents here more pliable to us in our demands than they would be; it was observed last Wednesday that they made more close addresses to our Council of State than of late, and have daily consultations, with so much secrecy that John Thurloe, the Council's clerk, is not privy thereto, nor records anything, and it is said their compliance is far advanced already.

The matter of tithes which has taken up so much debate, in the close, amounts to thus much; that as touching impropriations, they will not meddle with them at all; and for the tithes themselves, they are referred to one of the eleven Committees newly established. The Resolution, off the Texel.

98. General George Monck to the [Admiralty Commissioners]. The several vessels with beer, water, and victuals have not yet arrived; I wish they had, as the complaints for beer are daily renewed. As to the 300 tuns which the victuallers promise to supply weekly, I think the service will suffer more thereby than we are aware of, for it is not to be expected the fleet should continue in one place, when we only attend the motion of the enemy. Let not the victuallers be suffered to furnish us with what they please, and at their own time, but let the full proportion yet unsupplied be forthwith provided and sent us, and let the goodness answer the quantity, which hitherto has not been.

The quantity of water provided and providing will complete us to the time of our victualling, but that desired 14 days ago has not yet been sent; I fear that when the service calls us off from this place, the want of water and beer will be the only obstacle. The butter and cheese have arrived, and Mr. Gauden's man to look after the distribution, which is very welcome and seasonable. I enclose account of munition received, and desire some round shot, paper, junk, and candles.

The 12 ships in the Hope will be very useful. I wish they and the 250 men from the West were with us. I am sorry the new frigates will not be ready by the winter, as the enemy will have a great advantage at that season, and for ought I know, will thereby be masters of the seas for a time. Do not forget a supply of seamen, if they are to be had, or else 400 able soldiers. I wish the Council of State had given a positive order about the powder and masts at Hamburg, but I have despatched a small vessel with a messenger to the Resident there, desiring him to ship them by the time our cloth ships arrive there. I intend to send three frigates as a convoy, who will bring the powder and masts. I enclose a list of the fleet before the Texel; there are 30 sail of Dutch riding in sight of us, and endeavouring a conjunction with those in the Welling, which we shall endeavour to prevent. Navy Office.

99. Navy Commissioners to the Admiralty Committee. We have considered your order, and return what we apprehend may be advantageous for reformation of the remissness of the commanders, officers, and others, in not attending their duty on board their respective ships while in the river or port.

VOL. XXXVIII.

First, it should be declared to all commanders in the service, and required as their duty, that when any of their ships come in to wash, tallow, and refit, they continuing under sea pay, they give their constant attendance on board, and never be absent above six hours together without express leave from the Admiralty or Navy Commissioners, and then take special care that during their absence the lieutenant and master continue on board, to see all work carried on, under the following penalties; viz., for the first offence, to lose a month's pay; for the second, three months' pay; and for the third, to be cashiered the service.

That no lieutenant or master absent themselves from their ships above six hours without special leave from the commander; and provision be made that during the absence of the lieutenant, the captain and master be always on board, and during the absence of the master, the captain and lieutenant.

That no under officer, as clerk of the check, steward, boatswain, gunner, or carpenter, absent themselves without leave from the captain, lieutenant, or master, unless necessitated to look after supplies, or on other emergencies in reference to the ship, and then to provide that their respective mates be always on board, upon the like penalty as before.

That no mariner absent himself without express leave of the commander, under penalty of losing a month's pay for every offence.

And because the life of any law consists in its execution, we judge fit that the clerks of the check not only perform their duty by keeping aboard their ships, but daily take an exact account how both officers and others attend their duties, according to the foregoing directions, and once a week make a return to the Navy Commissioners; and in case any clerk of the check make default in the premises, he shall forfeit a month's pay for every offence.

The clerks of the check of the several yards where ships are refitting are also to keep a check upon the clerks of the check on shipboard, and return to the Navy Commissioners once a week an account thereof.

For expediting the despatch of ships either at their first setting out or upon their repairs (when the captains formerly have not been under sea pay) we think that the captains, after their first entrance, should be allowed full sea pay, and be in such case enjoined to like constant attendance on board their ships, for despatch of their occasions, and providing mariners needful; and in case of default, to undergo the before-mentioned penalties. on them, and the interest paid thereon ; and how the receipts and issues can be brought into one channel, and managed with least charge, and particularly how needless officers may be discharged. Also to consider how the revenue may be improved and debts discharged, and to give an account to Parliament ; all revenue officers assisting them.

Also after 28 July, they are, on certificates of the Admiralty Committee, to issue warrants to the treasurer of receipts from which the navy is to be paid, for sums for the navy. This Act to be in force till 1 Jan. 1653-4, and no longer. [3 pages. Printed. Also G. 131, pp. 287-289.]

Council of State to the justices of peace for Middlesex, &c. Harmon Barne, a Dutchman, petitions that he has been indicted at the late Middlesex sessions at Hicks Hall, for exercising his trade as gunsmith, being a foreigner; but we, considering it needful that all persons of that trade should be encouraged, have stayed proceedings against him. You are therefore to proceed no further, and the prosecutors are to forbear prosecution till further order. [I. 70, p. 138.]

July 28.

102. Maj.-Gen. John Lambert and Hen. Scobell to the Council of State. We have considered the report made by the Committee of Parliament concerning the Isle of Axholme, and find it is warranted by the depositions. On desire of the solicitor for the inhabitants of Epworth, we ordered that they, as well as the freeholders and tenants, and the participants who are the prosecutors have a copy, and we appointed a day to hear all the parties upon the report, but did not find any material objection thereto.

We think that the 7,400 acres mentioned in the report ought to be settled in possession of the participants, and they quieted in them.

For avoiding riots and outrages, and the ill consequences thereof, which may endanger the peace, and tend to violation of law, we propound that in a case of this nature, wherein so many on both sides are concerned, and such great damage suffered by the participants and their tenants, a special commission should be awarded to the judges of the assize to try the rioters, so that the offenders may be punished, and the sufferers repaired in a legal way.

As the work has an appearance of being a great advantage to the commonwealth, besides the interest of the State in a fee-farm rent of 1,228*l.* a year, reserved out of the same for ever, we think a Bill should be presented to Parliament, for an Act confirming the improvement of the whole level, as well as for the encouragement of the participants in preserving it, as of others to endeavour the like public good. In case the inhabitants of Epworth and Misterton have anything to offer, either touching the proportion of land set out for the participants, or that remaining to themselves, they should be heard therein. 104. Thos. Alderne to Robt. Blackborne. Most of the provisions have been shipped; I am hastening away the remainder, delayed through the bread rooms not being ready. Though we are very sensible of the service of the Lieutenant of the Tower in pressing men, yet his falling foul of our victualling and water ships, and pressing men out of them much hinders business. Yesterday for despatch of a ship to the fleet with 200 tuns of beer, we borrowed men to tow down lighters, but the men from one were pressed and she left adrift, so that the business stands still for want of hands to stow the beer. There being no Acts of Parliament or orders regulating the trade, many tradesmen, as also bakers, millers, mealmen, and others, from desire of gain, have become starchmakers. In the time of Elizabeth, James, and the late King, starchmakers were not to lay in water or steep any wheat whole, or wheat bruised or ground to make starch, but only bran, pollard, or musty wheat meal or flour, that had become unsavory and not fit for bread, which was to be viewed by the master and wardens of the Bakers' Company, and a survey was also to be made in all cities, towns, and places where starch was made to sell.

As it has pleased God to give us plenty of wheat the past year, and great hopes of the same this year, though other grain has failed, and as the parts beyond seas which used to furnish us are now unable to do so, let us not be guilty of wasting so precious a commodity as wheat and corn, the staff of the natural life of man, but

112. Major N. Bourne to the Navy Commissioners. You speak of my sending ships to Hull for victuals, but that is rather the place of the Generals. I am not displeased at the stores for this place going with those to the fleet, though it would have been more convenient had they come direct. It would be better to take out the masts here, though it will cause confusion and trouble, as the other things which we want are under them, and lade another vessel for the fleet. I find on the coast seamen discharged from the ships, their captains giving them tickets, and coming on shore sick, and receiving clothes from the magistrates. You should know weekly what is done herein. Upwards of 400 have recovered and gone to the fleet, and more will follow. Also to the same effect as the latter part of the preceding. [1½ pages.]

114. Petition of James Earl of Northampton to Parliament, for stay of further proceedings in several suits against him on account of the seizure of some cloth by his soldiers during the war [see 11 June suprà]. The King being advertised of the prize, gave a special order for disposing part thereof for the clothing of the soldiers of the garrison; part was commanded to Oxford, and the rest delivered to the parliamentary officers on the surrender of the garrison. The owners of the goods, between 20 and 30 in number, have privately commenced and kept dormant divers years, until the Act of Oblivion, several suits at law against the petitioner, two of which, viz., one in the name of Wm. Purnell, and another in the name of George Long, are to come to trial at Oxford within a week, and three others at the suit of Wm. Purnell, sen., Robert Crew, and John Dyriott, are to be tried in August at Gloucester. [¾ sheet.]

117. Petition of Abr. Browne to the Admiralty Committee. The office of messenger in the Exchequer and Chancery fell void five or six months ago, by death of Mr. Parker, and is in disposal of Parliament. Having served the Commissioners of the Great Seal 9 or 10 years as seal bearer, &c., I applied for it to the Committee for nomination of Officers, who promised to present me as a fit person, and Mr. Scott was to report me to Parliament, but weighty affairs prevented, and then it was strangely interrupted. Hearing that you are to consider the disposal of places of profit, I beg you to present me to Parliament as a fit person for the office. Endorsed with note that the salary is 8*l.* 0*s.* 10½*d.* a year, with riding charges in Chancery 4*d.* a mile, in the Exchequer what the Treasury Commissioners please, and for attendance in Chancery what the Commissioners of the Great Seal please. 118. Petition of Nath. Cobham, captain of the Sun, to Lord Gen. Cromwell, for a command in one of the frigates now building. Has served the State since 1641, went over with him to Ireland as master gunner, and after a year, Lord Deputy Ireton gave him the ship on which he has continued ever since, but it is now taken for a victualler. 119. Major Wm. Burton to the Admiralty Committee. Geo. Browne served in the Princess Maria, and behaved stoutly in all the three engagements against the Dutch, and died of a spotted fever July 10, from a surfeit taken in the last engagement, five days after he was set ashore. His widow Dorothy is left destitute, and the Sick and Wounded Commissioners can do nothing for her unless her husband had died of wounds, but I think a surfeit taken in an engagement is equivalent to being slain outright. Endorsed: "Nothing can be done." Morgan, gunner of the Advice pink, was ordered by me in the Mathias to press men, but he and eight more ran away with the pinnace, to our great hindrance. I have desired his commander to secure him, for men run away daily because they are not punished for their absence. I shall keep as many as I can light upon in irons till I come to the Generals, where they may be tried before a Council of war. I have three in irons on that account. [½ page.]

Leghorn. 5. Charles Longland to the Admiralty Committee. Contrary to my expectations, the Dutch have left the Harry's prize here to sell, but four of them have sailed with the Harry Bonadventure, leaving four here, so that a dozen sail must remain to keep these seas, whereof the Leopard is admiral, who went to Cadiz 2 months since, but is expected back with 6 others. The Dutch squadron now departed were somewhat fearful, as 7 per cent. assurance has been given upon goods laden for Cadiz, and they are very weakly manned; since they returned to this port and heard how their country is besieged, they have no courage left; consequently if the State should send a squadron hither, they would find little resistance, and if their despatch was privately carried out, they might find sufficient purchase in these seas to maintain a fleet of 20 sail a year. One ship is expected from Smyrna in a few days that would half do it, as she has 320 bales of silk, besides other goods, which would sell here for ready money. With copy of his letter of 25 July 1653. [2 pages.]

Aug. 2. Order in Parliament on a petition [on behalf of Lieut.-Col. John Lilburne] this day presented, entitled "The humble petition of divers well affected and constant adherers to the interests of Parliament, and their own native fundamental rights and freedoms therein concerned, young men and apprentices of the cities of London and Westminster, borough of Southwark, and parts adjacent:"—

That the petition is a most high breach of the privilege of Parliament.

That it is scandalous and seditious.

That the six persons who brought it in be forthwith committed to the custody of the Serjeant-at-arms, to be kept apart.

That the whole business be referred by Mr. Strickland to the Council of State, to examine who were the authors, subscribers abettors, and printers. [I. 90, p. 13. Commons' Journ. VII., p. 294.]

8. Case of the Foreign Letter Office stated. The late King, 7 Charles, granted a patent (reciting former patents granting the inland post to Lord Stanhope, and the foreign to De Quester, and a report, on Stanhope's complaint of intrenchment into his office, that the two offices could stand together) to Wm. Frisell and Thos. Witherings, of the reversion of the office of foreign postmaster.

By an assignment Witherings became sole owner, and held the office till 1639, when it was sequestered by the King to Burlamachi. The next Parliament, 3 Feb. 1641, pronounced the sequestration illegal. Witherings assigned his interest to Robert Earl of Warwick, 15 Feb. 1642, and he reassigned it to Sir David Watkins and Rich. Pulley, deceased. Watkins granted his interest 10 Feb. 1650, to Wm. Ellis and Wm. Jessop, in trust for Thos. Witherings, and 900*l.* a year to be paid to Wm. Jessop and Benedict Moore, in trust for the creditors and children of Lord Rich, and the Earl of Warwick's interest is now determined.

Witherings makes a will, leaves Watkins his executor, and dies in 1651.

Since then the petitioners enjoyed the office till 30 June 1653, when Manley obtained it, although they had a reference only the night before to a Committee, to consider and report their case. [ $\frac{3}{4}$  sheet.]

Aug. 2.
Portsmouth
Sole Bay.

9. Capt. Theop. Sacheverell to the Navy Commissioners. It has pleased God to deal very graciously, and to appear wonderfully for our fleet, engaged with the Hollanders on Friday the 29th ult., and Sunday the 31st. On the 28th, at 6 a.m., the General fired a gun, and loosed his foretopsail, and we all weighed from before the Texel, and stood off to sea. On the 29th at 6 a.m., the General bore away southward, and by noon we had land by us, and then discovered the Holland fleet standing N.W., and when they made us they tacked and stood away to the south. All the frigates made sail, and by 6 p.m. some 20 sail of us fought with them at a distance. We had 2 men killed that evening, and 5 or 6 wounded. By that time it was night, and the great ships coming up could do but little service. The Holland fleet was then 80 sail, and we both stood to the south all night; we had both our main and maintopmast shot through.

On the 30th it was wet and blowing hard; Tromp was in the lee of our fleet, but the General tacked, and all our fleet, and the Hollanders stood away, and outsailed us, and it was such bad weather that we could not engage. In the afternoon 30 or 40 more of their men-of-war from the Texel joined them, making 110 or 120 fighting ships. About 3 a.m. on the 31st, being fine, the Holland fleet stood after us, and our General thereupon tacked with all the fleet, and stood with them, and at 6.30 a.m. we engaged their whole fleet, charged through them, and cut off many; they fired three or four of their own fire-ships, but did us no harm. We again tacked about, and charged through them a second and third time, and the fight continued very hot, and was prosecuted with much vigour on both sides until 2 p.m., when the Hollanders stood away from us, with all the sail they could make, and we chased until night, when coming up we passed 30 or 30 broadsides more upon them, and sunk and burnt at least 20 of their ships, 2 of which were the Garland and Bonadventure, which they took from us last summer; they had 2 or 3 of their flag ships sunk, and it has pleased God to give us a full victory over them. We did not preserve one of their ships, but sunk all, but we have 600 or 700 prisoners; I believe 2,000 of their men were also sunk.

We had 2 men killed in this day's engagement, and 8 or 10 wounded, and received many shots through our ship, and some between wind and water. We have lost the Oak and the Hunter, and 500 or 600 men, and 6 or 7 captains, including Capt. Graves of the Andrew, and Capts. Taylor, Cox, and others, and 6 or 7 more captains are wounded and 500 or 600 seamen.

Our men were very courageous, and by the blessing of God, we were carried through the work, and made instrumental to spoil and scatter this proud enemy of ours, and to make him fly before us. Let the glory of all be given to our God, and let the instruments be encouraged somewhat according to their deserts. The fleet is now sailing for Sole Bay. [1 page.]

Aug. 2.
The Phoenix
Yarmouth.

10. Capt. Owen Cox to General Cromwell. Being near the Texel on the 29th ult., we discovered Tromp and his fleet of 80 sail, who had come from Flushing, and who came within two leagues of us; but when he saw that we also came on with undaunted spirits, their hearts failed them so much that they tacked about; but we ultimately forced them into a defenceable position, and our dispute continued until 8 p.m., when on account of the darkness we left him, intending to give him a breakfast next morning; but the wind and sea prevented our coming together. The day after, being Sunday, we begun the dispute about 6 a.m. until 3 p.m., they having the advantage of the wind; at the first encounter, we destroyed divers of their ships, amongst which was the Garland, which they took from us in a former engagement; as she had all her masts shot by the board, and was incapable of being brought home, we set her on fire, with some others of their ships. I judge they never received such a blow since they wrote themselves "High and Mighty," and desire that God may have the glory.

The Amsterdam squadron consisted of 30 sail, 26 men-of-war and 4 fire ships, which joined Tromp 14 hours before our last engagement, and made up his number to 110 fighting ships; but they were very thin before the sun went down, and I judge not half went over to Holland.

As for our own fleet, we have not lost one, but some are much torn, and have lost their masts, and many like myself are disabled for present service. I cannot give any account as to the loss of our men, save that the General had 16 slain the first day, and many wounded; we must however have lost many men in the last day's dispute, as it was very sharp for eight hours; as our want of seamen will be great, I desire your serious consideration therein, so that the General and the rest of the fleet may have a speedy supply. [1½ pages.]

Aug. 2.
The Tulip, coast of Holland.

11. Capt. Joseph Cubitt to [Rob. Blackborne]. We have attended the Hollander upon his own coast since 3 June, save that most part of our fleet went to Sole, to put on shore our sick men. On 26 July, 28 sail appeared in sight about the Helder, we riding close by the Texel, by which we conceived Tromp was ready with his fleet at the Weilings. On the 28th, we weighed and got under sail, and the next day saw the Holland fleet of 84 sail which came from the Weilings; it presently gave way, but near Egmont some of ours and theirs interchanged shot. The wind blowing W.N.W. next day, we lay one by the other, they being nearer the shore than we, and not far from Gravesande, and that night their Texel fleet and his met and joined.

The 31st, the weather being fair, and both standing to sea, we tacked upon them, and went through their whole fleet, leaving part on one side and part on the other of us; and in passing through, we lamed several and sunk some. As soon as we had passed, we tacked upon them again, and they on us, and as we passed each other very near, we did very good execution on them, and some of their ships that had lost all their masts struck their colours, and put out a white handkerchief on a staff, and hauled in all their guns. My men were very desirous to go to them, there being two of them very close, but the fight being but then begun, I would not suffer it; they were fired by others after the fight was over.

As soon as we had passed each other, both tacked, the Hollander having still the wind, and we keeping close by, we passed very near, and did very great execution upon each other. In this bout we cut off some of his fleet, which could not weather us, and therefore forsook him, and some of them were sunk, and we had the Oak fired by one of their Branders. We again tacked upon them and they upon us, and in this bout we fought most desperately, almost at push of pike. A Flushing was sunk close by the Victory. He intending to board the Victory, had entered three or four of his men with their pole-axes, but the Victory's carpenter's axe cut them down on the side of the ship.

Our General must needs have galled them very much this bout, as did all our ships, being constantly very near, and especially in this last charge, when two of their admirals came up close to the Resolution, and had much to do to weather her. At this time the very heavens were obscured by smoke; the air rent with the thundering noise; the sea all in a breach with the shot that fell; the ships even trembling, and we hearing everywhere the messengers of death flying about; 8 or 10 of the Dutch ships, not being able to weather us, forsook their fleet, so we tacked again upon them; but they, having had enough of it, and their heads towards Fatherland, thought it not safe to tack any more and would willingly have gotten to the Maese or Goree; but we beset them to leeward, and stood after them half way. But it blowing contrary, and several of our ships being disabled, our General laid his head off, as did all our fleet; the Hollanders I think went for the Texel. This fight was not far from the Maese, and about 4 o'clock we saw Gravesande steeple. At 6 p.m. one of their vice-admirals, being ready to sink, bore to Capt. Pearse, and yielded, and the men were no sooner out than she sank, with some of our men in her, but her topmasts were above water. They had 112 sail when they begun, and we from 100 to 110, but some of ours were lying off the Flie. I cannot tell how many they have lost; I heard there were 14 sail sunk and burned, but at that time several captains had not given in their reports. Great care was taken that two should not report of one ship, and a report was not regarded without proof of its truth thereof. We recovered the Garland and fired her, but lost the Oak, a fire ship, and another.

I pray that God will make this mercy a further blessing to us, in procuring a good peace between us, who were friends so long formerly, and so useful one to the other, and that our nation may not be lifted up with successes, lest we be humbled by them, or some others at sea more contemptible than they are, whose pride, by prevailing against the Spaniard, has brought this evil upon them. I wish our nation may not cast off pity or forget the brotherly covenant (Amos I., 9, 11). Though we fight them hardly, if they fall into our hands, we use them friendly, and afford them the same allowance that our men have.

In this fight Providence cast me the three last bouts close under our General's stern, being weaved to follow him, which I did very closely; and in the smoke, touched him gently, but soon backed astern again. At our first coming up, within 10 shot our clerk of the check was killed close by me, by a shot in the head, and my suit and hat spoiled with his brains and blood, but I did not lose any other man after, although I have six slightly wounded, and was in the midst of the fight, and received 30 great shots in my hull, and had my sails much torn, rigging cut, and a dozen shot between wind and water.

After the fourth bout, I lay by the lee to stop leaks, and got up to the General again about sunset; when he, seeing little hopes of getting up with the Dutch admiral and fleet, lay off to sea. Our flag-ship, the Rainbow, had also to lay by the lee, to stop her leaks; our carpenter was very earnest with me to stop one in my ship, which was 4 feet under water, and kept the pump constantly going, so I again had to lay by.

As the ship is very much disabled, and no longer fit for sea, I hope I now may, without any injury to my well wishers, take leave of the service, having been in it these three engagements, and constantly at sea (the stopping of my leaks at Portsmouth excepted—a time able to make sound men sick) and especially as I hope there will be but little occasion now for men, the State having plenty of commanders. This ship has the worst accommodation for a captain of any in the fleet, goes the worst, and is constantly in a leaky state; if I may reap the benefit of a peace, it will be time well employed. Recommend me to Mr. Manton and Mr. Arnolt. [3½ pages.]

15. General Geo. Monk to the Admiralty Committee. We hope to get into Southwold Bay in two days, and hope you are preparing a supply for us. We shall much want 900 men, 500 seamen and the rest soldiers, our wounded and sick men being many, besides those who were killed. I much wonder the 12 ships have not arrived out of the river, and desire they may be hastened away. I have written to the bailiffs of Yarmouth to send off as many boats and other vessels as will take in 600 wounded men, and to the Collectors of Prize Goods there to pay such money as the bailiffs require to defray the charges, so that they may be the better provided, as is fit for men in their condition. This I desire you will second, that it may be the more effectual.

There has been such a daily complaint of the beer, which proves very defective, that if we had not fought the Dutch so suddenly, we should have been forced to come off the coast without doing anything; I therefore desire a considerable quantity may be sent down, and special regard had to its goodness; as for want thereof the service has already suffered very much. We also want ammunition, canvas, and old junk. [1 page.]

16. Thomas Orton, clerk of the check, to the Navy Commissioners. We have caused our enemy to fly before us, besides what remains of them in the sea, which we sunk and fired. We retook the Garland and fired her, and General Monk fought stoutly and nobly, as did also all our fleet. We are much shattered in the hull, masts, and yards, but had only 1 man killed right out, and 4 others shot, and 5 splintered; for this mercy we are bound to the Lord, as we fought board and board with our enemies. Although they had 5 admirals in the morning, there was but one left at night, when they ran away.

If we had got up to their fleet the fifth time, we intended to charge them through again, so that they would never have got home, and it is thought that after they left us, some of them went down. I send the muster books, and am coming in to repair. [1 page.]

17. Capt. Jas. Bamford to the Admiralty Commissioners. I left the General and fleet on Sunday, 31 July, in pursuit of the Holland fleet, with whom we were engaged in a very hot dispute from 7 a.m. until 2 p.m., in which time divers ships of both parties were lost, and the enemy ultimately turned back, and fled before the wind, and our General and fleet after them. We followed, but having had our mainmast shot overboard, could not keep up, and meeting the Exeter Merchant who was in the same condition, we made what sail we could for our own coast, our ship being also very leaky, by divers great shots received between wind and water. We had 10 men slain and 15 wounded. [ $\frac{2}{3}$  page.]

The Resolution,

19. General Geo. Monck to the Admiralty Committee. As there are many of our great ships and frigates much disabled in their masts and yards, I desire you will send down as many as you can, and also send some of your members to confer with me and the chief officers of the fleet; this would put much life into affairs here.

I have received a letter from the widow of Capt. Jno. Vesey, slain in the service not long since, and if what is stated therein is true, the loss of her husband must needs be a great affliction to her, having six small children; I hope such relief may be appointed as will answer her great charge, and afford her some comfort.

I am desired by my partner, Blake, to recommend Capt. Adams for the command of one of the fourth rate frigates now building. Pray appoint some fit person to take charge of the prisoners, that they may not be suffered to go away at their pleasure, as we have lately taken 30 that were going to Holland in a small vessel. Let Dr. Whistler be sent down to look after the wounded men. [1 page.] and brought the good news of the happy victory gained upon the Dutch that day ; to be paid from Council's contingencies.

Aug 6.
The Resolution,
Southwold
Bay.

26. General Monk to the Admiralty Committee. I have received the victualler's estimate about the beer and water coming to the fleet, which we much want, not so much by the shortness of beer as its defectiveness ; for though a double proportion were sent, yet if the goodness does not answer the quantity, it is as much as if we were in want by shortness, and we have still great cause of complaint, having suffered very much by it. Let the beer now to be sent be wholesome, and fit for men to drink.

None of the ships you mention are with us except the Amity, and it is supposed that, having missed us, they have gone to the coast of Holland. The fleet has arrived in Southwold Bay, and all means will be used to refit the ships for service ; hasten down what powder, shot, masts, and other stores you can. There are several ships so disabled by the late engagement that I shall be forced to send them to Chatham for repairs, and I hope care will be taken for their refitting.

P.S.—Masts are much wanted, and nothing can be done till they come. I will send out soon a party of frigates, which at this season will do more execution than the whole fleet might do. [1½ pages.]

27. Jonathan Taylor to the Navy Commissioners. I showed your letter to the General, and desired to be tried thereon by a council of war, which he agreed to, and referred it to Capt. Joseph Jordaine, Vice-admiral of the Blue, and his division ; the business had been ended ere now but that our late engagement with the enemy prevented it. On the 2nd instant, I and my accuser were before Council, respecting the concealment of the 18 barrels of powder. It was concealed, but it was by my gunner, and I was the first to discover and complain of it. As to the making of false tickets after the last engagement, I only made one for Hum. Balte, and his boy, whom I met at Harwich, and forced on board to act as a pilot, and could not reward him. Details of the case.

28. Capt. Jno. Tarrant to the Navy Commissioners. I send two muster books. I have put 6 sick men on shore at Harwich for Ipswich. On the 29th ultimo, at 4 p.m., our fleet engaged with the enemy, and fought until 8 p.m., doing them much damage. On the 30th the enemy had the weather gauge of our fleet, and the wind and sea being rough, they did a little scrimmage with some part of our ships for an hour, and then left. On the 31st our fleet met and fought the enemy until 4 or 5 p.m., and afterwards chased them, and sunk and burnt 40 sail out of 110 at least, and many of their admirals and vice-admirals were sunk. Our loss has been two ships, the Oak and a fire-ship, six captains, and one vice-admiral. Our ship lost two men, and two were wounded. William Colman, who had his right leg shot off, and Isaac Salter, shot in the shoulder, have been sent to Yarmouth. We have 6 or 7 sick, who will be provided for when we arrive at Yarmouth, and 30 prisoners taken from the Hannibal. [ $\frac{3}{4}$  page.]

14. Capt. Howard to present to Parliament the petition of the subscribers, on behalf of themselves and others of the reduced officers and soldiers.

16. The ships Katherine and Elizabeth and Gabriel, made stay of in the river by the Commissioners of Prize Goods, to be sold to Adam Jennings at the price appraised by the said Commissioners.

17. Major-Gen. Desborow and Col. Sydenham to write to their officers in the West concerning the paper read this afternoon, that they be very inquisitive to discover the authors of this or any other disturbances, and apprehend and send them to London.

18, 19. Mr. Attorney-General and Recorder of London, and the Lord Mayor, to come to Council at 9 a.m. to-morrow morning.

20. Council to sit at 8 a.m.

22. Capt. Howard to present to Parliament the petition of the Earl of Leven.

23. Mr. Moyer to report to Parliament that four gold chains of 40*l.* be given to the four flag officers for service in the late engagement, and that the money to be laid out in these chains, and in those to the Generals and vice and rear-admirals, be raised to 2,000*l.*, to be given in medals amongst the other fleet officers, by advice of the Generals. [I. 70, pp. 194–8.]

Aug. 8. 30. Gen. Monk to the Admiralty Committee. I have received the account of provisions coming down to us, and should be glad if they had arrived, and especially the masts for the frigates, as for want thereof nothing can be done. We also require 20 more fishes, and as much powder and shot as you can provide; although there are 1,000 barrels of powder and 70 or 80 tons of shot now coming to us, which appears a considerable quantity in itself, it will hardly be seen in such a fleet as this is, when the greatest part of what we had was spent in the late engagement, and some have little or none left.

I much wonder that the remainder of those ships coming out of the river are not arrived, and a supply of seamen is of great concernment. Dr. Whistler has come down, and I have sent him to look after the sick and wounded men at Harwich, Ipswich, Southwold, Dunwich, and Yarmouth. Some surgeons are also come down and 31. Thomas Newberry to the Ordnance officers. I went to Col. Stapley into Sussex, to treat with the iron masters there for making great shot; but he knew nothing of the business, and had to be advised by me. There are several iron masters who would probably make some if contracted with. I went to Mr. Farrenden's, 60 miles from my home, but he says he has no water at present; he could make 100 tons by March, but would not deliver it further from his furnace than Hastings or Rye, and his lowest price was 13*l.* 10*s.* per ton. Mr. Everden of Lewes, Mr. Akehurst of Warbleton, and some others having iron mills also want water, and when they have it, will ascertain how much they can make, contract for a considerable quantity, and deliver it in March; but none will deliver it any further from the furnaces than the waterside edge.

Walter Burrell has set his furnace at work for casting shot, and he demands 14*l.* per ton to be delivered at the Tower; he expects to hear from you, so I enclose his note of directions. I found Mr. Stendwick's men casting shot, and there is 15 tons ready; he will cast 5 tons weekly, and provide 100 tons by the end of November, as he is about employing another furnace. Mr. Yalden of Blackdown has a stock of metal and water, and may send a quantity of shot to Portsmouth, only he is straitened for workmen at present.

As the last week was wet, it is probable that some of them may be furnished with water soon. I offered Mr. Burrell 12*l.* per ton, but conceive he will not take less than 13*l.* [ $1$  page.]

32. Abraham Stock to Edw. Marston. I know this new representative, being but yet in a beginning, must needs cause great trouble to those that have business with them, things not being yet altogether settled. Aug. 8.
Leghorn.

33. Charles Longland to the Admiralty Committee. The four Dutch men-of-war which sailed towards Cadiz with the Harry Bonadventure returned into port two days since, on the plea of contrary winds and foul weather; but we hear their men, who are composed of many rations, are in a mutinous condition—what with their bad news from home, their long being abroad, ill diet, and want of money and clothes—and I am confident, upon the appearance of a squadron of your ships, they would not strike a stroke. The Dutch ship from Smyrna [see 1 Aug.] has also come in, and is far richer than I advised, as she has 500 bales of silk and grograine yarn, worth 150*l.* each. This ship passing by Trapani, where the Harry and her prize were taken, came to an anchor, and the master going on shore, was imprisoned by the Governor for three days, so as to force him to bring his ship under command, and thereby get reparation for the violence committed in that port by the Dutch. So you may see the Spaniard is conscious that he is liable to make good what was thus taken from him under his castle, and I conceive, if the business be effectually charged upon the Ambassador at home, satisfaction will easily be had, and the Spaniard can right himself when he pleases on that nation.

The goods out of the prize are landed here, and in a few days will be exposed to sale, but much has been embezzled, and there is not half of what was in her when taken.

It is reported by the Dutch that this port is to be the rendezvous for their ships of war all this winter, and it would be very seasonable if our State could recover the Leopard, and repair their honour and damage. With copy of his letter of 1 Aug. [2 pages.]

Council of State to the postmasters on the road to Yarmouth. 34. Petition of Row. Wilson and 18 other merchants trading to Spain and Portugal to the Council of State. We have several ships in the Downs, now ready to depart from Gravesend, with English manufactures worth 300,000*l.*; but we hear from those parts that young Tromp is not far from thence, with a squadron of ships, which we think is lying in wait to surprise us; they know our usual time of setting forth, because the wines and fruits of those countries which we go to fetch will be spoiled if not timely brought away, and their customs and excise bring much profit to the nation. We therefore beg a convoy. 19 signatures. [1 page.]

The Generals, vice-admirals, and captains of ships of war riding at anchor in the Downs, have of late years written to the Mayor and jurats of Dover for beach for ballast to be sent to ships out of the harbour, but it has lately been discovered that the taking away of the beach has much prejudiced the harbour, and is ruining the works, whence the beach has departed, and is not likely to return. 43. Jno. Carew and Lieut.-Col. Thos. Kelsey to the Admiralty Committee. We went on board the Resolution, and communicated to the General and officers the resolutions of Parliament on their faithfulness and courage in the late engagement. The damage done to the fleet is greater than was apprehended, and unless very extraordinary diligence is used in despatching provisions and stores, many ships will remain useless; the merchant ships in the service require replenishing; their owners should send down supplies.

We have taken up 2,000*l.* of Thos. Weekes, agent to the Army Committee for Suffolk, for discharging the quarters of the sick and wounded sent in, and hope his bill on the Treasurer of the Navy for the amount will be paid. 49. Jno. Carew and Lieut.-Col. Thos. Kelsey to the Admiralty Committee. Let the provisions demanded be hastened down. Part of the 1,166 tuns of beer was with the fleet before we came down, but a greater part proved defective. Leghorn.

52. Charles Longland to the Admiralty Committee. Young Tromp, with four Dutch men-of-war, has again set sail for Cadiz, and taken the Harry Bonadventure. Five Dutch are here in port, merchantmen taken up for men-of-war, but in effect no better than merchantmen, being no better manned, making a dozen left to command the Mediterranean, whereof the Leopard is admiral, the rest going to Cadiz and then coming back hither.

We are advised from Smyrna that the Golden Lion, a Dutch ship, has sailed for Holland, and as she is rich, and has that figure in her stern, you may give notice to your ships of war that they may expect her two months hence. Another ship, the Hope, also very richly laden, is there bound for Leghorn; if a good squadron of ships could be spared for these seas, I am confident they would stand the State in nothing, and would maintain themselves.

A Hamburger has just sailed homewards, laden by the Dutch, and although his bills of lading are made for Hamburg, he may be bound for Holland. Another departed this week for Barbary and Spain, and as soon as she was out, she put up the Hamburg colours; not a ship passes these seas with those colours but either the ship or goods belong to the Dutch. 59. General Monk to the Admiralty Commissioners. I hope you arrived in London safely, and will take care for a speedy supply of our wants, which, as to powder, shot, and beer, are presented in the enclosed. Some of our ships suffered loss in the storm yesterday, and the King Ferdinando, Mary prize, and Sampson are so disabled that they will not be in a condition to sail with Capt. Lawson, but will come with the remaining part of the fleet, which I hope will sail from hence the latter end of next week, if the above provisions are supplied in time. Trinity House.

63. The Committee of Trinity House to the Council of State. What we presented by word of mouth to the Admiralty Committee, concerning the disability of the Trinity House to undergo the extraordinary charge of searching out a new channel for public concernment, is really true, for by reason of the present decay of trade, their incomes are exceedingly decayed, as the wars have increased, so that the revenues are so small they will not discharge their necessary occasions, as we can clearly show.

We have no such duties payable to this House for this use as the primage and average expressed in your letter. Nevertheless, because the debate will take up more time than the present exigency will admit,—the business to be acted requiring more time than we fear the season will allow, in blowing weather and short days,—we have put the same in agitation, and are sending away persons with the necessary instruments, and some of us will accompany them, and doubt not to render a good account, as also satisfaction as to the charges, and to prevail with you to lay a public expense upon a public back, which is best able to bear it, and not upon the Poors' stock, already small enough, and out of which it otherwise must come. 5 signatures. All the news from Holland say that they have got the better of the English armada, and as the news from England is directly opposite, let me know for certain. [Aug. 23.]

68. Petition of William Kiffen, William Ely, Wm. Nixon, and other merchants and soap boilers, to Parliament. We, with many other merchants, soap boilers, and other tradesmen, freeborn people of England, suffered great oppressions in our estates, liberties, and credits, even to our utter ruin, by the last soap patentees,—viz., Sir Edw. Bromfield and his company—riotously and barbarously breaking into our houses and warehouses, and seizing and destroying our soap and materials, as oil, tallow, and potashes, and our soap vessels; as also by imprisoning and forcing several of us to fly from our families to foreign parts, and binding many of us in bonds with great penalties not to boil soap any more before we could get discharged. We petitioned Parliament for relief against our potent oppressors, but we still lie groaning under these sad oppressions, and we and our families are in great distress.

Finding our application fruitless, we brought actions for recovery of our losses and damages, upon the statute of James against monopolies, but by the mightiness of their purses, which they have gained by enhancing the price of soap one third penny in every pound of soap throughout the nation,—to the great damage of the commonwealth some hundred thousands of pounds, by means of their illegal and oppressive patent—they have kept some of us at law above 12 years, by obtaining special verdicts, putting in pleas of 336 sheets of paper, so as to weary us out, and bringing writs of error; by which known engine of vexation, they have reversed several of our judgments, and now retard our taking out execution upon our judgments entered after verdict.

VOL. XXXIX.

The said patentees, further to weary out and keep us from recovery of our just dues, have, by several false petitions presented to the late Parliament, obstructed our proceedings at law for several years past, and at this time, by orders of indemnity, by which corrupt practice the late Parliament, which should have been our relief, became our ruin.

The statute against monopolies directs all parties grieved by any monopoly to bring their action upon the statute for recovery of their losses, and enacts that the validity of all monopolies, commissions, grants, licences, charters, letters patent, proclamations, inhibitions, warrants, &c. ought to be examined and determined according to common law. The patentees, on purpose to monopolize the sole art of soap boiling, sued for and obtained of the late King their oppressive patent, and also additional power by proclamation of the King, orders of Star Chamber, and warrants of assistance from Council to their illegal deputations, to enable them to engross all the soap materials into their own hands, and to prosecute their cruel, barbarous breaking into the houses and warehouses of the free people of this nation.

The premises considered, as also how these patentees contributed great assistance to the late King to keep off Parliaments, and were concocters of tyranny with him upon the free people of England, and that in truth the patentees of England have been the caterpillars of this commonwealth, and that, by their obstructing our proceedings at law, they have incurred the penalties of the Statute of Premunire of 16 Rich. II.;—we beg an Act that from henceforth no execution of any judgment upon any action grounded on the statute against monopolies made 21 Jas. shall be stayed or superseded by any writ of error or supersedeas thereupon, any law to the contrary notwithstanding, and that we may enjoy the benefit of the law, without interruption by the Commissioners of Indemnity. 33 signatures. The whole employment of most of the inhabitants of the town depends on the fishing in the roads at this season, and vessels from the west and northern parts yearly arrive upon that trade, which is very beneficial to this nation by the import of commodities, and brings a considerable revenue to the Customs and Excise, besides setting many thousands on work, who otherwise would be exposed to beggary and want, and the trade is also an occasion of breeding up many mariners yearly for the service of the State. Aldborough.

75. Dr. Daniel Whistler to the Navy Commissioners. Since my last from Yarmouth, the number of sick and wounded men of the fleet, since the last engagement, is much increased about Aldborough, Ipswich, and Harwich. At Aldborough they were increased to 400 last week, and in the towns adjacent, such as Thorpe, Laston, Feverton, &c. 200 more were scattered for want of room here. I visited them all on Friday, and for the better administration of means to such sick as wanted more help than air and fresh diet, I caused those to be returned hither, and to make room for them, dismissed 150 of the recovered to their ships.

On Saturday I went to Ipswich, where I found 374 sick and wounded since the last engagement, some much wounded, besides, 133 come home to be dressed for slighter wounds, and 500 sick and wounded of the former engagement, notwithstanding 70 were dismissed before my coming down. I hope this week that near 300 of these will be fit to be sent to Harwich for the ships. For lessening of public expense, I shall send 40 dismembered men, and others of long cure, to the hospitals in London, where I wish room were provided.

The wounded at Harwich, since the last engagement, amount to 84, and the sick to 87, and there are additions and dismissions daily; 31 have died at Yarmouth, and as many are cured and sent to their ships,

The Hamburg fleet of 40 men-of-war sailed from hence last Sunday, and the rest expect to weigh next Saturday. We kept a day of thanksgiving on board the General last Monday, when Mr. Jessy and Mr. Simpson spoke and prayed, with great attention of the seamen; the next day they removed to visit the congregational churches about Yarmouth.

News has been received from the Texel of the Hollanders' being ready with 45 sail to come forth. The Yarmouth herring fleet intend to set out fishing on Monday, with two men-of-war for their convoy. On General Monck's departure I intend for Yarmouth, to communicate my experience to the surgeons there, having more than ordinarily studied and observed, by my frequent employment therein, the surgical part of physic.

I doubt not but Ipswich, where most of the sick are, will be sufficiently cared for by Dr. Bathurst, of whose ability and care I have good assurance, and hope next week I may be commanded home, unless there be expectation of a sudden new engagement. [2 pages.]

Aug. 26. 76. Petition of Nich. Hayward, Job Nutt, and other owners of the Golden Fortune, to the Council of State for a convoy for their ship from St. Ives, Cornwall, to London. Freight her out last year for Virginia, and although she ran much danger, she got clear to port, and returned safely to the Land's End; where, being furiously pursued by some Dutch men-of-war, she was forced to hazard herself and lading amongst the rocks, to escape their violence, and got to St. Ives, where she remains safe and fully laden; but if she should miscarry after so many dangers and adventures, it would not only be a great loss to petitioners, but also above 2,000*l.* loss to the State, consequently her officers will not stir without a convoy. 15. Sir Gilb. Pickering to present to Parliament the proceedings of the trial of Lieut.-Col. 79. Geo. Strelley to Robt. Blackborne. I have received an order for 27*l.* 11*s.* out of the impost for coals, but that money was long since paid into the Treasury by Mr. Opie; if however the last year's money may be obtained, it will be a benefit to the poor. The coast is much infested with rogues; 3 men-of-war lie in Mount's Bay, for the East India ship, daily expected from Newfoundland, and other ships from the southward. They chased in a Virginia ship to St. Ives, and as she and others cannot stir for want of a convoy, I beg you will hasten one down, and some ships to clear the coast of those rogues who are taking English ships daily.

Endorsed with shorthand notes regretting the delay of 9 ships in the river, for want of a competent proportion of men. [1½ pages.]

The Resolution,
Aldborough
Bay.

84. General Monk to the Admiralty Committee. Thanks for your acceptance of the weak endeavours used to equip the fleet since the last engagement; it was very much shattered. I am sensible of the great importance it will be to the service that the remaining part of the fleet sail from hence speedily, in order to a conjunction with Rear-Admiral Lawson, and hope we shall do so by Monday, if the supply of beer and water, and the powder and shot promised arrive in time; I wish it had not stayed to come under convoy of the Convertine, as the Nicodemus is appointed for that service, and is now at the river's mouth, expecting all vessels of that nature. When they come, we shall yet want 2,000 round shot for demi-culverins, and as many for sackers, with a few minion.

As for beer, I question whether we shall find the supply mentioned in the victuallers' letter, for we shall want above 100 tuns to complete the ships now here, if all those from Harwich come provided, (which hitherto has not been for the most part, but they were supplied by us here,) besides the defectiveness in beer, so that I desire 200 tuns to answer the want we have hitherto found in the fleet. The 100 barrels of powder appointed for the fleet out of Norfolk appears to be about 90, and very old, so that it is questionable whether 80 are fit for service, but I hope to be able to make shift with it, and with what is coming by the Convertine, and what may be taken out of merchant ships.

I think 10,000 men will be sufficient for the moving body of the winter guard, which it was intended to make up to 40 sail out of the new frigates now building; but as I perceive that is not like to be, we must make the best choice we can out of other ships. I conceive it very necessary that 2,000 more men should be declared for, to supply such ships as shall be designed for guard of the English, Irish, and Scotch coasts.

P.S.—A considerable quantity of beer has just arrived, which will answer our wants if it proves good. [ $1\frac{3}{4}$  pages.] Enclosing,

85. Rear-Admiral Jno. Lawson to Gen. Monck. Daily account of the proceedings of his fleet, from the 21st inst. On the 25th, we met some Dutch merchant ships, and the frigates took 5 or 6, and sank two, but the Foresight has shipped water, which has spoiled her powder.

We hear that the 5 Dutch East India ships are at Copenhagen, and are to stay there till the men-of-war come for them. Some are unloading there. There are 30 Dutch men-of-war at the Fly, and 10 at the Texel.

I send the examination of the master of a Dutch buss taken by the Centurion, with some Dutch letters.

The wind has been very high; it had gone ill with us had we been driven into the Texel. Several ships have been damaged. I have ordered the Ruby, Pelican, and other ships to ply northward, to find the others which have been scattered. I hope to be with my fleet 10 leagues west of the Texel by the 30th instant, to join with you as ordered. The scattered ships will annoy the enemy in their trade. [3 pages.]

86. Navy Commissioners to the Admiralty Committee. We find many frauds, embezzlements, counterfeiting of tickets, and other abuses connected with naval affairs. We wish some persons had power to prosecute them otherwise than by a course of law, or there will be little remedy; there is a tenderness to take away life, and many times want of clear proof as to condemning persons, though sufficient for inferior punishments. We want orders for discharge of the ships come from the fleet. [1 page.] Annexing,

86. I, II. Navy Victuallers to the Navy Commissioners. We have the order from the Admiralty Committee, and the abstract of the Generals' letter of the 20th. I think that before the victuals are expired, a proportion for 10,000 men for 28 days may be got ready at Chatham or Quinborough, but the declaration must be soon issued, with the proportions for each port, taking care there be sufficient in the port of London to make good what has been over issued, and this supply, which will be victuals for 2,500 for 6 months. The empty cask should be sent in.

*We shall be driven to extremity in the winter's supply for want of a timely declaration, having only 1 month when 3 are needed. Let shipping be provided to take in the beer, &c. If beer were sent daily to the fleet, the dry provisions could be sent on advice from the Generals, and so the fleet kept at sea, at least the winter guard, without coming into port.—26 Aug. 1653. 87. Wm. Welch to Geo. Downing, Scoutmaster-General. The master of a ship from Norway reports that there are nine Dutch East India ships at Vleckfort in Norway, seven leagues north of the Nasse, which have landed and planted their guns for defence; 11 rich ships from the Straits at Vleckery, 15 leagues east of the Nasse, and 18 with 2 Dutch men-of-war at Bergen, one of which has the corpse of Van Galen, who was slain in the Straits, and that there are 120 Dutch merchantmen in other ports of Norway. The East India and Straits' ships being 40 in number, having revictualled, resolved to sail homeward, and to that end those from Bergen and Vleckery were ordered to meet them, and the captains took an oath to be faithful to each other, and gave out they did not care for 20 or 30 English men-of-war, and would fire their ships before they would yield. I have acquainted the Navy Commissioners with this intelligence, and they will advise the Council of State. I wish our fleet had notice of it, so that they might meet them on the Holland coast or Norway, and that care might be taken that the Dutch do not claw the English coast aboard, and slip between the Texel and Yarmouth. Thanks for your care with reference to our letters of marque, though I much wonder you or your friend should demand so much merely for soliciting the business, whereas I am now proffered by an agent and a neighbour to effect it for 40s. Besides I am to give good consideration to the petitioners, so that should I condescend to your proposal, I should have little or no profit myself. However, seeing you have so far proceeded in it, I shall be content, the commission being in my name, to allow you or your friend a twelfth part. 16. The town of Poole, Ham, and all the works adjoining, to be immediately dismantled, and the hundreds of Cogdean, Sowsbarrough, and Wimborne to be assistant to Poole in that work. 90. Charles Longland to the Admiralty Committee. Five more Dutch merchantmen made men-of-war have arrived, being part of those who went hence three months since, with 18 sail for Cadiz, and are now to range these seas, having left the rest at the Straits' mouth, where they lie until young Tromp's squadron comes to them, when they will go for Holland together. They have sent three men-of-war with four merchant ships from Cadiz to ply between Scotland and Holland, one of which is the Leopard, formerly belonging to us, which I hope ere this has been recovered.

The Dutch in this port are suddenly going to spread themselves between the Levant and the westward, thinking to meet with 2 or 3 small ships of ours going home from Smyrna and Zante; but they are no better manned than merchantmen, and if Parliament would send a squadron into these seas, they would find but small opposition. There are several of their merchantmen trading between the Levant, Spain, and Italy, which would be rich prizes for our men-of-war.

There was a report here for 3 days that this Prince had an express in 12 days from his resident in London, and that upon its arrival, he despatched several posts to Florence, Venice, Rome, and Naples, but it is now said the express came from Holland or Germany. The Company was advised from Mr. Hammond of several riots and assaults on their workmen last summer and winter by the Swaffham and Botsham men, wherein Gabriel Appleyard was strongly suspected as an actor and abettor. Their course was to come down disguised so as not to be known. Since the adjudication at Ely, they have continued the like unlawful attempts, and have several times come down in great numbers, and beat the workmen, and thrown in our works. We discovered John Drew of Little Swaffham, and two others, to be of their number, and applying to the justices, had them indicted at the last sessions at Cambridge, where they were fined 20*l.* a piece, and committed to gaol; but subsequently the said justices mitigated their fines to a small sum, and they were then paid, as we conceive, by the town, and the rioters released.

A month afterwards, we found that our works had been thrown in again by a great number of people, and that they had given it out in public that the towns of Burwell, Reach, and the two Swaffhams and Botsham were resolved to rise and throw in our dykes, upon which the Company adjourned to Swaffham, where we examined witnesses, and applied to Roger Rant, the justice there, and endeavoured to show him the danger of a breach of the peace, and the inconveniences of such unlawful assemblies; but we found him very cold and dilatory, and not willing to take notice of my Lord General and the Council of State's declaration of 29 June last, which had been published there, and much slighted by the constables and others at the time. When we offered it him, he said he had seen it, but that he was to proceed upon the known laws. Seeing little hopes of redress there, we applied to Major Tyson, who commanded the regiment here in Col. Humphrey's absence, and upon being acquainted with the depositions as to the combination against us, and the intention of throwing in our works, he afforded us a guard of three or four of his men, to be kept nightly upon our works in Swaffham, and a guard was kept there accordingly.

VOL. XXXIX.

On Saturday night, the 27th instant, 80 persons came down, armed with muskets, short pikes, and swords, and discharged upon the guard, wounding one of them very dangerously, and chased away and beat the rest, and forced them to help to throw in our dykes, giving out very high and insolent speeches. We do not know the names of the parties, but are confident that it was done by the meaner sort of Burwell, Swaffham, Reach, and Botsham, and that they are set on and abetted by the better sort of the said towns, amongst which pray see what may be proved by Mr. Barnes against Edmund Drury of Swaffham.

This being a business of consequence, not only in relation to our works but to the public peace, we could do no less than represent it to you and the rest of the Company at London, that speedy application may be made there to those in authority, and able to suppress these tumults, all other means here having hitherto proved fruitless, by reason of the contrary interest and disaffection of the civil magistrates in these parts.

There is likewise an information sent up of an attempt lately made to break the doors of the double sasse at Salter's Load, which were quite to overthrow the whole draining of the south side; and generally on this side the people begin to be very high and riotous, and are no doubt fomented by some of your enemies above. They all talk of Sir Jno. Maynard's petition being received, and that the whole matter is to be re-examined, and they hope revoked and made null, so that the putting off the hearing of that petition is thought here to be an artifice of Sir John to gain time, and in the interim to take advantage of any trouble or disturbance in the State, as they did in Yorkshire and Lincolnshire; whereas if that petition were discountenanced and thrown out, there would be no colour left for opposition, and this side would grow calm by degrees, as the north side is.

Col. Humphreys has certified the Commissary-General and the council of officers of this late insurrection, and we have sent up the wounded soldier, who may be examined, and can speak as to that night's assault, as also Mr. Barnes. 10 signatures. [3 pages.]

6. Col. Tomlinson added to the Committee appointed by Council for making an extract out of the papers given in Council concerning the passages in the trial of Lieut.-Col. John Lilburne.

7. Major-Gen. 10. Sir John Wollaston and Ald. Viner added to Ald. Avery, Mr. Pack, and Mr. Berners, appointed to examine the account between the brother-in-law of the Portuguese Ambassador and Ald. Methold, lately deceased, with the same power as the others.

11. The Commissioners of Council appointed to treat with the agent from Sweden to meet him at 4 to-morrow at Whitehall; Fleming to give him notice.

12. The members of Council now in town to attend to-morrow afternoon, to consider a matter of importance to the State; the Lord General and the Admiralty Commissioners to attend also.

13. Col. Montague to present the petition of Col. Robert Hammond to Parliament.

24. Order in Council, on a report on the petition of the participants in the draining of Hatfield chase, presented 14 June last, about riots committed thereon [see Calendar, June 1653, pp. 373–376], that the 7,400 acres named should be settled on the participants, and a special commission issued to try the rioters. That as they destroyed the corn and rapes, many houses, and even the town of Santoft,—to the loss of the rent of 1,228*l.* a year reserved to the State out of the improved lands,—and disobeyed the decree of justice, the military power should be applied, and the forces quartered in the neighbourhood should assist the officers of justice to keep the participants in possession of the 7,400 acres against all riots. Also that a special commission of oyer and terminer be issued to the judges of assize of cos. York, Lincoln, and Notts, to punish the offenders, and grant the participants reparation for their damages.

31. Mr. Moyer to offer to Parliament the whole business relating to Jersey, viz., that Council, considering all that has been offered about its government, thinks there should be a speedy settlement of civil government for deciding controversies and punishing offenders. That as the laws of the island are written in French, and the natives do not understand English, nor the English inhabitants the laws, the now bailiff, with Hen. Dumaresque and Abr. Herault, 2 old jurates displaced by Sir Geo. Carteret, be authorized to administer justice according to the ancient laws, until the affair be settled.

By the present laws there are 12 jurates to assist the bailiff, and are conjunct equally with him, only that he has a casting voice; and in some cases, as in sentence of death, 7 jurates must concur; and these jurates are chosen by suffrage of all the islanders. This mode of election should be continued, with restriction that those only be chosen who have constantly adhered to Parliament, and that their names be sent over to England for approbation.

The late pretended bailiff, Sir Geo. Carteret, and all the jurates, viz., Philip, Capt. Philip, Ames, Joshua, and Fras. Carteret, Phil. le Geyt, Fras. Carteret of Vincheles, Laurence Hampton, John Piport, Benj. La Cloache, Elias Dumaresque, and Thos. Pippon, should be displaced for delinquency, and 10 new ones chosen, to be added to Hen. Dumaresque and Abr. Herault.

Elias Carteret, the late King's procurator or attorney, John Letardy, his solicitor, and Edw. Hampton, the vice-count or sheriff, should also be displaced for delinquency, and Benj. Lemprière, Clement Messervy and Capt. Dan. Norman, who is willing to go over as sheriff, chosen in their places.

The bailiff having the appointment of the inferior officers of the court, he is to displace all guilty of delinquency, and put in the well-affected, granting the offices, not for life as before, but for 2 years;

also all offices to be only for 2 years, unless the supreme power in England think fit to continue them, provided that 6 only of the jurates be changed every 2 years.

The present bailiff, having only a commission from the Committee of Safety, should have a new one, and instructions to alter all proceedings from the titles agreeable to a monarchy to those of a commonwealth.

Instructions should have been issued by Council, in the interval of Parliament, for a general composition of the island for delinquency, (as this would bring in more money and be better resented by the inhabitants than sequestration), but this not being perfected before the sitting of Parliament, Council refers the affair to them. Instructions by the Council of State to Col. Jas. Heane. Mich. Lemprière, Dr. Nich. Lemprière, Major Wm. Harding, and Chas. Merrott.

Council, thinking a general composition for the isle of Jersey will be a more speedy and less rigorous way of proceeding with delinquency, appoint you to manage the same:—

- (1.) You are to discharge all not worth 10*l.* a year of clear real estate.
- (2.) You are to set a fine on all others, whether comprised within the articles of Elizabeth Castle or not, not exceeding 2 and not under 1 year's value of their estates, appointing short times for payments, not exceeding 6 months after setting the fines; and on failure of payment, their estates are to be sequestered, but discharged on payment of the fines. This is not to extend to those who have broken the articles of Elizabeth Castle, or been in arms against the State since its reduction. These cases are to be certified to Council or the supreme power, and their estates sequestered meanwhile.
- (3.) Col. Jas. Heane, on the reducing of the island, took up sums to defray the service of divers persons; these sums are to be allowed to delinquents in part of their fines; but if any paid more than the fines, or moneys were taken from those not delinquents, you are to certify, that they may be reimbursed.
- (4.) The fines, &c. are to be paid to Chas. Merrott, receiver of the island, who will give discharges, and pay the money on warrants from the Council of State, only you can issue your warrants for incident charges, not to exceed 4*l.* in the pound.
- (5.) You are to give accounts of your proceedings to us or the supreme power, and obey our or their further instructions. [I. 70, pp. 315-317.]

96. Anth. Hammond to Jno. Thurloe, Secretary to the Council of State. My cousin Barnes was sent up with a letter to the members of the Company at London, about a foul business lately committed by the Swaffham and Botsham men, who gathered 80 of their number, with all sorts of arms, and in the night assaulted and beat a party of my Colonel Humphreys' troop, who did us the favour to keep a guard upon our works, to defend them from being thrown in by the country, as they had many times been formerly. We have received many affronts from that corner of the country, and applications have been made both to the civil and military officers for suppressing them; but the first wanted will and affection to do us any good, and the other power and orders from their superiors. Indeed, there is no accommodation in the town for quartering soldiers unless they might lie in private houses, which they did awhile, but the officers got them removed, that they might the better play their pranks.

In my opinion, we have such an advantage over them at this time, by this rash action of theirs, that if it be well followed, we may for ever quiet them; but how to proceed against them I must leave to you and others wiser than myself. Only this, if we go by a special commission of oyer and terminer, I doubt the jury will serve us as they did in the case of Jno. Lilburne, and then we are worse than we were before. Nothing would fright and quiet them more than if there were 100 of these desperate fellows pressed for the service; they being all watermen, and having little to do at home, make these night excursions, and show their valour against my Lord General's men, which would be much better employed against the Dutch.

It was a great oversight in some of the Company to let Sir Jno. Maynard gain longer time about the hearing of his petition, for certainly we feel the effects here of that delay, the people growing troublesome, and by influence from Sir John combine against us, and raise money to bear the charge, and are framing very large and clamorous petitions against us; so that when he comes to make good his petition, instead of reason, he will produce a multitude of other complaints, when certainly the Company's interest had been to have brought it to a speedy hearing; and when that had been cast by, all other places would have been quiet, finding no hope of relief from the House. Meantime I doubt Sir John's party here will take the advantage of any trouble or misfortune that may happen to the State, to rise and destroy our works, as they did in Lincolnshire, for we are in the same danger of him that the State is of Lilburne, the only likely man to make a change.

P.S.—I have committed the custody of the south bank of Bedford New River to Mr. Ewen, giving him the fishing and pasturage of the bank, and 20 marks a year, which gives him good satisfaction.

My wife presents her service to you both. [ $1\frac{3}{4}$  pages.]

97. Answer in detail [by the Adventurers] to a petition objecting against the late Act of Parliament respecting the draining of fen lands, co. Cambridge, and elsewhere, by Francis Earl of Bedford, Sir John Maynard, and others, because

1. The parties interested by the Act are made judges;
2. The Act destroys property;
3. It enacts impossibilities and falsities;

VOL. XXXIX.

4. The draining was declared a monopoly by the remonstrance of the late Parliament in '41, and the present Act is obtained through the interest of Parliament men, the petitioners being unheard.

Also answer to exceptions annexed to the petition.

The work was originally undertaken by the late Earl of Bedford for the public good, the profits were not considerable to the charge and hazard, and most, if not all of the Adventurers, with the said Earl, ruined themselves by the undertaking; the present Adventurers engaged to perfect the work upon the authority of an Act of Parliament, there has been nearly 300,000*l.* expended in it, and the yearly charge for repairs is estimated at 10,000*l.*

The works for the draining are such as are not to be seen elsewhere. A large and fertile country is gained to the commonwealth, though with the ruin of some of the Adventurers, and the undertaking is worthy of the care and countenance of Parliament. The Act itself is honourable and necessary, and there is sufficient provision thereby for all just complaints. The Adventurers therein are the losers, and hope they shall not appear guilty of any other fault than indiscretion in hazarding their estates for the good of the public. [7 sheets.]

98. Petition of John Merritt, anchorsmith, to the Admiralty Committee. On Friday the 15th, a man came into my shop at Redrith Wall with your warrant to search for State's goods, supposed to be there. Having never bought nor concealed such goods, I showed him all I had, and among them he found a parcel of old shot, which I had bought a few at a time from people crying old iron that brought them to my shop, but not from any in the service. For this I am put to much trouble, and summoned before you, though I have given him proof of my honest way of living. I beg to be cleared from this calumny and trouble. [ $\frac{2}{3}$  page.]

1. 1, 2. The Admiralty Committee to order convoy for a ship of Sir James Hope's, now ready to go off from the coast of Ireland.

2. Order on petition of John Pemberton, minister of John's parish, Chester, that Capt. They are to proceed against such persons as they find defrauding the commonwealth of customs, and inflict on them the lawful punishment, and to relieve such persons as address them, whose cases they find fit to be relieved, against the rigour of the law.

Also to consider petitions presented from any whose friends are prisoners in Tunis, Algiers, or any other place in the Mediterranean or other parts, and to consider means for their redemption, taking account of what moneys are already paid in, or shall be paid at the Custom House for that use, and report to Council.

Also to examine what licenses have been granted by the late Council of State, the late Committee of Parliament for the Navy, or by the Council since the dissolution of Parliament, for the import of goods useful to the State, and the shipping thereof, the goods, or the manner of import, being by law prohibited; to take account what proportions of the several commodities have, since the granting of the said licenses, been imported on the account of the parties to whom they were granted; and in case they find that there has been neglect in not importing the necessary amount of goods for the service, or that any of the warrants have been abused, they are, on full proof, to punish the offenders.

Reader and the others be prohibited from carrying letters by way of a post betwixt London and Westminster and the places of their habitations, on penalty of being taken in custody by the said Serjeant.

10. The Commissioners for Prize Goods and their agents, the State solicitors and proctors, and Mr. Violet, to be ordered forthwith to meet and confer with Dr. Walker, and to look up all their informations touching the silver and lading in the Samson, Salvadore, and George, and to take down in writing all the preparations of evidence and proofs thereupon, and draw a full plea by his advice for the protection for the State's interest, and to give in the names of all the material witnesses they know of, that the points may be proved by them, and the witnesses brought in and examined, that the commonwealth may suffer no default in those businesses.

 convoyed the 30,000*l.* from Chester to Dublin, I showed the letter to the Lord General of Ireland, who permitted me to come for the Land's End; I stopped at Pendennis Castle for orders, but finding none, have come to Plymouth for them. Seven or eight Brest men-of-war lately chased an English merchantman into St. Ives, and I hear they are gone to waylay our East Indiamen and other merchants. [1 page.]

 Navy Office. months since, we sent an estimate of the charge of this summer's fleet, showing 1,115,000*l.* required to be paid before 31 December, without including the second rate ships intended to be built, or the winter guard. Since then there has been another engagement at sea, whereby much prejudice has been done to the hulls and tackle of the ships, which have both drained the stores, and added much charge.

Notwithstanding this, finding no considerable provision made for money, we conceived it necessary to lay before you the daily clamours we undergo for want thereof, and the vast and unreasonable charge the State is at in the price of commodities, besides the disreputation it lies under, in having our contracts broken and credits laid low; whereas if your debts were paid, and money were seasonably provided, we might save you 20 per cent. in prices.

It is not imaginable what the advantage is in payment of mariners at their first coming into harbour, for whereas 10,800*l.* would pay off every 1,000 men that have been nine months at sea, if they lie but one month unpaid, it will cost the State 13,000*l.*, and if in mer-

3. 9. The Admiralty Committee to prepare fit instructions for the ships on the western coast, and those which are now going thither, and to despatch them to the ships speedily.

4. The Commissioners of Council appointed to treat with M. de Bordeaux to meet him at 3 to-morrow at Whitehall. Fleming to give him notice.

5. Mr. Thurloe to prepare something declaratory for preventing frauds to the State in the not making of ships prizes, by their calling themselves Hamburgers and Lubeckers when they really belong to the enemies of the State; and if possible, to offer the same to Council to-morrow morning.

You are to be very careful, while on that station, not to give chase any further than to return again by night into the body of the squadron, so that upon any emergency you may not be separated; if you shall be found to offend wilfully herein, you shall not only be cashiered, but suffer the loss of your wages for the time you have served.

After the expiration of the time limited for this service, you are to expect further orders from Capt. Martin. As he is not at present in the fleet, you are to take charge of the squadron, and use his instructions as fully as if they were directed to yourself, until you meet with him, and then deliver them up to him, with such other instructions as are herewith sent. 13. Petition of Thos. Horwood, and other merchants and inhabitants of Barnstaple, co. Devon, to the Council of State. The sad and deplorable condition of the town and port, occasioned by the many losses the merchants have sustained by the Irish, Prince Rupert, and others, and in later times, and even now by the Brest and Dutch men-of-war, enforces us, like men in the last extremity, to appeal to you. In times past there were divers ships of considerable burden belonging to the harbour, and in some years, 50 or 60 of them have been set out for fishing at Newfoundland and New England, by means whereof not only many thousand persons were kept on work, but much excise and customs accrued to the commonwealth, by the several merchandises imported. Now however we are not able to set forth above 10 or 12 ships in a year, and those of very small burden, in comparison of those which are lost. Also we formerly had 150 smaller vessels employed to France and Ireland with merchandise, and to Wales to fetch coals and limestone, whereby a further large number of persons were employed, and the industry of the people, and the flourishing condition of these parts might have been justly proposed as an example to most parts of the nation; but now the port and channel is so vexed and infested by the daily incursions of the Brest and Dutch pirates, that we tremble to consider of the impossibility of the return of that small remainder of our Newfoundland ships, which are expected home two months hence, with the proceeds of 10 months' labour, unless some speedy course be taken both to secure their return, and to give enlargement to the smaller vessels, which now scarcely dare stir out of the port, whereby many poor families are reduced to beg their bread. We entreat the appointment of some vessels to clear and secure the channel. As your late unparalleled engagements have shown you tender of the nation's honour, we trust you will regard our safety, that the sad hearts and watery cheeks of the oppressed may bless you, as the repairers of our English Israel. 25 signatures. On an order of the Council of State of 13 Aug. 1653, some of our Committee, with several pilots from Deal, Margate, and Rochester, met for finding out a new south channel; and having made soundings between the Woolpacker and the Spell, have discovered a far better and more convenient channel than that between the Spell and the Last. 19. Major Ro. Swallow to Edw. Whalley, Commissary-General. We spent part of Saturday and to-day in endeavouring to discover the actors or abettors of the late riot, but the business is so much in the dark, and so subtly and cunningly carried out by the country, that no considerable discovery is yet made, neither is there much probability of it for the future. The most material evidence is against Edm. Drury, whose examinations are enclosed; yet as we saw no cause to detain him prisoner, or to send him to London, he is discharged, but we refer the matter to the Council of State, who may command his appearance if they think fit, he being bound in 1,000*l*.

The other examinations are with Col. Humphreys, and some other persons are detained prisoners until the evidence, which are his 2 soldiers, return from London, when he intends to proceed against the prisoners.

I have ordered a party out of his troop to march to Lincoln as a convoy to the money for London, and will dispose of the rest of the troop according to order next week, and while at Norfolk, will take the liberty to visit some friends. [1 page.] Enclosing,

Drury rejoined it was but taking a spit on each side, and throwing it in, and it would hinder the drain from running, and that if they did come to throw the drain in, 3 or 4 score would come with fowling pieces, and what would 3 or 4 soldiers do against such a number? 20. David Heckstetters to Rear-Admiral Jno. Lawson. If you were as sensible as we are here how ready these people are to take the first impression of news that makes for the Hollanders, and how hard it is to remove it afterwards, you would think it worth the time to put pen to paper, this place being the centre of news, which is dispersed both good and bad into all parts, as Denmark, Sweden, Poland, Germany, &c. Though we are not wanting to divulge our own news, yet generally the Hollander gets 8 days' start of us, by which means he has beforehand possessed such as are never so little hanging after them, as indeed all princes and courts in these parts are.

The Hollanders do us much mischief in this river [Elbe], for our ships come in here as a safe harbour and meet with danger; there are 3 capers of 24 guns and 114 men lying before Gluckstadt, besides 2 others gone to sea, but where we cannot learn, as the people upon this river are generally disaffected towards us, so that all the English run extraordinary hazards, and as soon as the convoys are gone, we shall again hear of their capers. The mischief would be easily remedied if our men-of-war seized the Hollanders in this river, as their trade is 5 times more than ours, and richer, they carrying as costly wares as either the East Indies or the Straits afford. Upon this ground I would advise it might be done; not that I would have this bar made unfree, but to free it; and in a short time, and at small charge, we may take much more from them here than they have yet taken from us. This being done, I would not advise its being confiscated or made away with, but to send to this town to know if they own this river or not, or who pretends to be the owners of it; if they disown it, then to keep what is taken but if they own it, then let them know that we do not seek to disturb their river or trade, but to have satisfaction for what has been taken, and to propound that if they will give satisfaction for what has been taken, and procure the Hollander to declare this river free, then we will also declare it free, and deliver all we have taken.

This would be a way not only to free this river, of which, during these wars, England will have much need, but would also procure satisfaction to the State and the suffering parties, and would much vindicate the honour of our English; for what may the world think of us to permit the Hollanders to take our ships in this river, and we looking on, though in our power to right ourselves? especially seeing none will own this river as yet, and so long as none will own it, no royalty is violated.

These people are so much dissatisfied with us that so long as we suffer, they will laugh and look on, but if the Hollander should suffer, and we disturb this stream, it is probable they would show themselves. Prizes are daily brought in to Gluckstadt, which with the goods are suffered to be sold, but nothing declared prize.

P.S.—The Dane has refused to lend the Hollander any of his ships, and it is thought he will secure himself of the Hollander's East India ships, as by their advice he did of ours; a traitor to all. [Damaged, 1½ pages.]

22. Chas. Longland to the Admiralty Committee. There are 6 Dutch ships in this port, although 5 departed this morning towards the east to look after the Tripoli men-of-war, who lately fought with a Dutch merchantman richly laden from Smyrna; she fought 2 days, and by good hap shot down the Turk's mainmast, and so got into Messina, and these 5 ships are gone to convoy her hither.

Since our nation has been ousted of the Turkey trade, the Dutch and French send twice as many ships thither as formerly, so that if the Parliament should think fit to send a good squadron of 20 sail into these seas, you may see what good purchases there will be for your frigates, and sufficient no doubt to maintain the fleet. Many other advantages of great import might rebound to our State by keeping a powerful fleet in these seas, as well in relation to France, Spain, and Barbary, as the free trade of our own nation.

The Dutch have much boasted this week of a great victory obtained over our fleet upon their coast; our English letters bringing news only of their engagement made us silent therein, but I received one from Marseilles that our fleet has taken, sunk, and burnt 30 of their best ships, and taken 1,000 prisoners, all which we hope will be confirmed by our next week's letters from England. Meantime the Dutch are somewhat silent, and the Italians begin to discover the forgery even of their States themselves, who on the last victory obtained 3 June by our fleet, wrote their agent here that they had only lost 4 ships, which letter he showed under their hand and seal in the public place. Upon the death of Tromp, the States gave a commission to his son to command these seas, by which it would seem they intend to keep a good fleet here.

A bark has arrived from Algiers, and reports that Mr. Oneby, the consul, is dead, that there were 60 English captives there earnestly waiting for liberty, and that 10 others, taken upon Dutch and French ships, were likewise detained for their port charges. The presence of a fleet would bring off these men and many others. With copy of his letter of 29 August. [2½ pages.]

4. To compose the claims for common pasture, estovers, &c., by equitable allotments of proportionable parts.

5. To sell the rest to the best advantage, in assistance whereof the old perambulations and other ancient records should be looked into.

By improving the forests, &c., much will be made habitable, churches and chapels erected, tillage enlarged, the poor employed, the people increased, and the service of the commonwealth much advanced. [1½ pages.]

[Sept. 6.] 26, 27. Reasons by Wm. Ryley, clerk of the Records in the Tower, why those records should be used about the survey of forest lands:—

1. That the ancient perambulations and forest records are there.

2. That by them the right of the commonwealth thereto is discovered, and false claims avoided.

3. That by ancient commissions, &c. a means may be found of quieting differences which may arise in the intended improvement of forests.

Ryley, having been clerk 28 years, offers to act as Surveyor-General, and can serve at a small salary, on account of his knowledge of all these records, if the supreme power will confer the office on him. [2 copies.]

[Sept. 6.] 28–30. View of such improvements and services as may be done by Wm. Ryley, clerk of the Records in the Tower, in the public work concerning the rate or improvement of the forest lands.

The ancient forest bounds are set forth in the perambulations of 29 Edw. I., still in the Tower, confirmed by divers Parliaments, and are yet in force, though much infringed by the two late Kings, by sales, grants, and disafforesting. The usual mode of disafforesting is by a commission directed to persons of quality living in the county, with articles of instructions as to ascertaining the bounds; they settle by a jury of 20 men of the county the claims and interests of persons and townships, certify on new erections, assart lands, fees of forest officers, spoil of woods, killing of deer, &c. They also certify the submissions and agreements of the lords, freeholders, and servants within the forests. [3 copies, 3 pages each.]

[Sept. 6.] 36-39. Notes from patents relating to the forests, from 16 Edw. II. to 5 Charles I. [4 papers.]

Sept. 6. 40. Capt. Geo. Bishop to the Council of State. I have already signified that my call hither was to manage intelligence, which for some short time I did, without being added to any Committee or other business; but for the better managing of that trust, I was afterwards appointed secretary to the Committee for Examinations, &c., which office upon no other account I took, and so declared, and to this Committee I was ordered to bring my intelligence.

Afterwards no orders were made me of that nature, but I continued in course from Council to Council, in the same employment, and as I had occasion of money, upon motion made by some of the Committee, Council ordered accordingly, the Committee leaving the whole management of intelligence and the disbursements thereof to me, and never interfered, although I often desired it, they having had more experience therein; at the end of every year Council appointed a Committee to receive my accounts, which were always passed without hesitation.

Council not reviving that Committee last December, I went on as before, and presented what intelligence came to hand to Council, who gave me a warrant for payment of my disbursements, and although I petitioned for their discharge, I did not obtain it.

Upon the late change, I also continued, although Mr. Scott ceased to supply his intelligence, and out of respect to all, I waited on the Lord General with what I had received as to the state of affairs in Holland, and other things of consequence to the ending of the war, and from time to time gave his Excellency and Council what I received from my agents. I acquainted his Lordship with the chargeableness of my employment, and that for several months I had not received any money, and desired a settlement, which he often promised, and said it was not fit I should continue between two any longer. The like I did to Major-Gens. Harrison and Desborow, and other members of Council, and as notice came of bills charged on me to pay, I sometimes inserted it on the foot of the intelligence; although it was not pleasant to manage things in that manner, yet until I received a discharge, I dared not in point of duty desist; besides Council, for some time after the change, had little or no money in their treasury, which made me more willing to supply their occasions.

I never intended, from the first day of my coming hither, to set up a tabernacle, but have constantly pressed, as the affairs of the commonwealth would permit, to be dismissed, I having here little advantage except the loss of my calling, the prejudice of my estate, the wearying out of body, breaking of my health, neglect of my family, and encountering temptations of all sorts, prejudices, censures, jealousies, envies, emulations, hatreds, malice, and abuses, which the faithful discharge of my duty has exposed me to, in no small measure, besides other mischiefs designed on me by the enemy, and the keeping of 600*l.* and sometimes 1,000*l.* always ready by me of my own money, to carry on my correspondence when Council had no money in their treasury; I formerly have been out of purse from 300*l.* to 500*l.* at a time, which few others were. This money, if employed as opportunity here served, would have brought me in no small increase.

As to the continuance of my employment, I am not yet discharged from that part which relates to home-bred treasons and conspiracies, though I suppose little of that is expected from me, in regard that, notwithstanding what I and my agents have discovered to his Excellency and several members of Council, as also of the general and particular designs of the enemy, and their intended assassination of his Excellency, and what the Jesuits are carrying on for their cause and the King of Scots, yet I am not desired to improve them, or to take care thereof. I have, according to my duty, given information of those things, and whatever evil may ensue, it will not lie at my door.

I desire your pleasure as to my full discharge, and as I have received mercy from the Lord to be faithful to the commonwealth in all its turns and dangers, not serving any man or myself, but in order to the will of the Lord and the common good, notwithstanding my many discouragements, so I shall, through the same goodness, persevere as I have opportunity in my private capacity and retirement. Hamburg.

59. Rich. Bradshaw to the President and Council of State. I have sent, under convoy of 4 ships of war, two ships of masts and one of powder, and enclose particulars. There was not any of the sort of shot you ordered, except a small proportion in one man's hands, who would not part with it unless I would take a quantity of unserviceable stores; so I have ordered 40 tons of the shot you wrote me to be bought of a private merchant at Stockholm, and shipped to Lubec, whence it may be brought hither by land and fresh water, as the merchants bring all their goods now out of the Baltic Sea, and it will be no greater charge than to have bought it here.

I will endeavour to get more powder in remote parts, this city, Lubec, and parts adjacent being drained by the Dutch, Dane, and Russ, Poland failing them; but I must entreat you to give speedy order to the Commissioners of Customs to send me another letter of credit for 10,000*l.*, being in hopes soon to procure powder to that value at least, only I must have the money ready here to pay for it as it comes in, or it cannot be effected. I will be as provident as I can.

I have 50 more masts from 15 to 25 palms, most being from 20 upwards, but they could not be sent for want of a fit ship. I hope to get these and a good proportion of powder and shot ready for another convoy, before the frost shuts up the river, of which I will give Mr. Thurloe weekly notice.

The Dutch men-of-war in the river have done much spoil of late upon the English, and still continue to seize what they can, being much encouraged by seeing your men-of-war tied up from meddling with them, or any of the enemy's ships or goods; otherwise they might have seized many vessels daily passing by their side of great value, and then no doubt this city would have declared who owns the river, and have used means to protect the English therein, who, if some speedy course be not taken, will shortly be shut out of the river, as they are out of the Sound, which is the Dutch design, and

Victualling
Office.

60. Navy Victuallers to the Admiralty Commissioners. We have considered your proposals, that if the State declared for so many men for 6 months for the winter and summer's guard as that their victuals should amount to 195,000*l.*, then our payments should be 30,000*l.*, partly by way of imprest, and the rest by 1,500*l.* a month for 11 months, beginning 1 Oct., and so in proportion for a greater or lesser number of men.

Considering your readiness to do what the emergent occasions of the public will admit, we submit to your proposal, though far short of what our contract, according to your interpretation of it, would afford us; only with this small variation, that the monthly payments may be ten, at 16,500*l.* a month. Let our payments be fixed upon some good receipt, where we may have punctual payment, and thereby be enabled to carry on your service, and our credit the better supported, as we shall make considerable use thereof to secure so great a bulk of provisions. Let the respective proportions of victuals for this winter and next summer's guard be distributed by affixing the number of men to the several ports. The formalities of certifying and ordering our payments we leave to you, and desire to be heard as to those things which concern the better and more speedy securing of our provisions, and the regular issues and expenditure thereof. 61. Major Jno. Wade to the Admiralty Committee. I will cause the shot to be cast and sent to Bristol, but desire to know to whom it is to be delivered. I want men to be put on to square the timber after the wood-cutters, as it would save waste, and nothing would go towards making charcoal but what is proper; that fit for ship-building may be carried to its destination for 8*s.* per ton. We could supply pigs of iron at 3*l.* a ton, and shot at 4*l.* Our two furnaces are capable of casting 50 or 60 tons of raw iron a week in pigs, and 20 tons of shot. Details of the ironworks. The timber in the forest should be protected, or the iron mines will be of no use. [2 $\frac{1}{2}$  pages.]

62. Rich. Dermott to the Navy Commissioners. I send muster-books of the Nightingale. She is fit for better service than to return between these parts and Dublin, under the notion of transporting a little money, when for a small charge for men and guns, she might keep the Channel clear of pickeroons; but the commanders ordered this way find such a sweetness in transporting passengers and goods for Dublin, that they never care to leave these parts. 65. Capt. Thos. Spurling to the Admiralty Committee. I present my explanation of the combination against me by Clary and his confederates.

As to the 1st prize, it was only proved that the boat went 4 times on board, and brought back some tobacco and sugar, all between decks.

As to the 2nd prize, the report of Wm. Harris, and depositions before the Mayor of Plymouth about goods being taken out by orders signed by me, are false. The accusations about the cloth in the 3rd prize are false and inconsistent.

I confess that finding, after we set sail, that there were a few bundles of plundered goods on board, I assented to their being divided, it being the first transgression of the actors, and I wishing to avoid inconvenience. [ $\frac{3}{4}$  page.] Enclosing,

We have also received your account for the last six months, which with your former account will be considered. We are well content that you have again accepted the business of treasurer, and desire you to retain it until we can engage some other person, and to content yourself with the small salary formerly allowed, of 2,000 dollars, without the addition of any gratuity, the present distraction of the times and the meanness of our trade not permitting us to afford more. The consul at Smyrna has submitted to the same terms, in consideration of our present condition. Sir Thos. Bendish having been called home from Constantinople, for our ease in that charge; Rich. Lawrence is appointed to reside there as agent until the trade shall encourage us to maintain an Ambassador; address yourself to him on all occasions of the Company concerning the Factor Marine. Levant Company to Sir Thomas Bendish. We advertised you of Parliament's intention to call you home, out of a design to send some other person to succeed you, with power and commission from themselves; but on the Company's solicitations, that resolution was forborne until the expiration of the time of your contract with us. Since then there has been so great and almost a total declination in our trade that it renders us unable to maintain an Ambassador at Constantinople, and that office for the present is altogether needless, and Parliament have now resolved upon your revocation, and sent Rich. Lawrence with their letters to you to that purpose, and with other letters to the Grand Seignior and Vizier.

Although our want of trade is such that there is no need for the residence of any person there, yet he has agreed to remain there for the present, until, by a peace at home and the advance of trade abroad, we may defray the charge of another Ambassador. You must not expect any entertainment from us after his arrival, except the 1,200 dollars which we have ordered our treasurer to pay you, towards the charge of your return. We intreat you to receive the bearer with all courtesy, and give him all the assistance needful. [Levant Papers, Vol. IV., p. 216.]

Levant Company to the Treasurers and Factors at Constantinople. Parliament having recalled Sir Thos. Bendish, and appointed Rich. Lawrence to remain as agent until the enlargement of trade shall give encouragement to send another Ambassador, you need not be informed how much it concerns us to use all frugal means for easing our charge, which we have desired Mr. Lawrence to make his chief design; we hope he will not want your aid in this and what else may conduce to the advantage of trade. He is to receive 500 dollars within 20 days after his arrival for his charges, and 4,000 dollars for a year's salary, by four quarterly payments, the first quarter to begin on his arrival, which you are to satisfy, as also 1,200 dollars to Sir Thos. Bendish, towards his charge of returning home, as we are by covenant engaged. [Levant Papers, Vol. IV., p. 216.]

Levant Company to Spenser Bretton, consul at Smyrna. We have received yours, and notice your difficulties through want of money and trade, and the levitations and loans occasioned thereby; but this we presume has made the arrival of the African and Stamboline more welcome to you after so long a want of shipping, the former of which is, (after our long expectation of her return,) detained at Malaga by the Dutch fleet. However we hope it will please God to continue us in a capacity of going on in our trade, for which end several other ships are now preparing, by means whereof we hope the debts you mention will be extinguished, at a moderate levitation.

We take well your readiness to submit to the condition of the times, and content yourself with the ordinary salary, waiving your gratuity of 1,000 dollars, which we allowed you for your two first years only, until we become better able to remunerate you. We approve of your resolution of dismissing Signor Dant, one of the supernumerary dragomen, and thank you for your advice to those adjacent islands, for preventing the hazard and surprisal of that Flemish man-of-war which lay before your port. We are sorry you have been so long without a minister, having long since elected Dr. Browne, but he being now otherwise designed, we shall take care for some other to be sent you, with whom we will make such a provision that he shall not be over burdensome to you. Your answer concerning Dixwell Brent shall be made known to those it concerns here, who say that certain books and papers of his were left in your hands.

Touching the factors' levitations, we are sorry they dispute a thing so full of reason; we are loth to give way to such a precedent, yet we are also loth to put you upon extremities, by imprisonment and seizure of their goods, unless we had greater encouragement in trade. If you cannot prevail with them in a friendly way to comply, use your discretion in conniving at half levitations, provided they observe the conditions of giving in upon oath an exact account of their principals' and their own goods consigned to them, and satisfy the Company's duties thereon. We say the like concerning the allowance of 8 per cent. on what money they have disbursed on public occasions, wherein they should bear some part of the burden with us; but we suppose there is but little of their money now owing, nor that there will be much occasion for any, but that the trade will of itself bear the succeeding charge. As for the loan of three dollars a cloth on the African, as it was raised on an occasion of necessity, we cannot disallow of the interest of the country to be paid.

We have received your list of the customs paid there, as also of the levitations upon the ships; there is no mention of the persons from whom the respective sums are received, by which means those interested here do not know upon whose account to charge them. We send by Rich. Lawrence the letters of revocation of Sir Thos. Bendish, and have agreed with Lawrence to remain at Constantinople as agent until we can maintain an Ambassador. Assist Levant Company to Rich. Hardy and Saml. Pentlow, treasurers at Smyrna. We have received your letters, and are sorry for the occasion of your complaints for want of trade and shipping, and the burdens of levitations and loans; we do not wholly despair of seeing them in time eased, the coming of the African thither having, we hope, well helped in your occasions. The two bills of exchange mentioned by you as payable to Capt. Ashley and Geo. Joate were omitted in the list sent you, and therefore you have not erred in paying a part of them.

As to our gratuity to the consul, we have ordered him 1,000 dollars a year for his two first years only, but must suspend the future allowance thereof until we are in better capacity; he must content himself with his salary of 2,000 dollars. [Levant Papers, Vol. IV., p. 218.]

10. Jones, Carew, Strickland, Hewson, and Broughton to be a Committee to examine the business of contriving, printing, and publishing a scandalous pamphlet lately come forth, called a Charge against the Lord General. They are to take in writing the examinations of any who can give knowledge thereof, and report; to order search to be made in suspicious places for the press, and the said printed papers, and to bring such as they find to Council; to break open any letters suspected to contain any of the printed papers, or intelligence relating to them; to peruse and keep, or dismiss them as they see cause, and to report to Council from time to time.

11. 72. The Admiralty Committee with Strickland, Jones, Major, and Broughton to be a Committee to consider how to manage the Ordnance Office to the best advantage, and to report speedily.

12. The Mint Committee and the Lieutenant of the Tower to consider what allowances should be made to those employed on the business of the silver taken out of the Samson, Salvadore, and George, over and above the officers of the Mint, and to report.

13. Order for a warrant to the treasurers for moneys raised in Cornwall on the Militia Act to pay to Lieut.-Col. Jos. Hunkyn, Governor of Scilly, 150*l.* remainder undisposed of, towards making up 280*l.* 14*s.* 11*d.* which fell short in the sum assigned for Scilly by the defect of a high collector.

14. To write to the Judges of the Admiralty Court in Scotland to proceed against the ship belonging to Denmark mentioned in their letter of the 8th instant, as taken by a privateer and brought in there, according to the rules and rights of the Admiralty Court, and the tenure of the commission of the privateer that took her. I hope to supply the shot in the time I named, but Sir John Wintour's forge is inconvenient, and there are no forges now in the forest, they having been all demolished, and to set one up will cost 200*l.*; but I will view the place, confer with the masons and carpenters, and then report. 74. Martin Peale to Fras. Willoughby, Navy Commissioner. I have had one man very badly wounded under my care 3 weeks, and been at great charge as Mr. Blake can testify; also Stephen Rudston and Jno. Painter who were cured and sent to Portsmouth. I have another under treatment for a wound in the knee, who might also have been cured had he submitted to amputation, but he defended himself by fencing with his knife, and would not suffer anyone to come near him with instruments to take it off. I have since taken out of the wound a piece of iron 3 inches long, and hope to see as gallant a piece of work performed for him as ever has been done. [1 page.]

They have enjoyed the privilege, time out of mind, of sending a weekly messenger to London, to carry bills of exchange and parcels, make payments, take receipts, &c. Hoped an enlargement of their privileges, but their now messenger is prohibited going by the Committee for Posts, whereby he will lose his employment, and they be exposed to greater charges and trouble in despatch of their weekly affairs. 76. Case of Capt. Jno. Mynn, son and administrator of Thos. Mynn, knight harbinger to Kings James and Charles. That in that service he spent and sold land worth 300*l.* a year, while the fees and wages were left unpaid.

That King Charles, by grant of 28th March 1638, in consideration of Mynn's services, and in satisfaction of 2,078*l.* arrears of his pay, and for a release of 1,000*l.* more due to him from the King, granted him 5,000*l.* out of the arrears of rents, subsidies, &c. still owing to King James, but before Mynn had reaped any benefit thereby he died.

The late Act of general pardon has pardoned all the said debts and arrears due to King James, but such arrears were all that John Mynn had to subsist upon, and he is now a prisoner in the Fleet, without anything to redeem himself, and therefore desires order to receive the residue of his debt out of such other payable debts and duties as are not pardoned by the said Act. there was an old man in the house that had not been down these nine months, and that she could not get him down, neither would she go about it. They then desired her to give them some silver, but she told them she hoped they would not do her wrong, as she did not know what belonged to such things, and they said by no means; and when they saw they could not have possession, they went away.

My sister entreats you to find Fras. Grege, and inform him of this, for she will not be persuaded but that you can do her some good.

80. Major N. Bourne to the Admiralty Committee. Being confident of your favorable acceptance, I take liberty for a word, as I received some intimation thereunto when with you the other day. I have no design to stir up notice of my poor service, yet I have served the honest interest of this nation heartily ever since I was called thereto, both by land and sea, and for four years have been employed about the navy, but I never propounded advantage to myself, nor have I made it my design to enlarge myself.

For 2 years I commanded a squadron on the coast of Scotland, and had a charge of another nature relating to the army, which is well known to the Lord General and the Generals at sea. What my service was it does not become me to relate; but of this I am sure, that I had a large opportunity there to scatter what I had before gathered by my own endeavours, my allowance being only the ordinary salary belonging to the ship's rank, 12s. a day, though three times as much was allowed to others in the same capacity, whose service was neither more honorable nor of higher concernment to the nation; but possibly I might have obtained more if I could have steered the same course with others.

As for my last year's service, I cannot be certain what my allowance is like to be for the time I served before I received commission as rear-admiral of the fleet; during that time I commanded a squadron, and rode in the Downs and elsewhere wearing a flag.

As for the present year, since being appointed to this station, upon advice of a likelihood of the fleet's being engaged, in February last I was ordered to Dover, to take command of a squadron, which was promised to be sent to me there, so as to fall upon the enemy; which service was welcome to me, and though I left my family and estate unsettled, I did not dispute with any such low considerations,

VOL. XL.

Sept. 18. knowing that the interest of the Lord Jesus and his Saints (at present so deeply concerned in these affairs) would be a sufficient compensation.

I will not instance particulars wherein I have saved hundreds of pounds in buying masts, deals, &c., when I have been upon the coast, which every man is not capacitated for, nor the continual toil of body and mind that hath attended me in those negotiations, by a constant motion from Dover to Yarmouth, Gravesend and Lee, before I came to Harwich; but if the orders and warrants directed to me were consulted, they might say more than I am willing you should take notice of; neither am I solicitous about this matter, but rather study what my duty is, in order to the public good.

I confess I have acted the least part as a Commissioner of the Navy, but the exigencies of your affairs would not allow me to observe those distances, or stand upon such terms as might have suited other men's apprehensions, and I have willingly taken up any man's work, so that the usual delays and demurs might not prejudice affairs. What ships have been sent into Harwich, and what assistance I have had from the master shipwright, attendant, and storekeeper, is well known.

Besides what properly fell under my hand in the capacity I am now in, I was empowered by the General to give orders to all ships on the coast in his absence, which gave me an additional opportunity of expense for encouragement of the work; and the truth is I could not be over frugal, neither would the places of my residence admit it, where provisions were very much enhanced in price by occasion of the fleet's neighbourhood, and no one left but myself to afford entertainment.

I cannot present a particular account of the charge and expenses in travelling to and from my residence upon the coast, and shall therefore leave that to your pleasure, and trust you will find my readiness the same at all times, as I do not serve for wages, or expect to increase my outward estate; yet I am confident you will judge it equal that I should so far tender my family as to desire the preserving what I had when I entered service, unless the necessity of the public require it, to which I shall freely submit.

I do not know of six hours spent about my private concernment these many months, and it is not convenient for me to express wherein, or how much I have suffered in my private affairs, as I am content they should be dead at present; I thank the Lord I have done this out of the apprehension I have of a necessity lying upon me to act with all my might, and that upon principles of conscience. living in London and Westminster, complaining that they are molested in the exercise of their manufactures and callings, by being indicted at sessions, and having such other proceedings against them as are provided by penal statutes in that case, by reason of which many labouring families are like to perish; which matter Council having considered, as also the order of Parliament of Sept. 2 concerning the advantage of encouraging protestant strangers in the exercise of their manufactures within the State, request Parliament to reconsider several penal statutes on the matter in hand, and to repeal such as they think fit.

2. 81, 82. A war ship to be appointed for wafting over the Vice-Chancellor of Poland to Dieppe or Calais; the Admiralty Committee to give order accordingly.

3. The Committee for examining printers to send for Robert Austin, printer, now prisoner in the Gatehouse, and examine him further about the printing of the Charge against the Lord General; Thurloe to give all the information he has to the Committee.

Order on petition of Adrian Baltee, cabinet-maker, a German, that a letter be written to the Corporation for Westminster, to tell them that Parliament has referred it to Council to consider the condition of French and Dutch strangers now in England, and to desire them to forbear proceeding against the petitioner till further order.

7, 8. A warrant to be drawn on the Excise Commissioners to pay 2,000*l.* to Mr. Frost towards Lord Whitelock's embassy to Sweden, and a letter written to the Commissioners for Inspection to certify the charging of this sum on the Excise.

9. Council having perused Viscount Lisle's account of money advanced to him to provide for his embassy to Sweden, find that he received 3,000*l.* in hand, of which he disbursed 1,620*l.* in preparations, most of which are at the service of the commonwealth. Also that during the time of his preparation, he was at great charge in keeping a table, and maintaining a retinue and horses taken on for the service, and that he lost in disposing of the horses, &c. They therefore think that 380*l.* should be allowed him therefor, making with the 1,620*l.* disbursements 2,000*l.*, and that the remaining 1,000*l.* should be paid to Mr. Frost for Council. On this being done, and the coach, harness, and 17 liveries provided by him being delivered up, they discharge his account.

Finding the business of our office so much increased, we made application to the Admiralty Committee to take off that part lately imposed on us relating to sick and wounded men, the widows and impotent parents of such as are slain in the service, and prisoners, which to be done as it ought, is business sufficient to take up our time. Besides the prejudice that comes through our want of time to attend this business, it's a great disservice to have the lamentable cries of such persons in the ears of seamen, who by multitudes have recourse to our office. Understanding from the Admiralty Committee that they have made a report to you of several persons, with instructions to manage that affair, we entreat a speedy settlement thereof. [2 page.]

87. Chas. Longland to the Admiralty Committee. As the French post did not arrive last week, we are without any letters from England. The Dutch men-of-war have all departed except two who are on the career, and two Dutch merchantmen have arrived from Smyrna, the least being worth 50,000*l.*

The French now drive a great trade for Turkey, having 20 sail trading thither from Marseilles, whereof more than half are worth 50,000*l.* each, so you may see, if you sent out a fleet into these seas with a Commander-in-Chief acquainted therewith, you need take little care for their payment, as they will be able to find themselves both meat, drink, and wages.

VOL. XL.

It is rumoured that the Turkish fleet has got out of Rhodes into Candia, and there surprised and taken a strong place from the Venetians, who it is supposed will be forced to quit the island. The Venetians are at Milo. If a good English fleet should appear in the midst of this war between the Turks and Venetians before Constantinople, they might obtain what conditions of trade they pleased from the Turk, even to the exclusion of other nations from the trade, and reserve it for ourselves, and especially a trade between Alexandria and Constantinople, which might employ 20 sail of good ships yearly.

We hear that 4 of the best ships of the King of France have gone from Toulon to wait for the Dutch merchant ships coming from Turkey. The French still persist in taking all nations they can meet with, and the Dutch, like a nation prostituted to their slavery, lie in this port without so much as looking after a Frenchman, or seeking their own reparation from them. The Dutch here report that their men-of-war at the Straits' mouth are to go home this month or next.

There are two of the Warwick's men still lying here at the State's charge, for want of a ship to England, one wanting an arm and the other a leg. They were put on shore out of the Bonadventure. With copy of his letter of the 5th inst. [2½ pages.]

[Sept. 19.] 88. Petition of Capt. Peter Whitty of the Freeman to the Admiralty Committee. Being at Genoa in '50, I went to Kater Jane [Carthage], on the coast of Spain, to take in wools for Venice. I heard that the Black Prince, bought by Prince Rupert, was fired by her company near Cape Paul, one of the King of Spain's forts, and that her guns lay in 4 fathoms water. I agreed with the gentry there to pay rates for such as I could recover, and with boats and a diver brought up 4, of which 2 had the French arms and 2 the Rose and Crown. I then went to Venice, served 2 years against the Turks, and returned in service of the commonwealth.

I will render you the guns, if you will pay the expenses; if not, I beg leave to sell them to regain my expenses. [1 page.] Annexing,

Sept. 19. 90. Jas. Thurbarne to Edw. Marston. Having mislaid your letter and certificate, the matter to which they relate quite escaped my memory; but having found the latter, I return it, as I am not certain to what it relates without the former. Endorsed with draft of a letter to [the Navy Commissioners] respecting the services of the captain and company of the Bonadventure in the fight with the Dutch at Leghorn and in the Straits, and as to a gratuity of 5l. a piece which

119. Major N. Bourne to the Admiralty Committee. Account of ships in port, and of their defects and repairs. The seamen should not be paid until ready to sail, as many have already gone to London and other places. I want an order to the Governor of Landguard Fort for a troop of horse to guard the town, otherwise there will be no living here and keeping up any face of authority. The letter to the Mayor and magistrates to suppress the excessive number of tippling houses which so much debauch the seamen is not yet come. 120. Capt. Willoughby Harman to the Admiralty Committee. I sailed from Harwich with the three convoys on the 17th, but lost one, commanded by Mr. Noble, through his own neglect, and I cannot hear anything of him; we had much ado to keep our ships from running ashore on the coast of Norway. The merchants here report that there is a fleet of Holland men-of-war of 40 sail, and 8 East Indiamen, under the Scaw, and wonder how we missed them. The two convoys will soon be laden and ready to return, as there are plenty of masts. [½ page.]

I am informed that Appleton, with his counsellor Reading, has made bold to abuse me at home, in giving in some writings against me to the Commissioners; I hope their wisdom will so direct them as not to receive, or at least believe, what may be insinuated by such men, the one shipless by his own folly, and the other impudent and shameless. Sept. 26. 122. Thos. Broome to Edw. Marston. Ask Mr. Nowell, clerk of the Committee for Removing Obstructions at Worcester House, for a copy of the petition of the Mayor and jurats of Dover, and of a grant of the lands bought by Col. Rich, which were granted by Queen Elizabeth and the late King for reparations of Dover harbour in case of want. Also ask Mr. Week, surveyor-general for the sale of crown lands, for the petition and copy of the grant of Queen Elizabeth and the late King left with him two years since, as they are of much concern, and the harbour is almost lost. If you will let me know when you have them, and what you have laid out, I will come up and pay you, and also for your pains. [1 page.]

Sept. 27. 123. Petition of Capt. Wm. Hale, of Bristol, to the Council of State, for employment in the navy. Being master of the Dove of Bristol, bound to Leghorn on a merchant's voyage, was taken by the Dutch, and being stripped of all, even to the shoes on his feet, he, his two sons, and two servants, were kept prisoners on board the Sun of Amsterdam, in which he was at the fight with Capt. Badiley, and until the December following. Upon his exchange, being very passionate to serve the State against their enemies, he accepted the master's place of the Sampson, under Capt. Seaman, and was in the late fight at Leghorn with Van Galen, in which the ship was fired by the enemy, and one of petitioner's sons slain; another was wounded, and blown up with the ship, yet preserved on a piece of the ship in the sea, but blind for 11 days after being taken up, and he and one of his servants were taken prisoners. Has two sons and a servant now in the fleet. Has lost 400*l.* in the service.

6. To signify to the sheriffs of London that Council this day was informed that one Collet, a person with whom upon good ground they are dissatisfied, is in election to be under-sheriff, and therefore they do not approve of his being put in a place of trust, but leave it to the sheriffs to choose some other fit person.

126. Major N. Bourne to the Admiralty Committee. I have been on board the several ships in port; particulars of their wants of masts, stores, &c. I am doing my best to carry on the work, and sensible of the stress of affairs. I think the price of the house will be 340*l*. The town is very nasty and sickly, and something like a prison to me. I wonder the garrison should be dismantled at this season, when so many men of the fleet are here, many of whom must be awed by authority. Also I much want orders as to the Dutch prisoners. Until you put the cash into other hands, pray settle some way whereby I may have a supply of money. [1½ pages.]

127. Order by the Commissioners for Inspecting the Treasuries, that Blackwell and Leman, Treasurers-at-war, pay to Rich. Hutchinson, Navy Treasurer, 20,000*l*. on account from the 200,000*l*.

Sept. 28. 129. Petition of Michael Andrew, late purser of the Falmouth, to the Council of State, for an order to the Prize Commissioners to pay the captain and company's share of the prizes Hunter and Sancta Maria, taken by the frigate last October. [1 page.]

Sept. 28. 131. Petition of John Marston, late minister at Henbury, co. Gloucester, to the Council of State. Was residing in Oxford when the late King came thither with his army; for want of judgment and heavenly illumination, so far espoused his cause as to remain some time amongst them, yet gradually came out of darkness, and in Dec. 1643 surrendered to Parliament, addressed the Committee of both kingdoms, and to make himself irreconcilable to those he had forsaken, discovered a jewel of the late King's in Windsor Castle, worth 6,000*l.*, and refused the 600*l.*, being 2*s.* in the pound, for his discovery, and only took 5*l.* to carry him into the country.

Then became minister at Henbury, and tried with success to satisfy scruples about taking the engagement.

In the Scots' invasion and attempts at Worcester, would have raised a troop of horse, but was prevented by their speedy overthrow. Yet by the agitation of a few people, the Committee for Plundered Ministers have dismissed him, on the exception in the Act of Oblivion which forbids the restoring any man to office who was disabled by any former Act, unless he be approved by Parliament, which would lead men to think that no services can ever reconcile them.

This severity has not abated his affection to the present government, and having now an estate to discover worth 100,000*l.*, and forfeited by the late engagement at Worcester, he begs indemnity from the said exceptions in the Act of Oblivion, and examination of his witnesses, not by county Commissioners, but such as Council shall appoint. [1 page.]

Sept. 28. Order that Broughton, Jones, Desborow, and Montague be a Committee to consider his discovery, and report. [I. 71, p. 2.]

24. Order on Dr. Walker's report in the case of Thos. Chilstone, fishmonger of London, owner of the Prosperous privateer, of which Abr. Mootham, now dead, was commander, that—as Chilstone was sole owner, and as Mootham's commission was procured, and the ship set forth at Chilstone's charge; also as Mootham in his lifetime disclaimed all interest in the prizes to be taken, except the share due for the hazard of himself and company—the Admiralty Judges admit Chilstone to plead in their court his interest in the prizes brought in by the Prosperous, Chilstone's oath to clear his property in the vessel and Mootham's disclaimer being first filed in the Admiralty Court.

25. The Ordnance Committee to send 2,000 snaphance muskets, 1,500 matchlock muskets, 1,000 case of pistols with holsters, 1,000 pikes, and 5,000 collars of bandoleers into Scotland, for disposal of Col. Lilburne.

26. 133. The part of Col. Lilburne's letter to his Excellency, dated Dalkeith, the 22nd instant, relating to the sufferings and wants of the shipping employed on the coast of Scotland, referred to the Admiralty Committee, to refit the said ships, and repair what they have lost in the late storms.

27. Audience to be given to the secretary from Venice to-morrow at 4 p.m.; Fleming to give him notice.

28. Order, on the report of the Admiralty Judges,—setting forth that diverse Dutch ships have been brought up by Reeve Williams, captain of a privateer against the French, some of which have been judged lawful prizes, and some are still undecided, for which service, against the custom of allowing a moiety, Capt. Williams has not been rewarded,—that he shall receive one third of the value of the ships adjudged as lawful prizes, procuring a certificate from the Admiralty Judges what ships were brought up by him and adjudged to the use of the commonwealth, and a certificate from the Commissioners for Prize Goods, of the true value of the ships and goods.

30. Col. Sydenham to tell Parliament that present sums are wanted for the setting forth of Lord Commissioner Whitelock to Sweden, and to petition for an order for charging them upon some treasury where ready money may be had, Council finding that most of the public treasuries are already assigned to the navy, or for carrying on the important affairs of the commonwealth.

Has served faithfully 11 years, as gunner, master's mate, master, and lieutenant, and lost his right hand in the fight with the Dutch 2 and 3 July last, in surprising a man-of-war. 16. St. Nicholas, Broughton, and Harrison to be a Committee to confer with those who have presented a petition from the late King's servants, about a reward for a discovery which they tender to Council on condition of an allowance for making it, and to make such agreements as they think fit, provided Council approve the nature of the discovery so as to put it into execution.

18. The Committee for Prisoners to take special care for the speedy exchange of the persons whose names are in the annexed list, now prisoners with the Dutch.

19. Order on a report from the Admiralty Committee—about an account of 3,500*l.* received at Lisbon for Gen. 20. 140. Order, on report from the Admiralty Committee about the disposing of guns and ammunition now in the castles at Jersey, that the said Committee order them to be given up for the use of the navy, and order the said castles to be supplied with others in their stead.

21. Order,—on report from the Admiralty Committee that Capt. such as are or have been slain since 1 January 1649, and for ordering of prisoners in the war. [ $2\frac{1}{2}$  sheets.]

- (1.) To inquire into the constitution and state of the chest at Chatham, and give their opinions about its management.
- (2.) To take account of the sick and wounded in hospitals, and to see that as soon as they are set on shore they are ordered to fit hospitals, in fit proportions, receiving the allowance of the house, or more where that is incompetent. If the hospitals cannot contain all, to see the rest provided for as reasonably as possible, considering the State's charge in these exhausting times.
- (3.) To direct the mayors and officers of seaport towns to provide for the sick and wounded, and to provide what surgeons, &c. are needful.
- (4.) To give 10*l.* or less gratuity, and 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* or less pension to those wounded in the service, and where more should be given, to certify it to the Admiralty Committee.
- (5.) To take care that the money ordered by Parliament to the orphans of those slain be improved for their benefit, and secured from all embezzlement.
- (6.) To give to the widows, children, and impotent parents of those slain in the service 10*l.* or less, proportioning the relief to the desert of the party slain, in voluntariness, courage, and faithfulness; also to his employment as officer or seaman, the number of children, poverty of relations, &c., having a vigilant eye that the certificates are from credible persons, and no deceits used. To prevent this, the clerk of the check of each ship is to send to the Commissioners, after every engagement, a list of the wounded and slain, signed by the captain or chief officer, with particulars of the case.
- (7.) The same rule to be observed when sick men are sent on shore for refreshment and recovery.
- (8.) The Commissioners are to take care that the sick and wounded return to their ships when cured, unless disabled by loss of limb.
- (9.) They are to dispose of all prisoners taken at sea at 4*d.* a day maintenance, common men and inferior officers, till they can be employed, to ease the public charge, and 1*s.* commission officers. The sick and wounded to be sent to hospitals for cure.

Sept. 29. Navy Office. 142. Navy Commissioners to the Admiralty Committee. We have already often urged that this office wants an additional staff and a fit house. Consider the difference between setting out 30 sail as in former years, and upwards of 200 now, and yet we have but the same help. If the number of men, seamen, sums of money, &c. dealt with, were compared with former times, this office would not be so neglected. We should betray our trust if we did not urge a timely remedy, or dismissal from our employment. [1 page.]
- Sept. 29. Harwich. 143. Major N. Bourne to the Admiralty Committee. Further account of the state of ships in harbour, and of the works going on. I think the soldiers in them might have tickets and be paid off, as they are miserably off for clothes. The owner of the house required for the State is cold at selling it upon the terms proposed; as for the other required for a hospital, I will endeavour to settle it speedily, but the people are adverse to let beds go, presuming they are clear by the Act. This course (the hospital) would be good for the poor men, and save money, and I should like to try it here.
I want an order as to the Dutch prisoners, who are many and run all over the country, giving much trouble. [2½ pages.]
- Sept. 29. Harwich. 144. Major N. Bourne to the Navy Commissioners. Particulars of the arrival of ships and their defects. I want 10 or 12 carpenters sent down in the hulk as also the stores, and some officers to look after and deliver them.
The owner of the house has been offered 320*l.* for it. I suppose 340*l.* will buy it, and it will be a good pennyworth for a storehouse. Some ordnance officers should be sent down to look after remains, and deliver stores from Landguard Fort.
Several prizes have been spoiled for want of present sale. The maintaining a company of knaves about them eats up all. They ought to be speedily sold here or at Yarmouth. [1½ page.]
- Sept. 29. The Amity, Yarmouth Roads. 145. Capt. Hen. Park to the Navy Commissioners. I was one of the 14 sail under Captains Martin and Hill, ordered by the General to ply off Heligoland, but got separated through foul weather, so that Capt. Hill could not deliver the General's instructions to Capt. Martin. I have come in for orders and repairs, having been much damaged by the Royal Defence running foul of me.
I took a Holland hoy laden with herrings for the Sound, which I also lost in the storm, with 5 of my men in her, but I hope she is well. [1 page.]

Scott, Scotchmen, and subjects of this commonwealth, and Peter Nott of Lubec, to the Council of State, for the restoration of 3 butts of sack which are spoiling. Bought and shipped the same in the Sampson at Cadiz in November 1652, but in coming to England, the ship was seized by some of the ships of the commonwealth; since then the two first petitioners have served and are now serving in the navy, and Walker fought in both the late engagements against the Dutch. With references thereon to the Admiralty Committee, and by the Committee for preserving of Customs to the Commissioners of Customs. [1½ pages.]

4. Order on petition of John Manley, farmer of the Post Office, that Nicholas Reader of Norwich, Mr. Bull of Bury, and John Edwards of Dover, be summoned to appear before Council on Thursday, to answer for their contempt of Council's orders prohibiting the carrying of letters post.

5. Council to meet at 8 a.m. to-morrow to consider the business of the winter guard.

6. A pass to be granted to the ship Elephant, to transport 150 Dutch prisoners to Holland, on an agreement with the Commissioners from the Netherlands now here for exchange of as many of the English nation now prisoners in the Netherlands.

us know what is to be done with them, as also which of the 18 ships mentioned in the margin are appointed for the winter guard, so that we may hasten their despatch; may we put upwards of 40 Dutch prisoners which they have brought in to work here, as they seem willing to work, or shall we send them to London?

There is a prisoner lying in Upnor Castle committed for firing the Fairfax; let him be at once tried by a Council of War, as the charge of his keep is 5s. a week. We will hasten the repairs of the Resolution. [1 page.]

Sept. 30.

151. Report by Dr. Walker to Council, on the petition of George Boschaert, referred to the Admiralty Judges. He represents in general terms that being a Hamburger, on his return from Spain, he was taken by our ships, and has waited many months to prove his interest in what he claims. His claim, often agitated, is for 20,000*l.* if not 40,000*l.* of silver in the Samson, Salvador, and George. The masters alleged the ships were free, being laden in free ports and to and from free ports. I required specification, and the rule of the Court was consonant thereto, and after long debate between the English and Spanish advocate, I obtained an order for it.

The shipmasters asked 6 months to make their claims, but meanwhile many particular claims were put in, and among them this of Boschaert, on 24 May 1653, for several great parcels of silver, on which I protested.

Many witnesses were examined, but weighty affairs prevented my having the matter heard before Council. Perusing Violet's book offering to prove the falsity of the bills of lading, and the frauds used by the Dutch, to make it out that most of the silver belonged to them, I tried to gain all the information I could from him, the Commissioners for Prize Goods, and the agents and solicitors. By the late order of 1 Sept. they were to confer with me, and I urged them to write down all their evidence, and issued a warrant for the claims, bills of lading, &c. to be shown to Violet.

Some examinations have since been taken, but more are required. Violet promises his help as soon as he has despatched something now before Council.

Therefore the matter is not ready for settlement, for though the proofs are published on Boschaert's part, they have to be made on the other side. But lest the time should run out and the claimers press an hearing, dispatch should be used that Violet may produce his evidence, it being very important that the case be managed according to the laws and practice of nations. 1. Many have been long out, and are foul and defective.
2. The ships generally are not  $\frac{3}{4}$  manned, and most of the foul ones might be fitted out in little more time than they can be manned.
3. Many seamen have been long abroad without their pay, which is their whole livelihood, and their discontent, if sent out again unpaid, would prejudice the service.
4. If the ships are sent out uncleaned, beside the danger of the sea this winter, they will have to be called in to fit in the spring time, when there is most need of their service. [Draft, 1 page.]

2. Capt. Jno. Hayward to the Council of State. By order of Rear-Admiral Lawson I convoyed merchant ships to Hamburg, and being at anchor in the Elbe, Gen. Monk ordered me to convoy to the Thames the masts and powder bought there by Bradshaw, the Resident. We sailed 22 Sept., hoping to meet Capt. Hill's squadron. We heard that 12 Holland men-of-war were sent out of the Texel to intercept us, but this and much foul weather notwithstanding, we have all arrived safely except 2; viz., an Iceland bark, laden with fish, which was taken by the Dutch, but retaken by Capt. Oddy, of the Nonsuch, and a small ketch, bound also for London; they lost sight of our fleet by foul weather. My master has almost completed the purchase of beef and pork at the various seaport towns for the service of next year, and has now gone to London, leaving me to assist Mr. Thompson, the agent here, in taking an account of the cattle to be killed. I shall remain with him the winter, if you think it will be to my advantage. Give my mother a line thereon; remember me to Capt. Wildey and Mr. Harvey. [1 page.]

4. Major N. Bourne to the Admiralty Committee. I received the order to the Governor of Landguard to maintain a guard here as occasion requires, as also the order of the Lord-General for a troop to keep up the authority of the service. I think the state of this place, and of the present affairs here, was not fully known or foreseen by those who procured the order to demolish this garrison; but being upon the place, we are sensible of it, and of the boldness of several who dared not adventure before, who now proceed to throw down not only the line but a fort, which was formerly a main guard, and the only place I had to commit to, or secure persons in. Unless some such place be continued, and a guard maintained, I shall desire to be removed, rather than be forced to see such violence and insolence committed, and no power to suppress it.

We had a taste yesterday of what we may frequently look for, and I was forced to be more mild than I should have been if I had been in another capacity; yet I was forced to make a shift to reduce them, with great trouble. What I have suffered already, as to this part, besides the care of all other matters, is not fit for me to relate, but I am sure it will much benefit the service, and encourage honest instruments, when the pride and insolence of men's spirits dare not show itself. I have presumed to stop the throwing down the fort or mount until I hear from you.

The Mary prize and Gift sail to-day, the captains having received orders from General Monck. Business goes on slowly in comparison with what I desire. I can do little without another hulk, the old one being sunk, and a supply of masts. Particulars of ships.

A greater part of the seamen and many of the officers are absent, but by the time they return, and have been paid, many of the ships will be ready to sail; if they could be supplied with clothes on board at any honest rate, that would be best.

I was always slow about purchasing the house, and although I am clear from any temptation of desiring to make my habitation here, yet I might be thought to do what is too common, viz., drive on private design under public pretences; therefore could I have done less in faithfulness to the service, I was resolved never to move in it; but since it is thought fit not to conclude about it, I will only add that I have proceeded as far as I can, and promised an answer to-morrow, and in case it is otherwise disposed of, and we want it hereafter, I hope I shall be blameless. The place I am in gives me little content, and were it not in obedience to commands, I would wish myself out of it.

I have written the Lord-General as to guarding the town, being doubtful whether a sufficient number can be spared from Landguard fort, and desire your furtherance, so that some small company of foot may be sent hither, and that the fort, which was the place of the main guard, may be kept up. 5. Charles Longland to the Admiralty Committee. The Dutch fleet of war mentioned in mine of the 19th Sept. returned into port through foul weather, but left again this week for the west, being 9 sail besides merchantmen; most think it is to lie at the Straits' mouth to intercept fish ships, their season now approaching. We have advice that a Dutch fleet of 15 sail, that lay all this summer at the Straits' mouth, departed homewards on 28 Aug., with as many merchantmen in their company; also that young Tromp with his 5 ships was met in the Straits' mouth a month since, and it was supposed he was going home.

I cannot say more touching our navigation in these seas or mercantile affairs for want of letters from you; but good purchases might be got if you sent a fleet into these seas without making any noise of their coming. Since our nation has been ousted, the Dutch and French have trebled their trade for Turkey; it is ordinary to have a small Frenchman of 140 tons worth 50,000*l.*, and of these there are many in the Levant, besides Dutch ships of twice that value. If you intend a fleet for these seas this winter, as soon as they are come into the Straits, let 4 or 5 frigates be sent to ply between Cape Spartavento and the eastern end of Malta, where they cannot fail to meet with all ships from the Levant. They should not speak at any port, or make themselves known, neither should their design be known in England until a month after their departure; for if it be known here, news will be carried to all parts, and your ships prevented of that purchase that otherwise cannot well miss them. All their prizes, as well ships as goods, may be sold here at their full value, and the money lie here to supply the fleet, without putting the state to any charge, and thus a trade may again be quickly opened to our navigation.

A year since the Council of State wrote me of 20,000*l.* they were to receive of the king of Portugal at Lisbon, which they intended this way for redemption of captives. I advised them that there was no exchange thence, nor extraction of Spanish money from Portugal, so that it seemed to me the best way to employ the money was in goods to be sent hither. If that money is still extant, and the same resolution continues of sending it this way from Lisbon, then you may please to know that pepper has risen 25 per cent., and will be more beneficial than sugar or any other commodity that comes from Lisbon.

The Council of State likewise wrote me about buying gunpowder at 4*l.* 10*s.* per barrel, which could not then be had, but now it may. If you intend a fleet this way, let me know, that I may provide requisites for them. With copy of his letter of 19 Sept. [3 pages.]

Capt. Allinton of a private man-of-war came in after they struck, and manning two of them, came along with us, and thus secured the rest into the Downs. 3. Mr. Moyer to move Parliament to appoint a Committee to examine into the state of the receipt of the public revenue, and to give fit directions for its management.

4. To write to the Governor of Portsmouth that Council think the walls and works of Arundel Castle should be slighted, and the place disgarrisoned; to desire him to do the same, and to sell the salt and victuals now in the Castle towards defraying the charge of slighting the walls and works, which is to be done with some of the powder now in the Castle, and the rest of the powder to be sent to Portsmouth. Also to report his proceedings.

5. To write the Army Committee what is done about disgarrisoning Arundel Castle, and to desire that the pay of that place be allowed to the garrison of Portsmouth, for increasing the number of private soldiers in the several companies.

6. The making of a representation to Council of the Isle of Wight, and what is the best way to alter the several garrisons in the said island, and what is to be done for its safety, referred to the Governor of the Isle of Wight, upon a motion made to Council by the Lord General.

Chatham.

28. Capt. Jas. Reynolds to the Admiralty Committee. Coming up in company of Capt. Goodson, we met a tumultuous company of seamen between Gravesend and Chatham, headed by several inferior officers of my own and other ships; their malice appeared wholly against me, accusing me as the sole instrument why they have not been paid, saying that their money was told out on the table and I detained it. Neither I nor Capt. Goodson could prevail with them in anything. The seamen have been incensed against me since I was 2 days in London, and it is a mercy I escaped with my life. Commissioner Pett and other captains here have agreed to pay 1s. 6d. a day to those who will give attendance on board, so the work will be better done in the absence of the others, and I hope next week to be in Tilbury Hope. 29. Capt. N. Heaton to Robt. Blackborne. Being near the Isle of Bass last Monday, in company of the Pearl, we sighted sail, whereupon he chased westward, and I to the east, in pursuit of a Brest man-of-war, and so separated; at sunset near the Sept Isles, I had sight of 8 sail, to whose company the Brest ship went; having the weather gauge, I resolved to keep them company, and by their carrying a light and other symptoms, I knew them to be ships of good force or men-of-war.

As soon as it was light on Tuesday, I found by their colours they were Frenchmen, viz., admiral, vice, and rear, and 5 others, some of 10, 8, and 6 guns besides the Brest man-of-war. I having the wind bore with their admiral, a frigate of 24 guns. In a line with him lay his vice and rear admiral, the rest being some ahead and others astern. At 7 a.m., being 4 leagues from the Sept Isles, and with a temperate gale, I fired 2 guns at the admiral, who answered with a broadside; I then bore up, thinking to board her, for he was the best sailer, but he soon put before the wind, and shortly after I got between him and his vice-admiral, where I plied both sides. After some balls were tossed, the vice-admiral cried for quarter, the admiral ran, and the fleet was dispersed. I made to the admiral, and at musket shot distance, it fell calm, and there we disputed until 2 p.m.; then I left him, fearing the other that had yielded would go, as I had no men on board of her; I then sent a boat full on board, and chased again, and before 5 p.m., I had taken another, and by 8 p.m., became master of the rear-admiral also. Thus God in mercy not only delivered me from them, who were men-of-war as well as merchantmen, but also gave me a happy and beneficial victory for the commonwealth.

I took the St. John de Grace of St. Malo, vice-admiral, of 300 tons and 22 guns, laden with linen, bound to Calais, and carrying 80 men, of which 14 were slain, and 15 wounded, the captain and lieutenant mortally; also the 3 Kings of Hamburg, called Regis Admiral, 130 tons and 10 guns, laden with 40 tons of wheat and cloth, and carrying 50 men bound for Calais, and the Chaceflower of St. Malo, 80 tons, with 15 men and 2 guns, laden with beef and pork for St. Christopher's. I had 4 men slain, and my lieutenant, boatswain, and 5 more wounded; I have 3 shots in the mainmast, by which it is unserviceable, and the bowsprit is disabled. Pray move the Commissioners for an order that I may be speedily fitted, as there are masts here that will serve. One of my guns is also split. [1 page.]

30. Order in the Admiralty Committee. Great inconvenience accrues by the delay in refitting ships sent into harbour, for prevention of which the commanders are to be henceforth enjoined to attend on board, to look to the speedy refitting and manning. The Navy Commissioners are therefore, on notice given, to cause the commanders to be entered into sea pay as soon as any workmen are employed on their ships, and their attendance is to be strictly observed, and any neglect certified. [1 page.]

Oct. 8.

31. Petition of Miles Flesher, master, and Hum. Robinson and other wardens of the Stationers' Company, to the Council of State. We were commanded by your warrant of 20 Sept. to search for and seize two almanacs by Wharton and Fitz-Smith, which contained scandalous matter against the Government, and thereupon searched the houses of several printers, and particularly that of Robt. White, printer, and seized 5,000 such almanacs in several places.

In the house of White, who caused Wharton's Almanac to be printed, and offered it to be entered in our register, we found another Almanac printed under the name of Goldsmith, which, because it was not entered in our register, according to the direction of the late Act, and because we have a right therein, confirmed by the said Act, which made the same forfeited, we seized also, by virtue of another warrant, brought the same to Stationers' Hall, and gave Mr. Frost an account of our proceedings.

White thereupon complained to the Council of State, who referred the matter to the Irish and Scotch Committee, but we hope we have satisfied them that we have done nothing contrary to the said Act and your warrant.

We, or our predecessors, purchased the right of printing all almanacs from such as had a grant thereof from Queen Elizabeth, for which we paid above 1,000*l.*, and the same was ratified by a grant from King James, and has been enjoyed by us 60 years, and out of the profits thereof, and of some other small books, 200*l.* a year has been paid to our poor for many years. The right was confirmed to us by the late Parliament in June 1643, and September 1649. By our enjoyment thereof, the commonwealth is not in the least prejudiced, and without this we cannot support ourselves or our poor, nor pay the many hundred pounds borrowed for the State's service, nor serve the State as we do daily, with great hazard and expense.

We beg approval of the seizure, and protection of our rights and privileges against the malice of our enemies.

[Oct. 8.]

32. Remonstrance of the Stationers' Company, arguing the necessity of supervision of the press, detailing the grants thereof to themselves, and justifying their seizure of the almanacs found in the house of Robt. White, a printer in the city of London, under the before-mentioned grants and Acts of Parliament. [3½ pages.]

3. The passes formerly granted to Peter de Brun, for importing 100 tuns of French wine, to be enlarged to the returning of the ship which shall bring it in.

4. The Lieutenant of the Tower, Dr. Staynes, Mr. Downing, and Mr. Phelps, appointed to sort the Scotch records in the Tower, to report their doings to Council, and meantime not to permit any records to go to Scotland but what shall be particularly viewed by them.

5. Order on petition of Francis Gambull, that a pass be granted him to return to England, he entering into a bond to Mr. Thurloe in 1,000*l.*, and 500*l.* each for two sureties, to act nothing to the prejudice of the commonwealth.

6. Order, on petition of Robert Filbrigg, for admittance into the office of keeping the Records of the Prerogative Office, that he be joined to Mr. Browne therein, provided Browne be contented therewith.

7. Mr. Strickland to present the state of the mastership of Katherine's Hospital to Parliament, for them to consider and give order.

8. Wolsley, Strickland, and Tichborne to repair to Ambassador Whitelock, to tell him that Council desires him to use all expedition in his journey to Sweden, his dispatch being of great concern.

9. Mr. Attorney-General to prepare a commission for Whitelock to go to Sweden from the commonwealth.

10. 33. The Admiralty Commissioners to appoint fit ships of war, and such as can soon be got ready, to carry him to Sweden. [I. 71, pp. 60-2.]

Oct. 8.

34. Report by Dr. Walter Walker, And. Riccard, John Crouther, and Thos. Player, of the damage done to the Friendship, John Blake commander, hired by the Guinea Company for a voyage to Gambia. It left the Thames September 1651, reached Gambia in November, anchored and traded three months, when a fleet, under Princes Rupert and Maurice, coming up in March 1652, assaulted and took it, with the goods, negroes, &c. on board. Prince Maurice told Blake that being at the Portuguese island of St. Iago, the Governor desired him to go to the Gambia river, and take or destroy three English vessels, the Friendship and 2 pinnaces, on account of the trade of the Portuguese in the river, and gave him pilots and provisions. The Portuguese in the river, by the said Governor's order, murdered 7 of the Friendship's men.

The river of Gambia is so full of shelves and sands that but for the pilots and a carval to conduct the Princes' fleet, they could not have come up, and Prince Maurice said to Blake, "See what friends you have of the Portugals, for had it not been for them, we had never come hither and taken you."

The Princes took the ship to St. Iago, and gave the Governor 800 or 900 hides out of her spoil. The Commissioners of Portugal will do nothing in it, saying it concerns the Governor of St. Iago, not the King of Portugal. The value of the ship, carefully estimated, is 3,200*l.* and 384*l.* for interest lost, not including mariners' wages, the losses of the freighters and owners of goods, or the pinnaces also surprised and taken. 35. Major N. Bourne to the Admiralty Commissioners. I have been round the coast, to observe the state of affairs. The bailiffs at Southwold, Woodbridge, and Yarmouth complain for want of money to discharge the quarters of the sick and wounded, being 500*l.* in arrear, and the inhabitants very poor; this may much discourage them for the future. There are 200 sick and wounded at Yarmouth, part whereof are to be sent to London.

I found also a quantity of defective beer there sent from the fleet, which I ordered to be surveyed, and disposed of. I have also given orders for fitting out two new frigates, but they will not be ready for three months. The frigates at Woodbridge may be built in 10 weeks. I hope next week will finish the work on some of the frigates, but most of the seamen are absent; if it was reported that money had been sent to pay them, it would draw them down.

There are a great number of Dutch prisoners here and at Yarmouth, many of whom are boys and aged and infirm people, neither able nor willing to do any service; as they are a great charge, I hope some course may be adopted to ease or prevent it. [1½ pages.]

Oct. 10. 36. Petition of Hen. King, master and part owner of the Trial of Wells, Norfolk, to the Council of State, for restoration of the said bark and goods to himself and other poor fishermen, to keep them and their families alive. Being on an Iceland voyage, was taken by the Dutch on the coast of Scotland, and retaken by the Gilliflower frigate, under Capt. Howard, and much of the fish, being very perishable, and other goods have been taken away since she was taken by the Dutch. [1 page.] to order that the same persons be commissioners both for civil and criminal matters, but that the commissions be kept distinct.

9. Also to move Parliament to add a clause to the commission for the business of universities, to empower the commissioners to dispose of the profits of all vacant places to such pious uses as they think fit, with special regard to the places whence the profits arose.

10. Also to move Parliament that the clerks, officers, and dependents of the courts of justice in Scotland shall take no fees, but have a salary appointed them, to be paid out of the fees of the court, and as the 3,000*l.* formerly appointed is not sufficient, in respect of new clerks, officers, and servants, whom it has been necessary to employ, power should be given to the Commissioners for administration of justice to draw warrants on their own treasury for the additional salaries, not exceeding in all 4,000*l.*

15. To write to Mr. Williams, Bowen, and Dawkins that Council is informed that a very rich ship supposed to be Dutch ran lately into Milford Haven, the master and mariners of which went ashore to Mr. White's house, and after examination, were released, on pretence of coming from Ostend, and to desire them to examine Mr. White, inform themselves thoroughly of the business, and report.

Oct. 15. Proposals of William Thompson in behalf of the City of Edinburgh:—

(1.) That because the said city gave satisfaction to the Commissioners at Dalkeith, and has ever behaved dutifully to those in authority, the inheritors of lands in Leith be restored to their possessions, with liberty to dwell therein themselves, or to let them to others.

(2.) That as those English who have faithfully served the Committee, and have resolved to settle in Leith, should not be debarred therefrom, yet as the citizens of Edinburgh who alone have a right to the liberty of the town and trade in Leith would be ruined by being debarred therefrom, the trade of merchandize in Leith be exercised by both nations with equal freedom, and that the governor of Leith admit worthy and well qualified English to freedom of trade without payment, who shall be admitted free citizens of Edinburgh, and jointly with the citizens and merchants of Edinburgh, shall reside and trade in Edinburgh or Leith, and remove from one to another as parts of one corporation.

(3.) That if the aforesaid latitude be thought prejudicial to the security of the garrison, no English merchants [be allowed] magazines for their merchandize as in former time.

(4.) That the magistrates of Edinburgh may be allowed to collect rents belonging to them in Leith, and have the house repaired for a weigh house or common beam restored, so that the merchants may be freed from the discredit of false weights, and the city have the benefit.

(5.) That all the inhabitants of Leith be answerable as heretofore to the courts of the magistrates of Edinburgh in civil business.

(6.) That Heriot and Trinity Hospitals, their houses and rents, be freed from sequestration, and employed for the pious uses designed by their founders.

(7.) That the magistrates of Edinburgh may be restored to the advowson and patronage of their churches, colleges, and free schools, they being always liable to authority for their right demeanor therein.

(8.) That the Corporation of the city being in debt 60,000*l.* sterling, contracted in the 15 years of trouble, whereof they can pay neither principal nor interest without help, Council should confer on them a grant of 4*d.* Scots upon each Scotch pint of ale and beer brewed or spent within the city precincts, which would enable them to pay the interest till they can repay the principal.

(9.) That Council will consider the impoverishment of the said city, whereby they are unable to pay their monthly assessments, and grant abatement thereof. [l. 71, pp. 110-12.]

Oct. 15.

Order on the above proposals. On the first, that all houses or lands in Leith belonging to particular persons, bodies politic or corporate, not under sequestration for delinquency, or not used for public storehouses, be restored to their lawful inheritors, to let them to such persons as the Governors of Leith shall permit, but not to live there themselves without special licence. Concerning places used for public magazines, if they belong to persons not under sequestration, or to the town of Edinburgh, competent rent shall be allowed the proprietors out of the revenue.

The 2nd and 3rd articles to be transmitted to the Governor and Commissioners at Leith, who are to settle the business by consent of parties if they can, and if not, to return their opinion how it may be done to Council.

The 4th granted, and the magistrates of Edinburgh to be allowed to receive the mark Scots upon the ton of goods and all other shore dues or casual revenues formerly collected by them in Leith, provided the collectors be approved by the Governor or Commissioner.

The 5th granted, with exception of the soldiers of the garrison, until Parliament determine otherwise.

The 6th granted, provided rooms in the same hospitals be assigned to sick and maimed soldiers, or the magistrates provide equally convenient rooms elsewhere. Also the Commissioners for the Universities to be empowered to call the trustees to account for the time past, and to see that they employ the revenue rightly in the future.

51. Major N. Bourne to the Admiralty Committee. I am proceeding with the repair of the Convertine, and other ships will soon be ready to take in their victuals. Particulars of them. I have quieted the seamen with promise of pay, and encouraged them to go on with the fitting of the ships, but they begin to get impatient, as they want clothes, and say they will be forced to sea, and then their money will do them no good. It should be sent next week. I wish the commanders were on the ships, as their presence would settle their companies.

54. Capt. Robert. Clarke to the Admiralty Committee. I took a ship from Amsterdam bound for Bordeaux, and sent her into Rye, but her men escaped. I also chased a Hollander, but she ran on shore at Boulogne, and the governor of Boulogne came down, and with 500 small shot got possession of her, though I plied my ordnance to defend her. He carried all my men to prison, but has since delivered them back, except one whom he kept as hostage, and also all the arms.

I have since been plying off the French coast, and finding 35 sail at Dunkirk bound for London, but waiting for a convoy, I have brought them into the Thames, and am now waiting for a recruit of cables and other necessities. I desire to be appointed as the convoy for Dunkirk during the winter. [1 page.]

2. 59. Council of State to Col. Lilburne. As it is requisite to have a convenient guard of ships of war on the coast of Scotland, and as there may be many emergencies in the management of the affairs committed to you, requiring them to continue longer than they were appointed or victualled for, we have thought fit—for preventing prejudice by their coming away, either through want of victuals or other defects,—to authorise you to stay any of the State's ships on that coast, for such longer time as you find necessary, and to give order for their victualling and furnishing, and to send an account of your disbursements for each ship, certified under the hands of their respective captains and clerks of the check, to the Admiralty Committee, and draw your bills upon Rich. Hutchinson, Navy Treasurer, therefor. [Copy. 1 $\frac{1}{4}$  pages.]

60. Major N. Bourne to the Navy Commissioners. I have sent out a vessel to discover the hoy with provisions for this port, and understand she is in the Swale. The seamen of the ships in port refuse to do duty unless they are paid. To-day 400 came on shore in a mutinous manner. If they had been discharged when they came in, many thousand pounds would have been saved, and they encouraged to return when wanted. The necessitous condition of many of them pleads for a timely supply. The building of the new frigate progresses. I want a copy of the contract. [1 page.]

Ipswich.

61. Major N. Bourne to the Admiralty Committee. The post-master at Ipswich detains letters. Hearing there were some men-of-war off Yarmouth, I ordered Capt. Thomson and the Cat to sea, to discover what they were. This morning I met a number of men in the streets, who began to cry for money and clothes. They were the crews of the Assurance and Mermaid. I tried to pacify them, but others coming on shore, they went into the fields, where they pulled down the gates and stiles. I think the officers of those ships to blame.

The troop ordered hither by the Lord General having been drawn off again, there are none to keep order. The garrison has been slighted, and only 30 soldiers can be spared from Landguard Fort. Will you pay the men at once, or not till they are in the Rolling Grounds, or  $\frac{1}{2}$  money now and  $\frac{1}{2}$  when they are out? but this would distemper them, and many would be gone when they should sail. Had they been paid at their first coming in, money would have been saved. The works on 3 ships will take 20 days more. [2 pages.]

69. Charles Longland to the Admiralty Committee. Items from his letter of the 3rd inst. There is only one Dutch man-of-war in port, the rest having either gone to the Straits' mouth, or home. There is a Dutch merchant ship in port which was laden at Scanderon for Holland, and will depart in 20 days; a French ship is daily expected from Genoa, that carries 50,000*l.* in money for Smyrna, and there are many other French and Dutch ships of half that value now in Turkey, which would be good purchase [prize] for your frigates.

If the State's fleet take any quantity of corn ships coming from Eastland, 10 or 15 ships' lading of corn would sell here between this and next March for 7*s.* per bushel English, and the ships would likewise yield treble the price they do in England. If you send a fleet into these seas, it will be all one to conduct the corn ships as other merchantmen; but if you send corn, timely advice must be given, so that it may be sold before it arrives, otherwise upon the appearance of so great a quantity, the price may fall; the proceeds of this corn may supply your fleet's occasions here. 70. Charles Longland to Robt. Blackborne. I see, by yours of 16 Sept., your readiness to promote my request about currants, wherein if I had the least apprehension of any prejudice to the commonwealth or its laws, I would be silent. The quantity of currants that I have contracted for is about 200 tons, which I am to view either here or at Zante by the end of January, so that I request leave to bring them to England in such ships as I can hire, whether Italian, French, Hamburgher, Swede, or of any nation in amity. It is far from my thoughts to seek the employment of the shipping of other nations in opposition of any law or Act of Parliament, for their wisdom can never be sufficiently commended that made that Act; but at present our navigation in these seas being altogether obstructed, I cannot apprehend what prejudice can come by permitting the entrance of these ships, as the real intent of the Act must be that our own nation may reap the benefit of the trade of England, and not strangers; but for strangers' ships to serve our nation, when our own cannot do it, can be no prejudice to the public. I shall be obliged if you can procure me the State's consent and warrant for this business.

It likewise proceeds from your good wishes that the Committee wrote me last week, and gave me commission for redemption of the poor captives in Tripoli, I having written them that it would be requisite to send over first to make an agreement with the Bashaw; as soon as that is concluded, I will advise the Committee and attend their further order. Meantime I am looking out for a bark and a man, and all things shall be done with diligence, and as much celerity as such an important business requires. If I should send over the money before the agreement is made, the Bashaw would not know what to ask for them; so you may console those poor men and women who have friends there that no time will be lost, and that I will not sleep in quiet until I have put the business in a way for their redemption.

I heard from other friends in what a bad condition your wine came home, but it was the end of March before any conveyance could be had, and if the wine here is not despatched in January, there is little chance of its lasting. I hope this year to find a quicker passage. and furnish you with what is good.

I have had advice from England of a remonstrance made by Capt. Appleton, wherein he has much abused me. He writes hither that the Council of State has ordered it to be printed, and I am much grieved that my good name must be thus bespattered and condemned unheard. Amongst the Romans, although heathens, it was not so; it had been justice to have called me home to answer for myself, before it had been published. The exposing of their servants to so much contumely gives occasion to all the State's enemies to rejoice, and little encouragement to their servants. I appeal to your own judgment whether I did not contribute all the power I was able to serve the State's occasions, although the Lord was not pleased to bless our endeavours with success; and that honest man Capt. Badiley, who, like the silkworm, spun out his own bowels with the many cares and troubles that lay upon him day and night, yet ran through all with alacrity, must now be arraigned by undeserving men who are his accusers. Let my sufferings be what they may, my duty to my country and government shall still be the same.

COUNCIL OF STATE. Day's Proceedings.

1. The Customs' Commissioners to see that no horses be privately shipped at certain places between Rye and Dover without licence, Council having heard that divers are secretly put aboard there and transported to France.

2. 73. Order on a petition craving leave to buy certain vessels from the Prize Goods' Commissioners at the appraised value, that all vessels condemned in the Admiralty Court as prize are to be sold to the best advantage of the State, over and above the rates at which they are appraised, and that none are to be disposed of by Council to any person whatsoever at only the appraised rates.

3. Mr. Lawrence to move Parliament to appoint a time for Amb. Whitelock to receive the commission whereby he is constituted Ambassador to the Queen of Sweden.

4. The Committee appointed to consider the salaries of Council's servants to examine the contract with Sir Abr. Williams for his house in the Palace yard, and to report.

7. The letters from the Commissioners in Ireland to Parliament referred to Council by order of Parliament, and the letters from the said Commissioners to the Lord General, to be considered first to-morrow afternoon.

9. Order on a petition directed to Benj. Bonnell, Commissioner from the Queen of Sweden, by Gerbrandt Claesbonder, master of the King David of Stockholm, also on the annexed paper, containing an affidavit by Major Tim. Crusoe on the same business, that the Navy Victuallers be required to make full satisfaction to Claesbonder, for the use of the freighters of the King David of Stockholm, for all clapboards made use of by them of those taken out of the ships, according to their then market price.

10. Order on the Act of Parliament printed and published 13 October, empowering Council to sign bills to the Commissioners of the Great Seal for passing the custody of all idiots and lunatics, that St. Nicholas, Hope, Courtney, Broughton, Montague, Jones, and Cooper, be a Committee to consider all petitions sent to Council for the custody of idiots or lunatics, and to examine fully and strictly into the condition of the persons whose custody is desired and those who desire it, so that no injury may be done under such pretences; they may call up and examine any persons able to give testimony about either party, and on their gaining full satisfaction in any of the said cases, report what they think fit to be done.

11. The articles for Lord Whitelock to be considered to-morrow afternoon.

12. Col. Bennet to present to Parliament the state of the Earl of Nottingham's case. [I. 71, pp. 158-162.]

Office.

74. Navy Victuallers to the Admiralty Committee. As the Navy Commissioners are to provide some more convenient place for their sittings than Tower Hill, we judge it our duty to state how far the State was engaged in their treaty with us concerning those houses, and that the exception in the sixth article of our contract was only to be continued while the houses were used by the Commissioners, which was readily submitted to by us on account of their nearness to us in our business; otherwise it could not be supposed that persons entrusted with so great an action as ours would so contract as to oust themselves of any fitting accommodation to oversee their business.

By the 6th article we were to have all the State's stores and storehouses delivered into our possession; it is well known how long they were detained from us, and some of them not repaired yet, and what was delivered was sold from us by the trustees at Worcester House, so that we have not received a penny benefit to this day, although hundreds a year was suggested to us upon making of our contract.

John Holland, who enjoyed the better part of the house, never valued it above 15*l.* a year, and yet 100*l.* is demanded for the whole, although some of the best rooms have been lately taken out of our lofts, which we were willing to part with when our business was less, and our neighbours of trust, and with whom we were hourly to correspond; but we hope the State will not deprive us of them, nor admit strangers to be so near our stores, unless, according to the 13th article of our contract, they make allowance for all damage and loss sustained by thieves on shore, as well as for losses by pirates at sea.

Formerly, when the victualling was not  $\frac{1}{8}$ th as much as it now is, all within the gate was appropriated to the victuallers, and if you now cast it into us, the greatest part must be added to our stores, to enlarge them, it being no healthy place for habitation, being attended with the great noise of coopers and workmen, and the stench from the slaughtering of cattle, which daily infects our servants.

We need not remind you that our business should be attended to day and night, to give despatch with all tides, whereby the State may have a greater advantage than 100*l.* a year. [1 page.]

Richard Norton with others to take care that several void churches and the Thursday's lecture in Rhodes parish might be supplied with godly preachers, the said Col. Norton appointed Mr. Robinson with others to preach the said lecture, who continued it till disturbed by Mr. Barnerd, a minister there elected by the Mayor and some of the aldermen; also that the augmentation of 100*l.* a year allowed by the said Committee out of the rectory of Mary's, with consent of Mr. Rought, the incumbent, Peacock sent away a new buss with them, and took a note of hand of one of their masters for payment to him at Yarmouth, and carried the said master there.

He also went on board the Starr, a new Dutch private man-of-war, which was furnished for six months, staved her in to plunder her, and converted all to his own use, sending to Harwich wherries of sails, cordage, powder, &c. to sell, and his neighbours at Ipswich allege that he sent home that summer upwards of 500*l.* worth of goods. Norfolk, by several orders from the late Committee for Plundered Ministers, whereby the two parishes were united, and the profits of both, being but a competent maintenance, assigned to him, and that now the inhabitants of Whitwell-cum-Hackford refuse to pay him the profits of the living, because he has been presented to the living of Repeham by the patron thereof, the late incumbent being dead,—order that the parishes continue united, and the profits of both be paid to Mr. Sheldrake for preaching in the parish church of Repeham, and that the justices of peace for Norfolk living near see that the order be carried out.

We also declare that a speedy course shall be taken for adjusting and paying the money due to seamen for their shares of prizes, and that all due encouragement (to be particularly expressed hereafter) shall be given to such as shall volunteer for the service. [I. 71, pp. 176-178.]

78. Drs. Jno. Godolphin, Wm. Clerk, and C. G. Cock, Admiralty Judges, to the Council of State. There being a case depending in the Admiralty Court, and upon a full hearing of the advocate of the commonwealth, it appearing to be of an extraordinary nature, we beg to represent as follows:—

Capt. Trenchfield, Commander-in-Chief of a squadron of men-of-war in the service, gave chase to the Bear's Foot, belonging to the United Provinces, Jno. Hendrickson master, who, to avoid Trenchfield, ran upon the Fort of Salibrine, in the dominions of the King of Spain, and so near the shore, and under the command of the fortress, that the squadron did not think fit to follow, but sent two captains to treat about the surrender of the ship. This Hendrickson refused, resolving either to fire or blow up the ship unless he had good terms; and it not being in the power of Trenchfield and the squadron to hinder it, for preservation of the ship, being of great value, they agreed by writing, under the hand and seal of all the captains, that in case he surrendered the ship, she, with the apparel, tackle, and furniture, should be restored to Hendrickson, together with the freight of the goods according to the bills of lading, and all the goods in the hold which Hendrickson should swear to be his own or his mariners'.

Thereupon Hendrickson delivered her up as a ship belonging to the subjects of the United Provinces, but stating that all the goods not contained in the bills of lading belonged to the master and company. This agreement having been made in so solemn a manner, although not legal nor agreeable to the captain's commission, but the production of a prudent necessity, we submit it to you before delivering judgment, lest the honour of this commonwealth might suffer by any proceedings of ours before obtaining your advice. Instructions to be put in execution by the above Commissioners.

You are to take the best order you can that all passengers coming to Dover, inwards or outwards, whether of this commonwealth or strangers, be brought before you and examined, taking care to use all due regard to strangers.

You are to take bond from the owners and masters of all vessels in your port, to bring all passengers transported by their vessels before you immediately on arrival, and not to transport beyond seas any persons without a licence. You are to take a like bond from all inn-keepers, alehouse-keepers, and hackney-men at Dover, to give you notice of all persons repairing inwards as passengers to any of their houses in Dover, that you may better be able to take cognizance of them.

None of the commonwealth professing to be merchants may pass before being brought before the Council of State or yourselves, and receiving a passport, for which they shall pay to the clerk of the passage of Dover according to the accustomed rate.

You are to order that the clerk appointed by our commission for the said passage keep a register of the names, additions, and dwelling place of all persons licensed to pass, the day of their passage, in what vessel, and to what place, with a description of the parties; and in case any one should be suspected, you are to examine him upon such articles as you think fit; if he be one of this commonwealth, you are to tender him the engagement to subscribe, which if he refuse, you are then to deliver him to the Lieutenant of Dover Castle, and to certify Council of your proceedings and the ground thereof, that order may be given.

You are to be very careful that none of this commonwealth, being not well affected to the State, pass out or into this nation under colour of being a stranger.

For better execution of this service, you are to command the searcher of Dover to go aboard any vessel there belonging to strangers, wherein persons of the commonwealth or strangers unlicensed are suspected to be embarked, and to search for them. You are to charge the masters of such vessels to receive no unlicensed persons on board; but if they shall receive them notwithstanding, you are to cause the vessel to be stayed till further orders from Council, to whom you are to address notice thereof.

You shall give all encouragement and assistance to the searcher of the Customs at Dover, appointed by the Customs' Commissioners to search passengers, although after your allowance of them to pass; and upon his staying any of them, and bringing such before you, you shall hear his allegations, and proceed according to your instructions relating to persons not permitted to pass out of or to come into this commonwealth.

You shall give all encouragement and assistance in searching any of the passage boats for goods and merchandise prohibited to be exported or imported, or which owe custom, or subsidy, or any other duty payable to the commonwealth. [I. 71, pp. 284-286.]

1. To order the master of the State's barges to prepare such barges as shall be necessary to carry Amb. Whitelock to Gravesend.

3. 83. The petition of Edward Hayward referred to the Navy Commissioners, to consider what has been done in like cases, and to report.

4. To write to Mr. Willoughby at Portsmouth to pay Robert Baker and Edward Joy of Brighthelmstone for the goods he received from them, according to the rate of salvage.

5. Mr. Hollister to move Parliament to appoint John Hagget deputy recorder of Bristol, in the absence of Lord Whitelock on his embassy to Sweden.

6. A letter of to-day from Mr. Peters, Mr. Cockayne, and others, referred to the Admiralty Commissioners, to do as they think fit.

7. 84. The said Commissioners to confer with the Navy Commissioners and other ancient seamen to put the business of impressing of seamen, in such a way as shall fully supply the needs of the commonwealth, and yet give no just occasion for disturbance in the execution of the same, and to report.

8. The petition and papers of Nath. Tyderligh referred to Gen. Blake, to consider the equity of the case laid down, and what is fit to be done therein, and to report.

9. The embargo laid upon all ports of this nation to be taken off the coasting vessels, and the Customs' Commissioners to see that sufficient security be given by such as have liberty to pass, only to go to the ports to which they are bound, and not to go beyond seas.

17. Order that the petition of Major George Walters be recommended to the Spanish Ambassador, and he desired to see justice done to the petitioner.

18. The petition of Capt. White referred to the Irish and Scotch Committee, to report.

19. Mr. Broughton to report to Parliament the petitions of David Clarkson, minister at Crayford, Kent, and of Humphrey Randall, minister of Leckhampton, co. Gloucester; also to move Parliament to appoint some means whereby all matters of that nature may be determined, Council finding themselves not empowered to intermeddle therein.

20. Order on report from Mr. Caryll and Mr. Sterry concerning Dr. Holmes's book, in pursuance of a reference to them from Council, that a warrant be issued to pay to Holmes 50*l.* from Council's contingencies, to enable him to print his book.

21. Roger le Strange dismissed from further attendance, on security in 2,000*l.* to appear when called for, and to do nothing prejudicial to the commonwealth.

22. Fleming to represent, in the name of Council, to the Spanish Ambassador, that they have considered the paper he delivered this day, and have put the frigate therein mentioned into a speedy way of examination, having directed the present despatch of an express for a speedy return of the state of the business, and enjoining a good usage of the persons aboard, and preventing any embezzlement of goods, so that he may be confident to receive justice without delay. 86. Order in the Admiralty Committee—on information that Thos. Peeke, Mayor of Colchester, has disbursed money for English seamen, taken prisoners by the Dutch, and set on shore near Colchester,—that his disbursements be repaid, and any further sums he may so lay out, not exceeding 20*l.* in all, on an exact account, by a bill from the Navy Commissioners. [¾ page.] Annexing,

86. i. *Thos. Peeke to Lieut. Jno. Barkstead. Many seamen and prisoners out of Holland, travelling from port towns to London, come to me for help, sometimes 20 or 30 a day, many newly recovered from sickness; they are generally in a very sad condition, and it pities me that they should fare worse than Dutch prisoners. I have spent 5*l.* in 14 days in relieving them, but I want an order to give them further relief. Justice Highland will tell you how the business of our poor town goes. I have sent a list of men fit to proportion the taxes of the town.—Colchester, 26 October 1653. [1 page.]*

87. Charles Longland to the Admiralty Committee. The rich Frenchman bound for Smyrna, which is worth half as much more as I esteemed her, has arrived, and intending to depart last night, rode at the Mould Head, where about sunset the only Dutch man-of-war in port came and lay aside, thinking to carry her; but being a strong ship, well armed, and with 100 men aboard, she, with the help of the castles, beat him off; the Dutchman has since gone out of port, and, I believe, dares not come in again, as the prince is much incensed at his insolency, and the port is now quite clear of them. There are no news of those that left 5 weeks since.

You may now see the great trade the French and Dutch have; they would be good purchases and employment for a squadron of frigates. With copy of his letter of the 24th. [ $1\frac{1}{2}$  pages.]

88. Abr. Stock to Edw. Marston, Gardeners' Lane, Westminster. I received the copy of the order of Parliament, and wish the Act were passed that you might be delivered from that continual trouble. I wonder at the malice of that mischievous person that should inform the Committee, just upon the nick of time, that I had assisted the King in his intelligence for foreign parts, as it is as false as God is true. Had I had the least relation or affection to that party, Mr. Cullen, our Mayor, had not given me such a certificate as I had from him, and I am much engaged to him for his courtesy, and beg you will thank him. 90. Order of the Committee for lodgings—upon the claim by Sir Robert Pye to the house where he resides, and which the Committee conceive belong to the State,—that the following case be reported to the House by Col. Barton.

On 25 Jan., 17 James, the King, by patent, granted to Sir Robt. Pye for life the office of Writer of the Tallies of the Exchequer, when Sir Robert entered into the house in question, but without any right.

On 20 Dec., 22 James, the King, after by patent reciting that this house was by appointment enjoyed by the Writer of the Tallies for the time being, annexed the house to the office of the Writer, and granted it to Sir Robert so long as he continued Writer, and released to him all mesne profits of the said house. This suggestion, however, is not true, for the house was never before appointed to the Writer of the Tallies, but in 16 Eliz. was enjoyed by the Auditor and Teller of the Exchequer, and was charged with a rent, as appears by a quietus est produced by Sir Robt. Pye.

By an Act of the late Parliament of 30 Jan. 1649, the kingly government is taken away, and now there is no such officer as Writer of the Tallies to the King, and there is no saving in this Act of any man's right. This Committee also find that, by order of Papers relating to John Pearse, captain of the Weymouth frigate.

91, 92. Certificate by Wm. Harding and 6 other officers of the garrison, that he carefully convoyed a ship with powder and ammunition for that garrison and for Falmouth, and came from the Downs one day before the ships revolted; that they have experience of his faithfulness towards the State, and his resolution against the betrayers of their trust, as he protested that rather than they should have his ship, he would either have sunk or fired her; and that he also voluntarily proffered himself, his ship and company for the service of this garrison, when the cavaliers vapoured and flourished in their parts. Melcomb, 11 October 1649. [Original and copy,  $\frac{3}{4}$  page.]

93. Hen. Gibson to [Capt. Pearse]. Thanks for your forwardness in sending your son and seamen hither for the relief of this poor remote garrison, the only interest the State has in the county of Kerry. When opportunity happens, your service shall be made known to those who will not be sparing of rendering more thanks.—Dingle, May 10, 1652. [Copy,  $\frac{1}{2}$  page.]

94. Depositions by John Marshall, quartermaster, and 7 others, to the like effect. With note [by Capt. Pearse to the Commissioners of the Navy] that these deponents were cleared upon the coast of Holland, when the Weymouth parted from the General, they being old and not fit for service. The rest of the old men are either killed, drowned, or sick. Prays that an old and faithful servant may not be ruined by idle and scandalous people, and that he may have justice on their persons, as they have no estate.—Sept. 3, 1653. [1 page.]

95. Certificate by Lieut. John Pearse and 97 others. Our captain, John Pearse, behaved faithfully and with courage in certain engagements, and the report of some idle persons that he was in drink in time of service is false. When the William came on board us, they reporting that the fault was on our part, we can prove that we were standing one way and they the other, and to prevent danger we put our ship on stays, but they did not do so much as brace their foresail to the mast, to stop their way, neither bore up until very near to us, so that then they could not prevent coming on board of us. There was also no looking out to prevent dangers, and their boatswain much blamed their company for the neglect.—Spithead, Oct. 1, 1653. [Copy, 2 pages.]

116. Major N. Bourne to the Admiralty Committee. We have paid off all the ships directed except the Mermaid. I stopped 40s. a man of the Assurance's pay, until the ship be in the Rolling ground, and they appear on board, because they were second to the Mermaid in deserting and capitulating about their pay. The Mermaid I have left to the last. They not only were the first to mutiny and invite others, but yesterday they tried to provoke the Assurance men to distemper. I have subdued the mutiny, and committed one of the worst to Landguard Fort, where there are now 4.

The Advantage has come in, and I shall pay them 300% if I can; the Assurance and 4 others are nearly ready to sail. There have been the severest storms here known for many years. I have done all I can, by letters to the Mayor of Colchester and the constables, to prevent the escape of men by water and land, yet they find means to run. I want orders to Yarmouth and all corporations who press men not to pay press and conduct money to boys and men not fit for the service. I am despatching the ships, and beg leave of absence, being ill, and wishing, after so long a spell, to visit my family. [2 pages.]

Nov. 14.
Leghorn.

142. Charles Longland to Lord General Cromwell and the Council of State. I have had a printed book sent from England, entitled a Remonstrance of the fight in Leghorn Road, dedicated to you by Capt. Hen. Appleton, wherein I find myself very much traduced. Although I cannot, at such a distance, put so much into paper as is requisite for my vindication, yet if I should be silent, something he accuses me of may be taken for truth by them that do not know me. The Lord has given me grace to keep me from such foul villanies as I am accused of, and if Capt. Appleton was kept for 3 days from those mischievous men whose counsels have prevailed with him, and strictly examined concerning my carriage, I am confident he would give me a better character.

At his passing by this port in Nov. 1651, with his squadron for Turkey, his behaviour so much incensed the Great Duke, that his Highness wrote a letter of complaint against him to Parliament. and commanded the English here to recommend its delivery in a letter of ours to the Turkey Company, which letter, out of respect to Appleton, I alone forbore to underwrite, whereby I gained ill will both from the Prince and our own nation, and Appleton on his return acknowledged my civility very thankfully.

In the following April, I received a commission from the Council of State to serve their ships and commanders here with what they required; two months after, Appleton returned into port with his squadron from Turkey, and I, who before had showed so much respect to him in his absence, now, when I was made the State's servant, and an obligation laid upon me to serve him, am said to betray him into the Great Duke's castle at Pisa as a close prisoner, and hinder any one to visit him.

VOL. XLI.

Nov. 14.

In the 5th page he undertakes to give an exact account of the surprisal of the Phoenix, purposely to show you another error of mine. He says that he sent me an account of the particulars, that you might have notice quickly, but that I sent my own servant with the news, not giving him the liberty of sending. The truth is that same letter and information which Appleton sent me, I sent to you by Nath. Davis, a merchant lying in my house.

In the 6th page he strives to give reasons why I betrayed him into prison, and would fain make the surprisal of the Phoenix to be the cause; for he says that two days after, I came on board with one of the Duke's captains, and told him the Duke wished to speak with him at Pisa. Now Thos. Dethick, a merchant here, was employed with me by the colonel on this message to him on 5 Dec., 5 days after the Phoenix was surprised; but he omits mentioning the other, that he might lay the cause of his imprisonment upon me, which must needs be so, because he was able to clear himself from having any hand in the surprisal, and therefore the Great Duke's displeasure must light upon Capt. Badiley and myself; and which way did Capt. Appleton's imprisonment take off the Great Duke's displeasure to either?

Capt. Badiley acknowledged the surprisal of the frigate to be his act, and I cleared Capt. Appleton before the Great Duke of having had any hand in it, and his Highness' letter to Parliament only blames him for consenting thereto.

Capt. Appleton being brought into this condition, he now taxes me and Capt. Wood for triumphing over his misery, though I used all possible means to prevent his imprisonment, and afterwards to get him cleared, continuing early and late, both in public and private, and never desisted until I understood the Great Duke had sent him to Porto Feraro, when I returned back to Leghorn.

Seeing the malice of this man extends even to the dead, I must justify Capt. Wood. He was a pious and discreet man, and very forward to serve his country, and often proffered his service to Capt. Appleton, to wait upon him with his ship whenever he would attempt the breaking through the enemy; once while we 3 were walking on the broad place, he so far urged it upon Appleton that he made him angry, and he asked what great matters he could do with his 30 guns and 30 men. Wood replied that he brought 45 men into port, besides what he had picked up since, and that Appleton's thus undervaluing him was a disparagement to him and his ship.

In page 7 he says I was the cause of the Great Duke's sending a courier to England to complain of his taking the frigate, and violating the sentinel; so that I, who a little before would not concur in recommending the Great Duke's letter against him, must now contrive the sending of a courier. The Great Duke's letter is still extant, and will show the true cause of his imprisonment, which was for violating the sentinel, and other insolencies; for the frigate was surprised some time before the action of the sentinel, and nothing was spoken of it; but the truth is the Sampson lay too near the Leopard, otherwise Capt. Appleton might have been sober aboard his own ship; for certainly it was no part of a sober man to call to his own men on the forecastle to fire their muskets at the sentinel, of which I can produce good testimony, but it was well his men had more wit than he.

VOL. XLI.

Nov. 14.

As for the 600 ducats which he says it was agreed at a council of war he should give, to have leave from the Duke to command the Leopard, I believe the council was held on board the Sampson when the riot was committed on the sentinel, but I was not present, nor ever heard of the business until I found it in his remonstrance.

In page 8 he says Capt. Badiley sent his lieutenant to him in the night, to know his readiness to come out with his squadron, it blowing so fresh off the shore that they could hardly keep their topsails aloft; but as Capt. Appleton had not the forecast, in so many months, to find an opportunity to get out of the Mould, so he had not the grace to accept of such a wholesome invitation from his commander. He says he had a consultation, and I being absent they dared not act; but whoever reads his remonstrance will never believe he bears any such respect to me, neither did any such umpirage belong to any officer, but to him, as chief commander of this squadron, whose judgment, as he was a seaman and soldier, ought to have guided him, he being best acquainted with the wind and weather, and having such an authentic warrant as the call of his chief commander. But seeing he let slip this occasion, which is not excusable, why did he not keep to his former result, on a letter from Capt. Badiley, not to stir with his squadron out of the Mould, until the enemy had engaged Badiley's squadron? and if the Dutch would not come out and fight him, then this squadron should lie still in the Mould until Badiley was come within musket shot of the enemy, where he lay in the road. All the commanders agreed to this at a full council, where I was present; and the morning of the fight, they promised due observance, wherein consisted all that was discernible for their safety, for then the enemy had been forced to have fought both our squadrons at once, and not have turned their whole fleet upon this.

A little after he says that I and the commanders agreed they should lose no more time, whereupon they slipped their cables. I stayed aboard the Leopard a long time after the departure of the other commanders, and as I was walking with Appleton upon the upper deck, Capt. Lynn called to him to know if he should go out; I again earnestly desired Capt. Appleton to remember what they had all agreed to, not to stir out of the Mould until the enemy had engaged Capt. Badiley, which he then again promised faithfully to observe, and I took my leave. No sooner was I ashore but Appleton was under sail, as if he had been greedy of his ruin, which was thereby unavoidable, for as soon as their ships' sterns were to the Mould, the whole Dutch fleet tacked back upon them; this was long foreseen by Capt. Badiley, who laboured so much to prevent it, that he often repeated in his letters not to come out of the Mould until the enemy had engaged his squadron. Capt. Wood before his death acknowledged this error to be their utter ruin, and told me he called to Capt. Fisher, who was next ship to the Sampson, to speak to Capt. Seaman to speak to Capt. Appleton that the ships might forbear going out until their due time. Fisher replied, "you know what manner of man Capt. Seaman is, that a man cannot speak to him." Nothing but sheer malice has set this man to traduce me, or why does he rake up any action of mine ashore that he thinks might be shaped into a misdemeanor? To what end else tends his telling you that I never owned nor sent to see him after his captivity, and that the men were starved going for Venice, and the publishing of Mr. Reding's letter?

VOL. XLI.

Nov. 14.

The day after the fight I sent my kinsman, Jonathan Parker, aboard the Dutch Vice-Admiral, to visit Appleton, to condole his misfortune, and to know wherein I might serve him; he answered he wanted neither money nor anything, but only his liberty, which he desired me to endeavour. I sent Parker several times to the Dutch agent, and proffered him my bond for 10,000 dollars to give Appleton leave to come ashore, and go for Holland, and stay there until he was exchanged; but because he has forgotten all this, I have caused Parker to attest the truth thereof hereunder, with some other passages that may bring it to his remembrance. I also sent him refreshments of bread, wine, and flesh.

In page 11 he says that upon several securities to appear in Holland, they gave him leave to go. I with two other Englishmen, became bound in 12,000 dollars for his and the other captains' enlargement to go for Holland, and until we had finished this obligation before a public notary, none of them were suffered to come out of their ship. I enclose copies of these ungrateful captains' letters requesting me to stand bound for them, and thanking me for my readiness to do it, with copy of my bond for them; I have sent the originals to Capt. Badiley for your inspection.

As soon as the Dutch Vice-Admiral had received this bond, he sent the Captains ashore to the Lazaretto, whither I went with several Englishmen to visit them; and for requital, Capt. Seaman, in presence of 20 English and Italians, reviled me with all the scurrilous names imaginable; and when he could not reach me with his hands to take away my life, he took up stones and heaved them at me, so as to brain me, which he had done if I had not fled.

The Dutch turned ashore all the prisoners and wounded men, being 77, the next day after the fight. I had the State's former order, to see them carefully provided for, and I hired a house for a hospital, and bought and hired beds, &c. for them, and entertained all the English surgeons, besides a Frenchman, as the best in the town, and agreed with an English host for half a dollar a man a day, to provide them with victuals and broths. I bought them shifts and apparel, paid large bills to the apothecary, and was as provident for the State as I could be; I am sure the poor men wanted nothing, neither did I omit visiting them once a day at least to see them dressed, as also what else they and the surgeons needed.

As for the 300 sound men, having no direction from the State, I used my discretion, and entertained them all at the State's charge, lest they should put themselves into the enemies' service for want of a livelihood. To common men I gave a dollar and  $\frac{1}{4}$  a day for

VOL. XLI.

Nov. 14. five, and to officers a dollar a day for three, which was to their full content.

I will not speak of the many troubles these occasions brought upon me, to the neglect of my own affairs, for my house was constantly blocked up by these poor men; and when they found me abroad, they would follow me by droves. I much pitied them, yet such people are commonly unreasonable; some would have money to carry them home overland; some wanted clothes; some would have one thing, and some another; and I, seeing that the ships entered into the State's service at Venice, and the Harry Bonadventure at Messina, all wanted men to carry them out, said that they should not be longer idle, but that some should go to Venice by land, and others to Messina by sea, to serve in the said ships, and that those who would not do either I would no longer entertain; to this they agreed, and those that went to Venice I recommended to Capt. Jonas Poole, who was sent thither to hasten out those ships, to see them embarked and sent them hence in companies of 20 and 12 two days distant one company from another, that they might find accommodation by the way.

I consulted with the officers of the Leopard how many days' pay were fitting to give them for this journey, as some seamen that came from Venice on foot to serve in these ships were but eight days on the way. I gave each man 12 days' pay besides a new shirt, and a dollar to buy hose and shoes, which was to all their content. Capt. Appleton would persuade you that some of them were starved by the way. If it was so, and if the folly of some men were such as to spend in three days what should serve them 12, was I to blame, who used all my skill to prevent disorder, by putting a whole company's pay into the hands of a sober man, whom the men themselves approved of? Capt. Poole, to whom these men were recommended by me at Venice, saw them embarked upon the several ships there.

For Mr. Reding's letter, which Capt. Appleton has put in print to cast infamy upon me, I have been injurious to myself in not acquainting you of the great affront Capt. Appleton put upon me at the Great Duke's court, and I appeal to you, why did Capt. Appleton sign and seal a commission to Mr. Reding to treat with the Great Duke in all matters concerning the State's ships under his command while I was present, who was your servant commissioned for that purpose, except to slight me? He tells you that I was desired by the merchants here to go to Florence with the commanders of the ships, to treat with the Great Duke about the safety of our goods, but this trust did not deprive me of my commission from the State, nor disable me for their service, for the one strengthened the other. Had Capt. Appleton told me of his commission to Mr. Reding, which he might have done, then lodging in my house, one of us would have stayed behind; for as soon as we came to Florence, Reding invited the commanders of the ships to leave me and go with him to Court, telling them he was empowered by Appleton to treat of all affairs that concerned the State or their ships, that my commission was out of date, and, that if I had any, it was to treat about merchants' affairs; and in this manner he represented me at the Great Duke's Court, where I had a little before made some addresses, as your servant, in behalf of the said ships. Thus now I was suspected for an impostor, for as some of the Court said. "If you were what you pretended, a servant to the State, Capt. Appleton, who is a commander of theirs, would not thus slight you, but acknowledge you for such, and not commission another for that service."

VOL. XLI.

Nov. 14.

Thereupon I was necessitated to despatch a courier to Leghorn to fetch my commission to show the Great Duke, and wrote Capt. Appleton what had passed. He then made a revocation of Reding's commission by a public notary, and sent it to me, Reding having left for Leghorn. I showed it to the Great Duke, who laughed heartily and said, "What will you say if Reding returns in three days with another commission to revoke this revocation?" Thus Capt. Appleton made himself ridiculous.

Men fallen into errors by their own ignorance or rashness often lay the blame on others. Capt. Appleton had shown more wisdom in submitting to the hand of Providence than in falling to beating his fellow servants. He has heaped abuses on Capt. Badiley, whose integrity is so well known to you, and also his wisdom and courage in managing the late fight with the Dutch before Porto Longone, and in preserving so many rich ships, and his endeavours were 10 times more employed to save this unhappy squadron. I have been eye-witness of his care therein, besides those many dangers he escaped going to and fro between this place and Porto Longone, being waylaid by the enemy, who was greedy of his destruction, and sought all manner of ways to compass it, while Appleton never made a motion in 6 months to get out of the Mould, though Captains Wood and Marsh and Mr. Edge often urged him to take some opportunity to break out, and they would accompany him with their ships; yet nothing but discouragements came from him, and he even told Capt. Wood's men they would have no pay for their service, of which Wood complained to me. I confess my weakness in performing any acceptable service, yet what I acted was with integrity.

At my first perusal of the remonstrance, although I found myself so much abused, yet I pitied Appleton, and rather attributed it to his ignorance, because in the beginning he deals very candidly, and makes a handsome apology that no man, how much soever injured, could take any great exceptions to what followed, for he tells you plainly he had lost his journal, and spoke without book; however he would guess at the most material passages. But when I came to the close, I found it full of hypocrisy and malice, for he takes a deep oath that all he has said is true; and how many passages thereof I have clearly disproved I leave to you.

I could say much more, but less I could not say, to clear myself of those foul aspersions; yet what is behind is more than all the rest. Appleton has deprived me most maliciously of the only jewel and riches that I had in the world, my credit and good name. I have lived here a long time as a factor, and my fair and honest dealing, with the good repute I had amongst many worthy gentlemen and merchants in London, brought me employment, and thereby my livelihood ; but now, while I lie in the condition this man has set me, printed and posted up for a villain and a traitor, who will acknowledge or own me ? This man has ruined me, and that by your umbrage and patronage, for his Remonstrance is directed to your Excellency and the Council of State, and printed by the Parliament's printer, which gives all countenance and authority to it.

I therefore beseech you that, if it appear to you that I am innocent of those foul crimes, you will give reparation to my credit in such a way as shall seem fitting, which will encourage me to go on cheerfully in performing my duty in the place. [13½ pages.] Enclosing,

142. I. Deposition of Jonathan Parker. After the fight with the Dutch fleet, I went on board the Dutch Vice-Admiral, by order of Mr. Longland, to ascertain if Capt. Appleton wanted anything, when he stated he only wanted his liberty, and desired Longland would endeavour to obtain it. On my asking him how many men were slain on board his ship in the engagement, he replied 90 or 100, although it was subsequently proved there were but  $\frac{1}{10}$ th of that number. Upon leaving that ship, I went on board the Maid of Enchuisen, where Capt. Marsh was a prisoner and then to the Pilgrim, where I found Capt. Wood mortally wounded. At his earnest desire I obtained leave for him to go on shore, and took him on shore, and thus was prevented from visiting Capt. Seaman, who was on board young Van Tromp.

*The next day I made several journeys, by desire of Mr. Longland, to Vanderstraten, the Dutch agent, and proffered Longland's security for the captains above named, if they might be allowed to come on shore during the day, and return on board at night, but it could not be agreed to until orders were received from Holland.—Leghorn, 14 Nov. 1653. 142. III. The same to Longland. We thank you for your courteous answer. The commander of the fleet with whom you are to treat is gone ashore. We leave it to your discretion whether we are to remain here in Leghorn, appear in Holland till exchanged, or otherwise.—16 May. [ $\frac{1}{4}$  page.]

143. Charles Longland to [Robt. Blackborne]. I wrote you 20 days since about the commands I had received as to redeeming the poor captives at Tripoli, but finding no vessel bound thither, I must freight a bark for this occasion, and send over a young man who has lived some time with me, the son of Jno. Goodwin, from whom I shall have a good account of the business, of which you shall be advised.

I am still thankful for your propounding to the Committee for a license to bring home 200 tons of currants in some foreign bottom in friendship with our State, and hope I shall have leave and a pass for the ship, that she may not be molested by any of ours in the channel.

A French ship passed this port last week, bound for Smyrna, having 300,000 dollars or pieces of 8; a Dutch man-of-war laid her aboard, as she rode at anchor in this port, and thought to have carried her, but the castles beat him off and out of the port, so that we are now clear of them. The seas are very full of rich merchant ships, French and Dutch, and I hope when the new frigates are launched some will be spared and sent this way, for the French begin to fall to their old trade again, having lately taken an English ship laden with currants. I much wonder at their insolence, while they have an Ambassador in England on a treaty of peace. The Dutch here make a great noise that the Highlanders in Scotland are up in arms, but we hope it is not true. [ $1\frac{1}{2}$  pages.]

Although Mr. Cullen promised the Mayor to write touching the certainty of the payment of the harbour money, and the surveyors formerly wrote and spoke earnestly to him about it, yet notwithstanding he is one of the assistants, he has since refused to subscribe the writing signed by the others, and since sent up; I therefore desire you to acquaint Cullen what certainty there is of the payment of the money, so that he may write the Mayor and surveyors thereof, which may the more encourage me in the journey to town.

The news here is of war with the Dutch, but as you write nothing thereof, I do not believe it. On receipt of Mr. Cullen or Mr. Lieutenant's letter of the certainty of a receipt of the money, I will make my repair to London. [ $\frac{1}{2}$  page.]

Nov. 15. 147. Petition of [Sir] John Pershouse to the Council of State. On the late riot at Walsall, co. Stafford, the chief actors were sent for, the rest committed to prison, and prosecuted at the next sessions at Lichfield, when 2 bills of indictment were found, and other rioters committed to the county prison. The Council of State has since empowered some county gentlemen to re-examine the riot, which they have done, but not on oath, and hearing only the rioters and their adherents, not the witnesses against them. Both before and since the riot, has often offered to proceed to trial with the rioters, as to the right of common, and has tried to bring them to terms by persuasion, which they refuse, calumniate him, and threaten his estate. Begs that the testimony of the rioters, if not taken on oath, may not be valid. [1 page.]

The English Company have hitherto supplied their wants at great charge, but as the burden becomes insupportable, they beg me to apply for relief for such as come hereafter, till they can be shipped. There being two or three Dutch men-of-war near the Channel, the Assistance and other ships have gone to meet them. I have had much trouble with sick men out of the ships, and been constrained to quarter some of them in tippling houses and in the country; I have written Mr. Blackburne to move the Admiralty Committee to take a house for them, and appoint persons to look after them, and as it will be better for the poor men (who have no clothes), less charge to the State, hope you will second it. 15. Sydenham, Rous, and Barton to be a Committee to consider on what ground the pension allowed to Mr. Sydenham, minister of Newcastle, was made, to examine what is due to him in arrear of his allowance, and report.

16. To write to Capt. Daniel Watson and Mr. Mainwaring that Council has thought fit to appoint John Flower minister of Ellaston, co. Stafford, and that he should, for officiating there, receive the profits of the living, and to desire them to take care that he may be put in possession thereof.

17. The petition of Capt. Stephen Marsh, late commander of the Levant Merchant, lost in the service in the Straits, to be made commander of one of the State's frigates, referred to the Admiralty Committee, to do as they see cause, and to examine the losses sustained by the loss of his ship, and report.

19. The petition of Saml. Bathurst, merchant of London, referred to the Committee for Examinations, to report.

20. That of Major Robert Yeamans and several others for letters for private men-of-war (being outward bound upon trading voyages) referred to the Committee for Customs, to inquire concerning the quality of the several ships, and the ports to which they are bound, and whether they are fitted for merchantmen or men-of-war, and to certify, that further order may be given.

22. 157. The petition of John Lindsey referred to the Admiralty Committee.

23. To write to the Army Committee to allow the pay of the late officers of the garrison of Arundel Castle now slighted towards the entertainment of as many private soldiers as the pay will amount to, which have been taken on by the Governor of Portsmouth for increasing his own company, in pursuance of Council's order.

25. Col. Cromwell to represent to Parliament that of the moneys paid in for the composition of North Wales, there is an arrear undisposed of, out of which Council, in the interval of Parliament, ordered 200*l.* to be paid to Mary, relict of Major. John Burton, in part of 277*l.* lent by her husband to Sir Thos. Middleton for reducing North Wales, upon an ordinance of Parliament of 20 February 1644, and of the arrears of pay due to him as major of the regiment of horse under Sir Thos. Middleton. That Council finds that the present Army Committee is not authorised, as was the former Committee, to issue the moneys. Therefore they move Parliament to authorise the present Army Committee to issue the remainder of the said moneys, and in particular to order the paying thereof to Mrs. Burton of the said 200*l.*

26. The Commissioners for Prize Goods to make the same allowance to the 80 French prisoners lately taken by the ships of this commonwealth, and now at Rye, in order to their transportation to Dieppe, and for their subsistence until they can be sent over, as has been given to the Dutchmen that are prisoners. [I. 72, pp. 74-79.]

Nov. 17. 158. Gen. Monk to the Admiralty Committee. I am glad that
The Swiftsure, you have given orders for a speedy supply of my ships in the Hope, Hope. as also that others are ready to fall down: I hope the rest will be fitted out with all speed. I have appointed the Assistance and five others, with the two Dutch prizes, to ply between the Lizard and Scilly under Capt. Martin.

I am heartily sorry the Council of State has taken off the embargo, as it will hinder the manning of the great ships. I beg you to hasten down the captain of the Cock and Capt. Goodson. As Capt. Lane does not appear, I propose Capt. Jorden for the Triumph. [1½ pages.]

159. Major N. Bourne to Robt. Blackborne. I am not fit to venture abroad, but am obliged to drive a backward and dull generation, void of reason and conscience. I hope to finish the repairs of ships next week, and that the Generals will not send here any more to be newly built, as some have been, the place not being fit for it. Although I much desire peace, I hope the talk of it will not damp preparations. The Assistance, Expedition, and Newcastle have fallen down the river, and others will follow. [1 page.]

2. The agent from Bremen to have audience at a Committee of Council at 4 p.m. next Monday; Fleming to give him notice.

3. The petition of Andrew Kirby, merchant of Bristol, referred to Admiralty Committee, to consider and report.

parish, and John Farwell, late incumbent, about possession of the parsonage house, and to desire them to send for both parties, examine the matter of fact, and if they find it to be as Mr. Ash certifies, to take care that Thomson may be put in possession of the parsonage as formerly.

12. To send to Mr. Craister, Chomley, and Briscoe, justices of peace for Cumberland, the complaint against * * * ; and desire them to send for the parties, and examine them, and to certify.

16. The condition of Jane Cow, widow, to be recommended to the justices of peace for Southwark, to do for her as an object of charity, at their next meeting or sessions.

18. Order on petition of Jane Ensor, widow, that the restraint laid on the Treasury at Goldsmiths' Hall be taken off as to the payment of her pension, and that the treasurers proceed to pay it her according to the directions formerly granted for paying it at Haberdashers' Hall, with arrears. 162. Gen. Monk to the Admiralty Committee. I have appointed the Laurel and two others to ply between Dungeness and Boulogne, and 4 others between the Dogger Bank and the Riff. I will commission Capt. Goodson to the George, and Capt. Jorden to the Triumph, and desire Capt. Hill may be removed into the Unicorn, Capt. Smith to the Worcester, and Capt. Allen to the Advice, and the Lieutenant of the Swiftsure to take command of the Princess Mary.

Although Jno. Poortmans has business enough, he will undertake to distribute the prize money, but pray let him suffice, and do not require me or my partner to sign the orders. The money must be sent at once, if you make proclamation as you intend.

Robert Plumby of the Sampson is fit for command of one of the frigates building at Shoreham. I do not think your order to the Ordnance officers to take security from gunners for stores practicable, as the gunners may be slain or die, and the stores be embezzled after their death; but care to put in honest men, and a declaration that any found guilty of embezzling shall suffer death, would meet the object. 7. To write to Gen. Monk to send 8 or 10 frigates to ply betwixt the Flie and the Sound, appointing a good commander-in-chief; and to represent how serviceable the same may be, considering the intelligence received.

8, 10. The Lieutenant of the Tower to draw into the Tower all the great guns at Leadenhall and other places in and about London, receiving them from the Lord Mayor by an inventory. A letter to be written to the Lord Mayor to assist herein, and to cause the same to be delivered; expressing that this is not intended as a disrespect to the city, or to the prejudice thereof, but merely that the said guns may be better secured; Ald. Tichborne and Capt. Stone to represent the same to him.

9. The Lieutenant of the Tower to give a speedy account what quantity of powder remains at Goldsmiths' Hall, who claims a property therein, and how the same may be secured without prejudice to the interested.

16. Geoffrey Browne and Wm. Brent, 2 Popish lawyers, to be sent prisoners to Dublin, and delivered over, and proceeded against or acquitted, as their case shall be found to be.

17. Order on report from the Committee for Foreign Affairs on the petition of John Smith and others, concerning the Recovery, taken in the Straits by a French man-of-war and carried to Toulon, to request the public minister of France to procure the interested speedy justice, by restoring their ship and goods, which the Council will be ready to answer with reciprocal favour, upon any address by him made in that behalf.

18. The report from the Committee for Foreign Affairs on the petition of Peter de la Ball, concerning the Louisa and Hunter, taken by some of the Parliament ships and carried into Yarmouth, on their way from Greenland to Havre de Grace, referred back to the said Committee, to examine whether the ships had special passes from Council for the said voyage; and for their better information therein, to call Mr. Thurloe, and if they shall find them to have had free passes, and see no other cause to the contrary, to release the said ships. 163. Chas. Maret to the Council of State. Thanks for the employment you have bestowed on me. I have paid, as ordered by the late Council of State, to Capt. Hen. Hatsell 1,800*l.* On the 16th I received your order of 18 June 1653, to pay 55*l.* 9*s.* 8*d.* to Major Wm. Harding for repairs to Montorgueil Castle ; also 148*l.* 10*s.* 8*d.* to Mich. Lemprière, bailiff, for salary for two years, and have paid them, as also 100*l.* for repairs to the Court hall, water-mills, and houses belonging to the State, which I hope you will allow on my account. 164. Warrant by Gen. Monk to Capts. Rich. Potter of the Constant Warwick, Phil. Holland of the Assurance, and Jas. Ableson of the Mermaid. As a considerable part of the Dutch fleet which lay before the Texel has been much damaged, and made unserviceable through storms, it has been thought necessary to send three or four frigates to annoy the enemy thereabouts. You are therefore to sail in company, and ply between the Dogger Bank and the Riff, to intercept all such Dutch merchants as may come from the East country, laden with hemp, masts, pitch, and tar, and observe directions from Capt. Nath. Cobham of the Newcastle until further order. [Copy, 1 page.]

165. Major N. Bourne to the Admiralty Committee. I hear there are many Dogger pinks fishing for cod off Yarmouth and Lowestoft, which is not to our reputation, but I have no power to interrupt them ; a nimble vessel should be stationed on the coast to secure the small trade, annoy the enemy, and gain intelligence. There are several at Colchester that would be useful.

The three mariners of the Assurance committed to Landguard Fort for mutiny are very tame now, and have nearly a year's wages due, but one is a villain, having embezzled iron work and ropes out of the ship. Several ships are nearly fitted, but want men and stores. I hope soon to come home, but I will leave a mast-maker and two or three men to convert the trees to the best advantage.

If the Hollander do not prove honester in his desire of peace, this place should be considered hereafter. [ $1\frac{2}{3}$  pages.] with a man to treat with the Bashaw about the English captives at Tripoli. I have agreed with him, reduced him to the moderate terms you limited, and bound him as fast as I can, to stand to it; upon the return of the bark, I will give you a full account, and draw the money upon you, except you sent over a bark and the money to bring over the poor men. For want of one here, I have now hired one at Genoa for 1,000 dollars to go to Tripoli and back; if either Jews or others will send any goods coming or going, it will help to defray the charge of the bark. I must send the Bashaw presents to the value of 60 or 80 dollars, so as to get better access.

You desired 5 men named should be the first to be redeemed, and in your last another; but seeing you intended all should be redeemed, picking out some before the rest will bring a double charge; for taking officers and men one with the other, they may be bought off at 200 dollars a man, and if I should only demand these 6 men you name, I believe they would not be got under 100*l.* per man. Abraham Rogers has cut his own ransom there at 400 dollars, and you will see by the enclosed list that half of the men are officers, so that if you can get them for 200 I shall esteem it very reasonable.

All care shall be had to manage the business with frugality, although there will be other large charges besides the ransoms before they get to England, except some shipping come out whereon they may be embarked. [1 page. With letter of 6 Dec. 1653.]

Act for establishing a High Court of Justice for preservation of peace, and timely punishing of actors against it, appointing John Lisle, Commissioner of the Great Seal, Serjeant John Bradshaw, and 31 others, commissioners for hearing and punishing all offenders against the Act of 30 Jan. 1649, forbidding the proclaiming of any person to be King of England or Ireland or the dominions thereof; the Acts of 14 May and 17 July 1649, declaring what offences shall be adjudged treason; and the Act of 22 Jan. 1651, entitled an Act for a seal of the Parliament of the commonwealth. 182. Gen. Monk to the Admiralty Committee. As you are in dispute whether to fit out the great ships now or in spring, I make bold to say that unless you are sure of a speedy peace with the Dutch, the service will be much prejudiced if they are not fitted out at once, for then the Dutch will get their summer fleet ready before ours, and block us up in our harbour instead of our blocking them up in theirs. The objection is that they will want cleaning for the spring, but we will keep them clean and fit for service.

I hope to sail the end of this week westward, with 20 men-of-war. Pray quicken the victuallers to supply us with all that may be required. I enclose a list of ships in the Hope. [1½ pages.]

183. Charles Longland to the Admiralty Committee. I have perfected the accounts of disbursements made here, chiefly about the wounded and pillaged men taken by the Dutch in the late fight in this port, and turned on shore; their particular names and charges are as set down in the enclosed, and come to dol. 6,802 19. 4. There are other disbursements added which were omitted in my last of 2 May, and some rectified, and the balance due is 3,908. 5. 3. which I now draw upon you at 60*d.* per dollar, making 977*l.* 1*s.* 4*d.*; this I hope will be paid.

Since the exploit with the rich French ship, there has not been any Dutch man-of-war in this port, neither will they be welcome for that cause. The French have again begun their old trade of thieving, having lately taken two Dutch ships and one English. We have no news whether the squadron of Dutch which lately went from hence are at the Straits' mouth or gone for France; the Dutch here report they are at the former, and the long stay of some small ships which left England for these parts makes me doubt they have fallen into the hands of the Dutch. Both they and the French have many rich ships in Turkey, which may be back here in 3 months.

There is an advice from Holland that they have received such a notable shipwreck by a storm that they cannot set out any fleet of consequence until next summer, in which time, if you could spare a squadron for these seas, I am confident you need not take any care for providing money to pay them, especially if a stirring active man be their chief commander. P.S. 12 Dec.—By advice from Holland, those States have ordered their squadron in these seas to return home, as they say 20 English frigates are designed this way. I wish this may be true, and they may meet with some Dutch and French, there being now in Turkey a dozen ships belonging to those two nations, all bound for Italy and Marseilles. 192. Petition of Skinner Ryder, late lieutenant to Major Wm. Goodrick, and now to Major-Gen. Lambert, to Lord General Cromwell and the Council of State. I presented my case concerning my title to Wallwood wood, Layton parish, Essex, bought from Sir Ol. Cromwell by my grandfather and descended to me, and you referred the case to the Committee for removing Obstructions, but they have returned it as having no power therein, and it has depended before you since 10 June 1653.

Timber is already felled there, and some sold to Capt. Taylor for the navy, but much spoiled by a rude multitude, because you forbad me to carry it away till a hearing, which is to be next term in the Exchequer. My agent and I are indicted by Sir Hen. Mildmay for riot and forcible entry into the woods, and he has put me to great trouble, though the Barons of Exchequer cleared me. I beg a reference of the whole case to the Exchequer, and leave meanwhile to sell the wood felled, on security to answer its value, if ejected by law.

193. Dr. Dan. Whistler to the Admiralty Committee. I am ordered by Council to go with Ambassador Whitelock on his embassy to Sweden, as physician. I have lately been employed by you on orders from 4 June to 3 August, and from 6 August to 14 September, 100 days, in care of the sick and wounded from the fleet set ashore at Harwich, Ipswich, Aldborough, Southwold, Yarmouth, &c., and have yet received nothing for myself, man, and two horses. I beg you to assign me what you think fit. Noted 200*l.* [ $\frac{3}{4}$  page.]

12. Gen. Monk to the Admiralty Committee. Having received order from the Council of State not to lose the opportunity of sailing from hence with such ships as are ready, I called a council of war to know their present state, and find 20 sail will be ready on the 6th inst., if part of their provisions and stores are sent down in time, about which I have written to the respective officers concerned for their supply, but we desire it may be seconded by you, that so, if wind and weather permit, I may set sail.

Since the embargo has been taken off, seamen are very hard to be got, although all care and diligence have been used to answer that want, and I doubt we shall be forced to sail with 20, 30, and 40 men short to each ship, except 4 or 5 which are fully manned. I hope care will be taken that the ships which follow may bring men enough for themselves and us, as well as for those ships at Portsmouth, which are in great want. It would be well if the masters of merchant ships were enjoined not to allow more wages to seamen than the State does; also care should be taken for their impressing in every seaport town in England by the chief magistrates of each place, and upon notice I will send vessels for their reception.

John Poortmans has no order for disposing of the prize money he has in hand. Pray send out immediately by reason of our sudden sailing from hence, the seamen's expectations thereof being very high. [ $1\frac{3}{4}$  pages.]

When such men are laid aside, if the Lord leave us, we can only say "Righteous art thou, O Lord, because we have not "walked in the ways of thy commands."

It is strange that when they have entangled me in so weighty a charge of money, they take no care for my direction and security. I have more eyes on me than before, through the late alteration. - Dec. 8. 27. Petition of Giles Vandeput and Nicholas Warren, merchants of London, to Council, for release of their vessel, the St. John Baptist, formerly the Sun, stayed at Gravesend by warrant from General Monk.
She was taken from the Hollanders. They bought her for 920*l.* at the Prize Office, and spent 2,000*l.* more in guns, repairs, and victuals. She is bound for Nantes, to take in wines and spirits for the Caribbee Islands, and then to return here, for which purpose they have given security in the Tower for her guns. John Van Rhyn, a German, and David Donville, a Hamburger, are to load her at Nantes, but no Hollander nor enemy of the commonwealth has any interest in her. Her master is a Dunkirker, and through the scarcity of English seamen, she is manned with Hamburgers, Dunkirkers, and such men as could be got. [ $\frac{2}{3}$  page.]

9. The petition of Wm. Dec. 11. 47. Luke Whittington to Ralph Parker, merchant, Prince of Orange's house, Flushing. I hope you received the letters I sent by Mr. Armitage, merchant of Leeds, for yourself, as also for my Lord of Derry and Mr. Croke. Send me my buff doublet, a little good cheese, which would sell here at 2 stivers the pound, and some tobacco promised by Sir Jno. Mennes, also an account respecting the prizes, and put my Lord in mind of something for me, as he promised Galbreth he would lend me 100 guilders for 6 weeks.
There is little hope of peace between the Hollander and the English rebels; Sir Andrew Cogan's letter says that the soldiers petition hard for a monarchy, and it is thought Cromwell will ere long make himself King. [1 page.]
- Dec. 12. 48. Chas. Longland to the Admiralty Commissioners. I have finished my account of disbursements, chiefly about the wounded and pillaged men taken in the late unhappy fight, and turned ashore; total balance due, dollars 6,802. 19. 4., for which I have drawn bills for 977*l.* 1*s.* 4*d.*
There are no Dutch men-of-war here, nor would they be welcome after their late exploit. The French follow their old trade of thieving, and have taken 2 Dutch and 1 English ship. The Dutch say that their squadron which left here is at the Straits' mouth, and I fear some ships gone for England are fallen into their hands. There are many Dutch and French ships in Turkey that will be back in 3 months; we hear from Holland that they have had such a notable shipwreck by storm that they cannot fit out a fleet till summer, so that if you could spare a squadron for these seas with an active commander, I am confident that you need not take care to provide money to pay them.
We hear from Holland that the States have ordered their ships in these seas to return home, because 20 English frigates are designed this way. I hope it may be true, for they might meet a dozen French and Dutch ships bound for Italy and Marseilles. [1½ pages.]

Whereas the late Parliament dissolving themselves, and resigning their powers and authorities, the government of the commonwealth of England, Scotland, and Ireland, by a Lord Protector, and successive Parliaments, is now established; and whereas Oliver Cromwell, Captain General of all the forces of this commonwealth, is declared Lord Protector of the said nations, and has accepted thereof, we have therefore thought it necessary (as we hereby do) to make publication of the premises, and strictly to charge and command all and every person of what quality and condition soever, in any of the

50. Alex. Bence to the Navy Committee. At 11 p.m. on the 1st instant, the Robert and Richard of London, commanded by Wm. Fugg, was boarded and taken in this road by several Dutch merchantmen, pretending to have letters of marque; there were 8 other ships in port interested in the action. They found little opposition from our countrymen, who conceived themselves safe under the protection of this King, but whose ministers and magistrates showed but little favour, as they did not fire one gun in their defence, although within musket shot of their works, whereby they were so disheartened that 16 of 20 of the company forsook the ship, and escaped on shore. We have presented our grievance to the Governor, and declared our loss to amount to upwards of 26,000 dollars, but we find him cold in our favour; the actors, after remaining two days in port with their prize, sailed for Leghorn. I have given notice thereof to the Vice-king, and requested him to look into this business, and if you deem it convenient, will demand satisfaction in your name, or otherwise in the like nature it will be easy for any of your ships that pass this way to recover the value. Until you send a fleet into these seas, there will be no security for commerce by our nation, this coast being full of such Dutch merchantmen. There are no other men-of-war on this coast, notwithstanding we are threatened by the Hollanders from Italy. [1½ page.]

&c. of Hampton Court, for their surrender to the commonwealth on reasonable terms. Annexing,

52. Their report thereon. We treated with Edmund Backwell, goldsmith and jeweller, who contracted for Bushy Park 15 Nov. 1653, at the rent of 408*l.* 15*s.* a year, and for materials, timber, deer, &c. to the gross value of 915*l.* 17*s.* The rent being sold at 14 years' purchase came to 5,722*l.* 10*s.*, so that the total of the purchase was 6,638*l.* 7*s.*

Of these he reserves to himself the New Park, valued at 115*l.* a year, which cost him 1,635*l.*, for which he demands 450*l.* profit. Part of New Park, 23 acres, he sold to Mr. Casewell of Hampton for 407*l.* 10*s.*—53*l.* more than it cost him; this is paid for and conveyed. He sold the meadows to his brother, John Backwell, for 1,550*l.*—308*l.* more than it cost him; and old Bushy Park to Mr. Woolmer, of Gracious Street, for 1,528*l.*—100*l.* more than it cost him; and the hare warren to Mr. Bryce and Mr. Inwood for 1,170*l.* Of these none are conveyed, nor is more than a moiety of the purchase money paid.

Backwell has thus received 461*l.* profit for the part sold, and he demands for his own part 450*l.* profit. His brother demands 450*l.*, Mr. Woolmer 400*l.*, Mr. Bryce and Mr. Inwood demand 200*l.* besides their charges. The total of the purchase, less Mr. Casewell's, is 6,283*l.* 17*s.*, the moiety of which 3,141*l.* 18*s.* 6*d.* is presently to be paid in to the purchasers, besides the profit demanded, 1,968*l.*, the sum total being 5,109*l.* 18*s.* 6*d.*

The Middle Park of Hampton Court was sold to Col. Norton, 3 December, but no proceedings have been taken therein except about contracts.—10 Jan. 1654. [1 page.]

54. Petition of Hugh Morrell, merchant, representing sundry French merchants and others of Paris, to the Council of State. Being at the Court and Council of France, and having beyond all expectation received release of a ship of 250 tons of currants belonging to merchants of London, sundry merchants, &c. of Paris have applied to us about an island in Amerya [America?] long inhabited by French, and the Governor, being old, has sold it to these gentlemen.

They think nothing would more favour their design than the protection of England, and they offer that all ships coming from their plantation shall stop at some port of England, make an entry of their goods, and pay  $\frac{1}{4}$  per cent. customs, and then transport the rest to France. Also ships going thither shall stop in England to buy commodities.

58. Petition of Cols. Thos. Saunders, John Okey, and Mat. Alured to the Protector, &c., and our General :—

As members of the army, we solemnly declared (14 June 1647) that we engaged not as mercenaries but in conscience for the liberties of our country ; yet from our confidence in you, who engaged with us in the same quarrel, we waited your counsels to the utmost extremity.

But finding you engaged in transactions whereupon the life and death of the cause bought with our blood hangs, we are obliged to remind you of the tyranny against which we engaged, and of the fundamental rights and freedoms we intended to redeem out of the tyrant's hands, and to this the whole army agreed, not only before but after the exemplary justice done on the late King. We then declared his tyranny to consist in his opposition to Parliament, concerning the people's safety in their absolute command of the militia, and of their power to call officers of justice and ministers of State to account, which he said could not be done without him, and that whatever he did, no power could meddle with his sacred person.

VOL. XLII.

We then declared that we must have constant Parliaments, freely chosen by the people, which should have the supreme power in making laws, removing grievances, determining peace or war, &c., and no person should be exempt from punishment by the people's Parliament; the principle of the King's unaccountableness being the great root of tyranny.

We tremble to think of the account we must render, if by silence we give away the freedom purchased by precious blood, and subject the people to a like kind of thralldom. We are therefore pressed in conscience to declare that we sadly resent the consequences of establishing that supreme trust of the militia for  $2\frac{1}{2}$  years out of 3, in a single person, with a Council which he can control at pleasure by a negative voice. Also this power is not to be over such a militia as the late King durst not claim, but over a standing army, which this single person, if corrupt, may employ to destroy Parliament, and bring us under vassalage; for this army will be mercenary, and obey his commands from interest, whereas the ancient militia, having their own arms and officers, were not obliged to obey the King's illegal commands. Such a militia commander will be master of all Parliaments, freedoms, and all our birthrights, especially considering that, according to what is imposed by the present Parliament, no Parliament shall ever dare to propose anything against a single person's command of the militia, lest he should refuse, during their session, to dispose of it as they advise; so that all provisions for liberty of conscience or freedom would thus be made void.

All legislative power would also depend upon this single person, he having an absolute negative to all Bills, unless Parliament declare that he is obstinate, and will neither consent to the Bill nor satisfy them why he will not, which they would not dare to do to one who commands 30,000 men. Also this negative voice is a clog upon Parliament, the opposing of which in the late King cost so much blood.

Now if this single person should attempt the highest tyranny, the power vested in him is such that Parliament cannot execute justice on him unless he consent to have justice done on himself, and he can protect himself, as the late King might have done, if he had had a standing army. Also we apprehend ill consequences from allowing the Protector and Council to levy money to pay a fleet and army of 30,000, and 200,000*l.* a year over and above.

We are filled with trouble, being daily taunted that while we pretended the freedom of our country, we only intended to set up ourselves; therefore we are cautious about taking rashly any new engagement, though none will more faithfully serve you in all just designs. We therefore beg that a full and truly free Parliament may consider our fundamental rights and freedoms, settle the Government, and secure us against all future attempts of tyranny. In your protection of these great ends we will hazard life and estate in your defence. Noted: "This petition was subscribed and owned by these 3, and had been by many more colonels of the army, if the Lord Protector had not, upon search of Col. Alured's chamber, taken it away and imprisoned him for 2 days, whereby any further subscriptions were prevented." [1 sheet, printed.]

Dec. 20.

59. Information of Mar. Nedham respecting a meeting held at Blackfriars on Monday evening, 19 December 1653. The first man in the pulpit was the minister of Shoreditch, who was very moderate, and after him Mr. Feake discoursed concerning the little horn in Daniel vii, which he would not say was meant of anyone in this or any other nation. "I will name nobody," said he, but he gave many desperate hints, which he named characters, and about nine in number. The first was that this little horn should come up among the 10 horns; by the 10 are understood 10 kings, kingdoms, or governments, which were to arise out of the kingdom of the fourth beast, that is, those 10 European kings, kingdoms, or states that arose out of the Roman monarchy. It is said of the little horn that he should come up among these as a branch of the fourth monarchy, and that is the first character.

The second is that this little horn should arise after the 10 horns or kings, that is, after the 10 horns have continued a while; then a little before these 10 horns expire shall this little horn arise, yet not so after them but that he may be said to be among them.

The third is that this little horn shall be diverse from the first, that is, from the 10, and shall not in all things be like any of the 10 horns or kings, but shall appear another thing, and his power and government entirely different.

The fourth character is that before this little horn, three of the first were plucked up by the roots, and three fell before him, and that he should subdue three of the horns, three kings or kingdoms, and this, he said, I apply to nobody.

The fifth is that in this horn were eyes like a man, that is, he had eyes, his emissaries and spies, in every corner.

The sixth is that he had a mouth speaking great words in defiance of the most high God, and his people.

A seventh character that he had a look more stout than his fellows. Here it is intimated that though he differ in his government and title from the 10 kings, yet he shall be equal to them in power, and so they but his fellows. And he shall be more stout, that is, take more upon him than those his fellows.

The eighth is that he shall think to change times and laws, and to make great alterations in government, and set up a form and laws of his own.

The ninth and last character is that this little horn made war with the saints and prevailed against them, as it is said "he shall wear out the saints of the Most High; and they shall be given into his hand until a time, and times, and the dividing of time," which is said to be until judgment was given to the saints of the Most High, and the time came that the saints possessed the kingdom. In the 26th and 27th verses it is said "the judgment shall sit, and they shall take away his dominion, to consume and to destroy it unto the end, and the kingdom, dominion, and greatness of the kingdom under the whole Heaven shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High, &c."

Thus you see how this little horn is to make war with the saints, that is, to set himself against them, and prevail in his design, so as they shall be given into his hand, and he shall wear them out for some short time, until the time come when the fifth monarchy begins, when the kingdom and dominion must be given to the saints, who in the end shall take away his dominion, and destroy it.

And so it appears the little horn is a power sprung out of the fourth monarchy, immediately before the beginning of the fifth and which shall be destroyed by the fifth.

"I know" said he, "some would have the late King Charles to be meant by this little horn, but as I said at first, I'll name nobody. God will make it clear shortly to his people who is meant here," and after many like insinuations at random, he dismissed the subject.

Vavasour Powell went up next, and pursued the same interpretations, enlarging on the subject out of Daniel xi, but reflected much more openly than Mr. Feake, being very broad. He applied what is spoken in the 20th and 21st verse of that chapter to the little horn. The king of the north he interpreted to be the late King, who stumbled and fell, and could not be found. Then shall stand up in his estate, as in the 20th verse, a raiser of taxes in the glory of the kingdom, but within a few days he shall be destroyed, neither in anger, nor in battle; "a small matter," he said, "should fetch him down, with little noise."

And here he took occasion to inveigh bitterly against the great commanders, as if they were the sole cause of taxes; but it is said moreover, in the 21st verse, of the successor of the king of the north, "in his estate shall stand up a vile person, to whom they shall not give the honour of the kingdom, but he shall come in peaceably and obtain the kingdom by flatteries." This he applied in a most pernicious manner to the present time; and then went on to the 22nd, 23rd, and 24th verses, which he wrested after the same strange manner, and then from the 30th to the 33rd verses, which are "He shall have intelligence with them that forsake the holy Covenant," "that is," said he, "with such as apostatise from their principles." "And arms shall stand on his part," "that is," said Mr. Powell "the great army men and swordsmen shall side with him;" "and such as do wickedly against the Covenant shall be corrupt by flatteries, but the people that do know their God shall be strong and do exploits, and they that understand among the people shall instruct many," upon which he expatiated with very bold reflections, and then concluded that subject.

He then fell upon a new discourse, and told us that there were four things at which people are now very much offended, "but we here," said he, "are ready to justify them before all the world, and they are these;

(1.) That there is such a thing as a fifth monarchy, which Christ is now setting up.

(2.) That there is now such a thing as a spirit of prophecy in the saints, whereby they are enabled to foretell things to come, and

Vol. XLII.

Dec. 20. thereupon he undertook to foretell the downfall of the present power.

Upon the latter he was copious, and said they must down, though they were never so strongly protected, for Christ is none of their lord protectors, though the army-men protect them, "yes, and rather than those shall down, they will pull Parliament in pieces, and this made them break the last Parliament; for on Saturday the 6th of December, the House refused to settle a commission of ministers to ride in circuits as the judges did, and judge who were fit to be continued, or put out of their livings, and so to maintain them upon the old corrupt foundation still; and when the House would not yield that these antichristian clergymen and tithes should be upheld, then on Monday following in the morning they were thrust out,—I mean the few honest men of them that were then present,—by violence, and the rest, as they had agreed beforehand, went and subscribed their names to a paper, giving up their authority in the name of the whole, whereas none of the honest men would subscribe or surrender save only some three or four, who have since professed their hearty sorrow to me for it. This is true, and we must speak it out, for our mouths shall not be stopped with paper proclamations. I saw one to-day in print which says this last Parliament dissolved themselves, and resigned up their powers and authorities; but I take it to be a libel, for at the top of it it is said to be by the Council, but it does not say by the Council of State, nor by the Council of war, nor by the Common council, nor by name of any other council, and therefore I look upon it as a mere libel; for I am sure it lies sufficiently in saying the Parliament dissolved themselves, the better part being utterly against it, and continue of that mind to this day, and so you shall find they will continue. They were broken by force, and it was a business plotted by the great army men, clergymen, and their party together."

This Mr. Powell represented as a grand mystery, and so took upon himself to strip and whip it in a very furious manner, before all the people, which being done, he flew into many strange ejaculations. "Lord," said he, "have our army men all apostatised from their principles! what is become of all their declarations, protestations, and professions? Are they choked with lands, parks, and manors? Let us go home and pray, and say Lord wilt Thou have Oliver Cromwell or Jesus Christ to reign over us? I know there are many gracious souls in the army, and of good principles, but the greater they grow, the more they are corrupted with lands and honours. I'll tell you a common proverb that we had among us of the General, that in the field he was the gracioucest and most gallant man in the world, but out of the field, and when he came home again to government, the worst."

He added that they expected persecution, and snares were laid, and spies set over them, and they might be deprived of the benefit, of meeting in that place, "but then," said he, "we can meet at another; and if we be driven from thence, we will meet at private houses; and if we cannot have liberty there, we will into the fields; and if we be driven thence, we will into corners; for we will never give over, and God will not permit this spirit to go down, but will be the support of the spirits of his people."

He also complained of the faltering of divers who had formerly been very forward at this meeting, but now drew back, and therefore he prayed that the Lord would hold up the meeting.

Mr. Powell having done, one seated at the corner of the gallery began to speak, and would have gone on to oppose somewhat that had been spoken, and strained his voice to overcome the outcries; but after half-an-hour's tumult, Mr. Cockaine getting into the pulpit, they cried down the other.

Mr. Cockaine entered upon the 5th chapter of Hosea, and discoursed so largely upon the two first verses that he had no time to trace any further. He told us this part of the prophecy referred to the time of Jereboam the Second, who held up the corrupt worship as it was at first instituted by Jereboam the First; and the house of the king, and the whole tribe of the idolatrous priesthood combined together, out of policy, to maintain their several interests, by keeping out and suppressing the true worship of God. The idolatrous priesthood supported the house of the king, and the king maintained the priesthood. Here was their compliance, and this he made bold to parallel to the present state of things in England, by showing the like compliance, and he was often up with the name of antichristian clergy, parochial priests, Baal's priests in England, and what a combination there is now between them here and the house of the king or the present power; but from the example, and in the words of Hosea, that bold man, as he called him, he was bold to declare judgment towards them both, and that shortly to be expected; and why? Because they have been a snare on Mizpah and a net spread upon Tabor. He told us Mizpah and Tabor were two mountains upon which were built two watch towers to espy. There spies were kept continually by the priests and the king, because those places overlooked all the highways towards Jerusalem, and so none had a mind to go thitherward to the true worship of God but they were presently espied, and so persecuted by the priests and the king, who had set up their interests in the idolatrous worship, and therefore were resolved to force it upon the people, and use all means to keep them from a better; and for this purpose they had snares spread and spies set in every corner, as the priests and their king have here with us, and he was very copious in this kind of discourse.

Then he came to the 2nd verse, and told us that as the revolvers in Israel were profound to make slaughter, profound in their plots and designs to circumvent and persecute, so the like here in England, and it might be expected more. Here he fell foul upon the great clergymen, as well as others, who had deserted from their principles, and said we might beware of such, for that none were so desperately bent, and so profoundly set upon mischief against men of right principles, as such as had revolted from them. He talked at large of much cruelty that was to be expected from such revolvers, but bade us rest assured the Lord would be a rebuke of them all.

VOL. XLII.

These are some brief hints of larger discourses. One thing more let me add, that Vavasour Powell's 4th point, which he said he would justify against all the world, is, that the magistrate has nothing to do to meddle in matters of religion. The meeting was adjourned until Monday next. [6 pages.]

called as may be requisite, for preventing these, and for governing the fleet in better order, according to the laws of war, and ordinances of the sea, ordained by Parliament, it is hereby ordered,—

That the first article of the said laws and ordinances be duly observed by each commander, viz.: that the chief flag ship, or commander of each squadron, with assistance of a council of war of his squadron, sentence and punish all offences committed against any article of war and ordinance of sea, by any person belonging to any of the ships in his squadron. Provided that no execution or sentence of loss of limb proceed until we Generals be made acquainted with the crime (the criminal being still secured), and with the depositions against and defence made by the offender, &c., and the same delivered to the Judge Advocate of the fleet, to be registered and kept upon record. Provided also that no sentence for cashiering of a captain pass until we Generals have had information of the whole, and that the proceedings be delivered to be recorded as above said.

That each commander bearing a flag subordinate to the chief of any squadron, calling to council at least three commanders of the ships under his division, have power to sentence and punish offences against the said laws and ordinances on any ship of his division, with the previous provisoes.

That whenever three ships of war or more shall be sent to any guard or station, the commanders have the same power to punish that is hereby given to the flag commander of a division, during the time of their stay abroad.

That the captain of each ship of war, calling to his assistance the lieutenant, if any be thereupon allowed, with the master, his mate, check, gunner, boatswain, and carpenter, have power to examine and bring to trial and punishment any person belonging to his ship, for any offence against any of the said laws and ordinances, or against other orders for retaining mariners on board their ships, or continuing them at their duty while on board, and for punishment of any one who shall attempt to carry them thence without leave; this order to extend to the punishment of any offence committed on shore, in any place or harbour into which any of the ships shall be sent, or have occasion to put; also any offence committed against any order already or hereafter to be made for prevention of fire or other accident, by the miscarriage of lights, taking tobacco, selling strong drink on board, or the breach of future articles, for avoiding mischances in the fleet. Provided that sentences of loss of life or limb, or the cashiering of any commissioned officer be remitted to the commander of the party, if remote from the fleet, or to the flag commander of that division, or the next superior in that squadron, or if he be also absent, to the chief flag or commander thereof.

Lastly, it is ordered, according to an order of 16 May 1653, that all commanders of ships of war in the service repair on board the flag ship of every division under which they are ranged, or the chief flag of the squadron, whenever a pendant or other signal for a council of war shall be put forth by any of the said flags, on penalty of the

64. Report of the Fleet Committee, brought in by Col. Clerk and Lieut.-Col. Kelsey, for the timely providing a fleet for next summer's expedition, in case the war with the Dutch continues, viz.:—

(1.) That there be a main body of 130 sail; 30 whereof it is supposed will be continually absent in convoying prizes, washing, tallowing, and refitting.

(2–6.) Twelve to be assigned for the Channel and Land's End, 6 for Scotland, and 6 for Ireland; 12 for the back of Scotland to intercept trade, and 4 for the guard of the colliers.

(7.) The main body with the rest, to be ready by the end of March, but those for the back of Scotland to be then at their station.

(8.) A large magazine of victuals, masts, and other stores to be timely provided at Harwich.

(9.) So large a stock of ammunition, masts, and cordage to be provided that, after an engagement, we be not long without recruits, for want whereof the service may be much prejudiced. [1 page.]

Charles Longland to the Admiralty Committee. Notes from the letter of 12 December.

Contrary to what I wrote, the Dutch squadron are not going home, but coming hither with their booty, obtained at the Straits' mouth, which they intend to divide and sell here. They were seen 50 leagues off three days since, so they may be expected every hour.

When I understood, by letters from England, that the State had sent 80 men-of-war to the Narrow Seas, I thought at least 20 of them were designed for the Straits, as such a fleet would not find anything to do in the Channel, the Dutch being disabled by the late storm from appearing until next spring. A Dunkirk frigate, laden with currants for England, has been taken at Tunis. [¾ page. With his letter of 12 Dec. 1653.]

Goulding's, and I am in better hopes by reason that your old friend is one of the secretaries, and in time you may doubtless have your former employment. I hope Mr. Rouse will assist my business. Mr. Cullen has not yet arrived, but when he does, I will procure and send his letter. I shall very willingly accept your offer of the prize at Rye, if you send the price and other particulars, and after a view of her, I will make an offer. [¾ page.]

67. Petition of Cpts. Wm. Rance and Giles Horsington, for themselves and 300 surveyors, clerks, and messengers, to the Protector.

Most of them have served under 3 Acts for sale of traitors' lands, on their own charges and in remote parts. Their necessities appear by an order of the Committee for Petitions. Wilmer, their pastor, has been zealous in gathering the scattered saints into one body to enjoy gospel ordinances, but he is overwhelmed with incident charges, has been at great charge in repairs, paid first fruits, arrears to Magdalen College, Oxford, and a yearly rent, so that he can hardly maintain a great family, yet is tender of being a burden to them. 73. Gens. Monk and Penn to the Generals of the fleet. We hear from General Desborow that there are a considerable number of Dutch merchant ships homeward bound from several ports in St. Martin's Island, which concurs with what we have formerly heard, and we suppose this last easterly wind has brought them into the westwardly wind's way, and hope they will not escape the party of frigates under Capt. Bowen, now plying between the Isle of Wight and Cape Barfleur, and those plying at almost every headland, and on the French coast, and we apprehend our nimble frigates will better answer the service than a main body in the Channel this winter.

We have ordered Capt. Bourne to endeavour an embodying with us on the first coming up of an easterly wind, as we will then sail from hence with the main body, and ply in that station, or where else may most conduce to the intercepting of any ships that wind may bring from the Holland coast.

There are 5 prizes lately taken by our frigates which came from Nantes, 4 of which are in this road, and the other sent to Dover by the Kentish. We will appoint Capt. Motham to the first vacancy. [1½ pages.]

74. Navy Commissioners to the Admiralty Committee. The sad news of the unparalleled loss of two New England ships with 54 masts has reached us, and we beg that the Generals may be directed to strictly examine the captains, as they were taken but 14 leagues from the Land's End, and brought through the Channel to Flushing in 6 days, meeting no frigate of ours, and those who took them lay a whole day feasting off Dungeness.

We are hastening the other ships bound for New England, and want their lading, letters of credit, &c. hastened down. We shall act on your verbal assent about bills of exchange on the treasurer, till we have your order signed. [1 page.]

In addition to which he shall receive 100*l.* for every 100,000*l.* he shall disburse in the year, over and above the sum of 1,300,000*l.* [I. 75, p. 25.]

87. Report to the Protector in the case John Bilton, that he attended the forces under his Highness in 1651, and was at great expense in following the army with the treasure under his charge, and that 10s. a day, for himself, servant, and horse, is a reasonable allowance. If he was not then a servant of the then Treasurers-at-war, and paid by them, he should be paid from the contingencies of Council. [Draft, 1 page.]

88. ——— to his friends. We embarked in the G.O.C. [General Oliver Cromwell] and after many adventures, and tossings, doubled the Cape of Good Hope, came to harbour, and set to repairing our ships, expecting the Speaker, Self-seeker, Intelligence, Reformation, Dissension, Interloper, and other vessels which were to rendezvous there, and which came up 3 Oct. We made hay whilst the sun shone (the natives being brought so low that we needed not to fear them), and divided the country, lands, houses, orchards, woods, &c. to the several adventurers, according to their merits. But as many persons who had embarked in the G. O. C., on some dissatisfaction, had forsaken it and gone aboard the Dissension, thus discouraging the adventurers, we decided that none of these should have any martial authority, or be admitted to council to determine anything concerning the State, nor share in the estates of the heathenish natives.

Passing by the outrages committed on the natives, those who had betaken themselves to the Dissension sailed N. by W. and carried with them the Reformation, and an old ship of great burden, called the Covenant. They agreed to take part with the natives, and despatched a small hoy called the Turnsail, with articles to be ratified by the Prince of the natives, which was done, and confirmed by oath. Thereupon a declaration was issued against the adventurers, who forthwith manned their old ship the G. O. C., and sailed away with a company of select mariners and soldiers, and on 1 Dec. came in sight of the Reformation, which kept to the windward, having the Covenant ready to fall in if required. After some encounters, the G. O. C. sprung a leak, and many of our men were troubled with sickness, so that we were forced to submit to necessity, hoisted sail, and floated into a creek called Desperation.

The Reformation, Dissension, and Covenant pursued and lay directly in the road, which much discouraged our mariners, but we soon recollected ourselves, manned a strong ship which always attended the G. O. C., called the Resolution, and by help of a strong gale, attacked the ships, shot through the Covenant, she escaping by towing herself to the Dissension, and sank the Reformation, taking out her tackling and colours as a memorial of our victory.

The Dissension and Covenant kept together, repaired their breaches, and resolved to run into harbour and try a land engagement. They incited the natives to free themselves from the cruelty of the adventurers, ordered the colours of the Covenant to be lodged with those which the natives formerly carried, with many other ceremonies submitted to by the natives as motives to amity. They marched in order to a place where they resolved to try their own courage and that of their adversaries, who still sailed in their old ship, the G. O. C. She set the men ashore; we drew towards the enemy, who had fortified the place and were resting, and before many days gave the onset.

We soon decided the controversy, made them run 9 ways at once, and had the precious opportunity of uncasing our old friends, then defeated enemies, much to our own satisfaction and that of others. For the ships, the Covenant was incapable of service, and the Dissension we used to transport some persons of wild principles to several ports of the nation, the mariners that managed her being willing to please all parties that came aboard. We hoped she would stand us in good stead in some difficult passages which required mariners skilled in cross and boisterous seas, but the effect thwarted our expectation.

Having again brought the G. O. C. into a secure harbour, with the Dissension, Interloper, Intelligencer, and 2 pinnaces, the Policy and Deceit, we left the Covenant in the north, amongst certain isles called the Oracles of the Kirk, putting as captain an old soldier, who was a Monk of the order of St. Sebastian (a good commander, and had served before in the Interloper), who kept company with the Intelligencer, and they had the pinnace Deceit and a long boat the Turnsail for their convenience.

Capt. Monk insinuated very discreetly into the admiral of the G. O. C., who sent the Intelligencer to barter with him. This gave much life to the navy, and especially to the admiral, who had betaken himself to the Dissension, finding the G. O. C. grown very heavy, and the pilot so conceited that they would needs sail stern forward, which was ridiculous in itself, and gave much dissatisfaction to the rest of the fleet; and in conclusion, the admiral called a council aboard the Dissension, wherein they agreed to abandon the G. O. C. and build another ship, which they named the Protector, and was a strong ship all built of the heart of oak. [7 pages of a small book of 24 pages, containing also some notes of weights and measures, and a note in the same hand, about the writer's being cast into prison, and only saved by the gaoler's kindness from perishing for want of bread.]

Dec. ? 90. Anne, widow of John Calvert, to Gen. Desborow. I beg that, though my husband died of a surfeit, I may not be slighted more than others in like case, who have had their 20*l.* and I not a penny. Pray give me something to keep me alive meantime. [½ page.]

92. Information of Hen. Symball, messenger.

1. Being driven into Yarmouth by storm, last Michaelmas, the postmaster, bailiffs and Mr. Kellett, of Golston, refused him horses to ride post to Sould; and Capt. Johnson of Yarmouth reviled him for taking one, which he found, as authorised by his warrant. [See 27 May 1653.]

2. Johnson being asked to peruse the warrant, treated it scornfully, and tore it, though it had the Council [of State]'s seal, and said it was but a colour for stealing his horse.

3. He also tried to force away Council's packet of letters.

4. After the post hire was laid down, he tried to force away the horse, and neither Kellett nor the constable who stood by would interfere.

5. He threatened Peter Cornelius, captain of a vessel appointed to carry the packets, who said he must witness the abuse.

6. He arrested Cornelius for this, and for his service in pressing the horse, and forced him to pay 3*l.* 10*s.* [1 page.]

93. Petition of the Adventure's company to the Admiralty Committee, against their captain, John Best. He is drunken, and when they chase the enemy, he runs about like a madman, beats his company, and puts the ship out of trim, either from fear or favour of the enemy. Beg another commander. [ $\frac{1}{2}$  sheet.] Annexing,

93. I. Articles against Capt. Best, May—Dec. 1653; e.g., drunkenness, neglect of duty, cruelty to his men, misconduct in not chasing the enemy, and thus losing prizes. 43 signatures, 17 being by mark. [ $\frac{1}{2}$  sheets.]

Dec. ?

94. Charge by Capt. John Best and several of the Company, against the gunner, Chas. Byard, for disobedience to orders, making false accusations, and encouraging a spirit of mutiny against his captain, swearing, quarrelling, &c. [ $1\frac{1}{4}$  pages.]

Dec. ?

95. Petition of the preservators of the Forest of Dean, for themselves and the gentry, freeholders, and inhabitants, to the Committee for removing obstructions in the sale of Crown lands. Hearing that surveyors have been measuring a parcel of waste land, called White-mead Park, which was never enclosed, but only hedged and ditched by the fee-farmers as a pound for stray cattle, for which a rent was paid to the Crown (though the enclosing it as a pound was an usurpation, and the fee-farmer never dared to cut the timber thereon), beg that no grant may be made thereof, the case being agitated by one that had a prime hand in the destruction of timber in the forest. [ $\frac{1}{2}$  page.]

Dec. ?

96. Statement of the rights of the freeholders and commoners to commons, house boot, fire boot, &c. in the forest. Five years ago, Parliament stopped the ironworks in the forest because of the destruction of timber ; but now one is opened again, and others to be built. The place of constable of the court is one of honour rather than profit. Fee, 10*l.* ; with deer and trees, fees from fines, the right of holding the hundred court, &c. [ $\frac{3}{4}$  page.]

Dec. ?

97. Petition of Lieut. Ant. Robins to the Admiralty Committee. The Ordnance Committee, 15 March 1653, empowered me to repair to Gloucester, Bristol, Chester, Worcester, Liverpool, Beaumaris, and Hereford, and send all their ordnance, powder, ammunition, &c. to London. You also, on 23 March 1653, empowered me to press mariners on the Severn, and send them to Bristol, and to go from thence to Portsmouth, both which I performed in 96 days, but have received no payment. The Ordnance Committee say I should have 10*s.* a day ; I have waited long, and all but myself that were so employed have been paid. [1 page.]

Dec. ?

98. Petition of Wm. Roffe to the Protector, to be one of his Highness's guard, having served in his own troop as trooper, and been faithful through the wars. [ $\frac{2}{3}$  page.]

99. Petition of John Tailyeor, late master of the Dolphin, belonging to Benj. Brease, merchant of Leith, to Gen. Desborow. I and the rest of the crew having received much loss by the abuse of Wm. Brandley, late captain of the Essex, and being put to great trouble and expense to recover our rights, and reduced to great poverty, beg your consideration of our grievances, and your help in procuring redress. [ $\frac{2}{3}$  page.] Annexing,

99. I. Grievances of Capt. John Taylor. I went from Leith to Dantzic with passes of Col. Lilburne and the Admiralty Committee, and in returning on 20 August 1653, being storm-driven, I went to 3 English frigates for help. Capt. Brandley, on the Essex, sent for me and my mate, and though I showed him my passes, and begged him to consider the worth of my ship, he got us both on his ship, carrying us twice to the coasts of England and again to Holland. I was at last sent for to go aboard the Admiral, but Brandley first plundered my ship, taking away 3 boats full of goods, all my clothes, books, instruments, &c., and all my men except 7, and then sent me away in the ship, having even taken our provisions. [1 sheet.]

100. Address of John Manley, farmer of the Posts, to Col. Montague and Sir Gilbert Pickering. Last June I contracted for the farm of the foreign and inland Post for 2 years, at 10,000*l.*, rent, and was to have the carriage of all letters except those sent by known carriers.

After I had accepted the charge, I was requested to pay my rent quarterly beforehand, I suppose because I was a stranger to the Committee, and they did not know what estate I owned. This I did, even when the farm was violently prosecuted against during the last Parliament.

VOL. XLII.

But the contract is not made good by suppressing all other letter-carriers, to my damage of 1,000*l.* at least. I beg that all such contemnners of authority may be suppressed. Also I beg that I may not in future be obliged to pay my rent beforehand, and that my contract may be confirmed for a longer time, as I have been at great charge in erecting post stages, and intend to set up more, especially in Ireland. Also I am willing to settle packet boats between England and Spain. Therefore, as my term has only 18 months to run, if I go to these expenses, they will become the spoil of the succeeding farmer. With list of 10 places where persons carry letters without warrant. [2 pages.]

Dec. ?

101. Private instructions [by John Manley ?] to the deputy post-masters. To take care of the despatch of all his Highness's packets. To attend in person, if possible, if not to choose discreet deputies. To be careful in the choice of riders ; not to allow them to receive private packets or letters, and if any such are given them, to send them up to me.

To suffer no mail to be opened without my leave. To have all letters given on the road put into the mail, and certify the number of letters to the office in London. To be vigilant, as opportunity may offer, to discover any designs against his Highness or the State, and give notice to the commanders of the nearest garrisons.

Not to permit any to ride post from London without warrant of his Highness, Council, the Generals of the fleet, Admiralty and Navy Commissioners, or myself.

Not to allow posthorses at other stages without examination of the applicant before a magistrate, when you are to give him a certificate, sending up copies of such certificates.

To keep a book of the names and qualities of all who ride post, and to inquire whether any are disaffected or dangerous, and if so, take and keep them in safe custody till you give me notice.

To take account of all travellers lodging in inns in your town, and if they are disaffected, or of the late King's party, or have come from beyond seas without license, do your best to keep them in custody till you give me notice ; if you cannot do this by aid of the civil officers, ask the help of the officers and forces next you.

Have an eye upon the disaffected who live near you ; observe their meetings and conversations, and give me notice.

Do not communicate these instructions to any, but use them for justifying your actions when needful. [1 sheet, printed.]

102. Petition of Job and Sam. Allibond, Abr. Van Solt, and other posts established for foreign parts, to Capt. Gen. Cromwell and the Council of State. We were admitted to our places under the Great Seal, granted to De Quester, as Postmaster General, who sold his place to Thos. Witherings, covenanting that we should retain ours, yet Witherings ousted us, and took the whole benefit ; though what he bought was only  $\frac{1}{10}$ , as a fee for his office, out of the returns of our voyages. We beg a hearing, though willing to lay down our right for the public use, believing it may raise a benefit of some thousands. [1 page.]

103. Petition of Capt. Rob. Blackleach to the Admiralty Committee, for the command of a ship in the present expedition. Left his merchandising to advance the public interest during the late troubles. After the fleet revolted in 1648, engaged many seamen and others to join Parliament; as a brother of the Trinity House, opposed the personal treaty, when the major part fell off, and others stood neuter. Engaged in the fleet against the revolters, and did good service. Then returned to his merchandising, but through the danger of the seas, has been twice taken and imprisoned at Dunkirk, and losing both ships and cargoes, is at a low ebb. [1 page.]

104. Petition of Sam. Gettings to the Navy Commissioners. Was long cook of the Peregrine, and bought the ticket of Rich. Williams of the Leopard, who was transferred to the Peregrine, but lost it with other things when the ship was surprised by the Dutch, and he and Mr. Davies, purser of the Leopard, were left wounded at Leghorn. Begs an order that Mr. Davies may make him another ticket. With note in Italian: Ei ci fa piu chiarezze che il suole, e ti ha ingannato, o ingannarti vuole. Also in Latin: Quid de quoque viro, et cui dicas scœpe caveto. Curas hominum quantum est rebus invito. Nemo mortalium omnibus horis sapit. Auriculas asini quis non habet? Aliquando bonus dormitat. Homerus sibi ipsi non semper justus. [1 page.]

105. Petition of Jas. Hales of Dover, a poor seaman, aged 60, master of the William of Dover, to the Admiralty Committee, for protection from impress for himself, a man, and a boy. Was once master of a good ship employed by merchants to Spain, but his ship and goods were taken by the Turks, and he carried to Algiers, and thence sold into slavery, in a place remote from the sea, where he remained 9 years, during which he should have provided for his old age. At last had an opportunity to escape, and got home to Dover, where his friends raised him a small hoy to coast between Dover and London, &c., which is his only means to get bread for himself and his poor old wife. [1 page.]

VOL. XLII.

107. Petition of the tenants and inhabitants of Hambledon, co. Rutland, to the Council of State. We have long been tenants to the manor belonging to the Duke of Buckingham, which was purchased 1½ years ago, from the trustees for sale of delinquents' lands by Thos. Waite, of Market Overton, member of the late Parliament, who pretended that he had a 6 years' lease, and promised us, if we would consent to the purchase, that he would make us new leases of our farms, at the former rents, and without diminution of our farms, and would not enclose our cow pastures without our consent. But if we refused, he said he would leave us neither house nor lands. We therefore allowed him to purchase at the old rent, and 72*l.* 3*s.* 9*d.* improvement, though the lordship contains 2,244 acres.

But he has since lessened our farms, taking some to himself, forced us to enclose our pastures, or he would do it, refused to renew our leases unless we would double our rents, enclosed the water springs and turned the brook, so that we cannot get water without trespassing on enclosures, and will not suffer us to reap the corn we have sowed by his consent, unless we pay 10*s.* an acre for it.

The tenants, being 80 families, will thus be undone, 30 families of labourers thrown out of work, and the parish depopulated, as he says he will pull down houses as they become his by the death of the tenants. We are unwilling to remedy ourselves by tumultuous means, and therefore beg relief from you. [1 page.]

108. Petition of Thos. Herbert to General Cromwell. My father, Rich. Herbert, 40 years ago mortgaged for 700*l.* lands in co. Montgomery worth 300*l.* a year to Wm. Benion, and put him in possession of part thereof, value 90*l.* a year. Wm. Benion dying, the mortgage could not be redeemed in the minority of Thomas his son and heir, but in 1641, my elder brother William obtained a decree in Chancery for reconveyance of the lands to himself, on payment of the mortgage and interest.

He living far from Wales, by the corruption of his solicitor, Sir Edw. Salter, a master in Chancery, reported 2,100*l.* due to Benion, whereas he was more than paid from the profits, and owed 3,000*l.* to Herbert. But the 2,100*l.* not being paid, the lands were decreed to Benion.

I am now entitled to redeem the mortgage, partly as administrator of my mother Barbara, whose jointure thereon of 60*l.* a year was detained from her 20 years ago, and who died 18 months ago, and partly as assignee of my brother, and I exhibited a bill in Chancery, but could not obtain relief on account of the decree to Benion. I appealed against the decree but in vain, and now Thos. Benion intends to enter on the rest of the mortgaged lands, worth 140*l.* a year, and I and my family will be ruined, the case having depended 37 years in the late Court of Wards and in Chancery.

I beg your help for a rehearing and reversal of the decree, as mortgagees are intended to have their principal and interest, but not the lands mortgaged. [1 sheet.]

and Salvador, to the Admiralty Committee, for an order to the Admiralty Judges to determine their suits without delay. The advocate of the commonwealth has made all possible opposition, but though publication has been made, and many parcels of goods decreed, they will not hear this suit without special order, because of your order of the 4th instant, about the lading of the Morning Star and Augustine and other ships that fought. But the St. George and Salvador never resisted, and therefore their cases might be proceeded with. [ $\frac{2}{3}$  page.]

110. Petition of Jonathan Randall to the Admiralty Committee, for the command of a small vessel, or 'a place as lieutenant or purser. Has been in the sea service 12 years, was 4 years on the coast of Ireland, and at the taking of most of the places of strength, knows the adjacent coast, and could command a vessel for their defence. Has always been faithful and orderly. [ $\frac{2}{3}$  page.]

111. Like petition for the place of purser, for which he has long waited, having been purser in several ships. [1 page.]

112. Petition of Rob. Rich, surnamed Mordecai, on behalf of the Jews in England, Scotland, and Ireland, to Parliament. Ever since 1648 it was hoped that persecution for conscience' sake would cease, and truth and mercy take its place; but contrary thereto, these 3 last years hundreds in England have been cast into dungeons and prisons, some have perished, and others endured whippings, stonings, and spoiling of goods for matters concerning their law and conscience, though not transgressing one law of this nation. I beg that the innocent in all prisons throughout these nations may be set at liberty, and that if the sufferings of Jas. Naylor be not filled up, the rest may be acted in my body. [1 page.]

113. Petition of Lieut.-Col. Edw. Salmon to the Council of State, for payment of 622*l.* 6*s.* 7*d.* disbursed by him for work done in the garrisons of Hull and Clifford's Tower, York. With reference thereon to the Ordnance Committee. [1 page.]

114. Petition of Thos. Taylor, gunner of the Sovereign, to the Admiralty Committee. Capt. Read has sent in a charge against me, that powder was wanting during part of the engagement, and that the Sovereign's guns did not reach so far as the Dutch ordnance. I had 2,000 or 3,000 cartridges fitted for my sundry guns, though the captain names a less number, and I did my best to deliver it out, but the yeoman demurred about delivering it, as the boys came down without the cases, and there was great danger in carrying it among lighted matches, and in such a hurry. I could not help my yeoman's miscarriage, for I was making shot out of a cannon of 7 inches, whereby the Dutch rear-admiral's mainmast was shot, and thus he was taken.

The reason why the Dutch guns carried further was that they used more powder, and carried their best long guns, whereas ours were only chase pieces; also that the Sovereign was to leeward, and therefore had not the same advantage of carrying shot as that which was to windward. If you are not satisfied, I beg you to appoint me a hearing, that I may be restored to my employment. [ $\frac{2}{3}$  page.]

115. Petition of Capts. Edw. Thompson of the Ruth, and Sam. Sayer of the Sapphire, to the Admiralty Committee, for protection for their men from impress, their ships being of 400 and 300 tons, and they having but 30 and 25 men, too few to navigate with, unless they can get land men; but being damaged by embargo and impress, they must run the risk rather than be undone by delays. [1 page.]

116. Petition of Hen. Turner, late corporal of the Constant Warwick, to the Admiralty Committee. I had a son in the Fortune, in last February's engagement, where he lost his captain. The successor, Capt. Ant. Archer, took the ship to Ireland, and being at Kinsale, disposed of my son and two other youths, and I know not what has become of him, which is against all honesty and good conscience. I pray that as the captain is now at Bristol, you would summon him before you to give account of the lad. Many soldiers who were in the ship can prove the captain's unworthy dealing towards my son and others. [ $\frac{3}{4}$  page.]

117. Petition of Rich. Turner, mariner, to the Navy Committee. You gave me an order to the Admiralty Court for restitution of the George, now the Swallow of Liverpool, detained by Capt. Step. Rich. They granted a warrant of arrest against Rich for the bark and for damages, on which I arrested him in the Dee, and he put in bail to appear, but has since lived in Ireland, thus depriving me of the bark, by which I have been so reduced that I cannot live by my proper calling, and have been obliged to bear arms as a private soldier in my Lord General's own regiment. I beg orders to the Admiralty Court to force Rich's bail to restore me the bark, which he has had 7 years, and satisfy my damages for the use of it, &c. [1 page.]

118. Petition of Mary, widow of Jas. Warom, to the Admiralty Committee, for such relief as given to other widows. Her husband was clerk of the check in the Dolphin, under Capt. Wm. White, got overheated in the engagement with the Hollanders, June 1653, and died, leaving her in childbed and in great distress. [ $\frac{2}{3}$  page.] Annexing,

118. I. Certificate of Wm. White, captain, Paul Bush, surgeon, and Jas. Moodie, steward, of the Dolphin, in favour of the petition. [ $\frac{2}{3}$  page.]

119. Petition of the overseers and rulers of the Watermen's Company to the Admiralty Committee. According to warrants from you and the Navy Commissioners, we diligently impressed watermen and sent them to particular ships, but many were stopped in their passage, and sent to other ships. To prevent this, you granted us warrants for their release, and one of us, Nich. Osborne, went thereon to Gravesend. He was called on board the Gainsborough, and his boat searched for seamen. On his inquiring what watermen were there belonging to other ships, he was detained 2 days and nights by order of the master, and not released without special warrant from the Navy Commissioners, by which the 40 passengers and goods in his boat were exposed to great danger. We beg that the master may be summoned to answer his contempt of the Act of Parliament and your warrants, that so we may not lose time and money in the service. 4 signatures. Noted: "Master of the Gainsborough to pay 40s." [ $\frac{3}{4}$  page.]

120. Proposals of the rulers and pressmasters of the Watermen's Company. That proclamation be made, under such penalty as Parliament thinks fit, for all watermen and their servants who have absented themselves to return to their habitation.

That the rulers be enabled by Parliament to summon when needful all their members between Gravesend and Windsor to their hall, and to disfranchise and punish those who disobey the summons.

This would much promote the service, and bring in more men, and more serviceable ones. [ $\frac{3}{4}$  page.]

121. Petition of the masters and inhabitants of Wells, Norfolk, and the adjacent parts, to the Admiralty Committee. Understanding that you had commissioned 2 convoys to take the whole fleet to Ireland, we expected the same benefit as Yarmouth ships and others, but when Capts. Thompson and Wilkinson came by our coast, they would not stay an hour, though we begged but one tide to come out, and the weather was good, so that our 11 sail are left. We beg speedy convoy, or not only our fishery adventurers will be disappointed, but many poor families, whose livelihoods depend thereon, will be undone. 42 signatures. [1 sheet.]

122. Petition of Abraham Woofe, mariner, to the Admiralty Committee, for the command of a ship. I have been at sea many years, and am now in the service, and had 4 sons in it, but one is since slain. I was most barbarously used by the Dutch, and deprived of my estate in the East Indies, value 3,000*l.*, as is more fully expressed in my late book dedicated to the Council of State, entitled "The Tyranny of the Dutch against the English." [1 page.]

123. Like petition. Has behaved faithfully in his trust, and being out of employment, begs a lieutenant's place on one of the frigates now building. [ $\frac{1}{2}$  page.]

124. Petition of Joseph Markendell and 27 other parishioners of Wolsingham to Sir Hen. Vane, and the other Commissioners of Parliament, to appoint Edw. Agas, who has a living at Gainford, to the living of Wolsingham, they being now without a minister, and not to appoint Geo. Shaw of Pitlington, who has formerly made suit for it, as the whole parish "doth not at all affect him." [1 page.]

VOL. XLII.

125. Petition of Rich. Bulstrode, prisoner at Bruges, to the King, to pardon past errors, and restore him to his grace and favour, by ordering the payment of the fees and charges of his imprisonment. Is deeply sensible that for three years past he has lain under His Majesty's high displeasure, for his breach of trust in the place he conferred upon him, and as a just punishment for his great fault, has endured two years and several months' imprisonment, to the total ruin of himself and family, and the loss of one of his arms, and is likely to utterly perish in prison without His Majesty's favour. [1 page.]

126. Petition of Edw. Cooksey, prisoner in Bruges, to the King, for release, having been imprisoned 7 weeks without allowance, except 5s. Flemish from Capt. Lenthall. Is sorry to have been drawn by Watson to so base an action, but would have told Capt. Lenthall of it before execution. Served the late King 20 years, chiefly at his own charge. [1 page.]

127. Petition of Catherine Vanlone, widow, to the King, for relief. Has 68 guilders 8 stivers due to her for the lodging at her house in Bruges of Col. Rich. Palmer, one of his Majesty's servants, since 20 June last, which he promises to pay when he receives his wages from His Majesty. Is a very poor widow, and likely to starve without satisfaction. [ $\frac{2}{3}$  page.]

128. Petition of Capt. Luke Whittington to the King, for an appointment as agent, collector, and factor to the men-of-war which he has already, or shall hereafter set out. There are several merchants willing to set out some men-of-war for His Majesty's service, provided petitioner has the management of the business, according to his commission, for all places under the power of the King of Denmark. Noted [by Sir E. Nicholas] that His Majesty leaves all business of this nature to the Duke of York, Lord High Admiral. [ $1\frac{1}{2}$  pages.]

129. [Instructions given to an agent of Charles II. sent to England.] You are to acquaint the gentlemen you deal with that the King is levying forces in Flanders, and that the King of Spain will recruit them with an army, and provide ships to land them in England, with spare arms, &c.

That this King has made so firm a league with His Majesty that he cannot without perfidy desert him, or agree with Cromwell, and has promised to perish rather than desert him.

His Majesty expects his loving subjects' best endeavours to re-establish him, and free themselves, by providing horse and men to be ready to obey his orders when he lands. Being tender of their hazard, he does not require the personal presence of men of estate on his landing, if they send trusty and well mounted soldiers. As some are sick or old, and cannot engage, and some rich men dare not have many horses in their stables, faithful officers and soldiers should be provided to find keep horses in friends' stables, but extreme caution is required. 130. [—, storekeeper at Chatham, to the Navy Commissioners.] As Mr. Ellis now makes sails here, it would be well to have the canvas sent direct from London; the sending it from Deptford causes damage, delay, double measuring, and often imperfect supplies. Also it should be sent without the listing taken off. It would be well if we had a magazine of provisions here, so as not to depend upon Deptford. We have 300 old compasses in store, which, with repair, might be serviceable. [ $1\frac{1}{2}$  pages.]

131. — to Major-Gen. Desborow. As you may have lost the paper that was given you from the Lord General by Col. Fitch, I send you another; you were to request the Commissioners of Customs to give you particulars what customs were paid on tin and lead in each year, from 1648 to 1652. Also, the like for coals exported and imported for home sale, and for manufactures, upon which there is a possibility of improving 10,000*l.* a year, which the commonwealth is unjustly deprived of. 132. Capt. Wm. Kendall to [Admiralty Committee]. I came from Plymouth with 2 men-of-war, the Gift and the Duchess, and other ships laden with sugar from Barbadoes and Virginia. A French vessel told me the Flemish fleet were scattered 5 and 10 in a company; they are westward of the Isle of Wight, as a Hambugher from Bordeaux reports. Our ships left on Tuesday, and I shall follow when I have spoken with the Commissioner. [ $\frac{2}{3}$  page.]

133.—Boiteurs to [General Cromwell]. Your desire for the good of the church leads us to think that you will take particular care of those of this island committed to your care. According to the discipline of the church, we of the consistory of the town have chosen some elders and deacons in place of those who are dead. The congregation of 1,200 approved our choice by silence, but after the 2nd publication a writing was presented signed by 5 or 6, by which those elected are neither accused of ignorance nor scandal. The form of the election was as usual, and was made before we heard of any directions of Parliament, which do not indeed extend to deacons. We have made a solemn promise to maintain our discipline, and Parliament wishes the churches of this island [Jersey?] to be governed according to their ancient customs, which are those of the church of France. We have received no orders to the contrary, and the direction sent, not being addressed to the pastors, has not been observed. If there is to be any change in elections, let it be in those to be made henceforth, not in those already made, as this would cause scandal and quarrels. [1 page. French.]

134. Capt. Thos. Marryott to the Admiralty Committee. I beg leave to defend myself before you. You know how Capt. Rich. Badiley was accused, so that it was said he would be hanged, but when he came to plead his own cause, he came off with honour, and his adversaries with shame. My adversary was with me in Scotland, and I got ill-will by trying to remove him into another ship.

I confess that I have so offended God that he might say of me as of Ephraim, "He is joined to his idols; let him alone," but Christ preached forgiveness of enemies, and so should we forgive one another, therefore pray forgive me anything that may be objected against me, and restore me to my command. [1 sheet.]

[Canterbury.]

135. Thos. Monins to Capt. John Browne, at Mrs. Dawson's, a printer, opposite Half Moon tavern, Aldersgate Street, London. The servants of [Thos.] Vincent, the saltpetre man, digging amongst the stables next the Green Court in the cathedral, wanted water, and would not take it from pumps near, but compelled Mr. Doe to give them the key of the main cistern; they broke a hole in it, drew off the water from some families, and would have done from more, but I was told, and compelled them to return the key unless they could show their commission. They wished to produce it before a justice of peace, and whilst on the way, Mr. Moorland told the master workman that he had bought the water and watercourses from the State, and ought to enjoy them. The fellow, being a malignant, said "How long will ye keep them?"

I went to Mayor Broadnax, who read Vincent's commission authorising all justices to assist them in obtaining carriages, vessels, &c. for their work, on payment of due rates. The commission referred to the Act, but no one had the Act. Thereupon we offered him the use of nearer pumps with plenty of water, saying we did not think the State intended the inconvenience of so many families, but nothing would serve them save the main cistern, and next day they again demanded the key. We asked to speak to Mr. Vincent, but were told he was gone up to London, probably to complain against us; he will hurt us if he can, because he could not have his will of us the last Kentish rising, when he was a captain. We beg to be informed of our duty, that we may not get into trouble. [2 pages.]

136. Capt. Thos. Morris to [the Admiralty Committee]. Having the charge of the Gristmill, a prize ship of Amsterdam, laden with brandy, wine, and sugar, I brought it to Aldborough, when, on order from Capt. Lane, I delivered it to Roger Yeaksley of the Triumph, and joined Capt. Lawson on the coast of Holland; but on my return, 12 Sept., I found that Yeaksley had sold to Cromer, his neighbour in Aldborough, a cable, sail, &c. belonging to the ship, and Cromer would not say what he paid for them. [1 page.]

137. Mayor of Newcastle to — Col. Lilburne writes that there are 12 Holland men-of-war on the northern coast. Considerable convoys are wanted for 250 colliers here, until the peace be absolute. There are 60 capers out of Zealand. [Extract, scrap.]

138. Col. Nath. Rich to Gen. Desborow. The bearer has a son lately come from Spain, who was pressed in the Downs before he could reach London. Pray allow him to come and give his father an account of his goods in the captain's hands, and then he will return to his ship, which lies at Dover. Endorsed with note to the captain of Blake to suffer him to come up. [1 page.]

VOL. XLII.

139. Major Sedgwick to Dr. Walker. It is clear from the writings that the John Baptiste was a Dutch ship, the men Hollanders and French, and the master a Hollander. The goods are all French laden by a Dutchman. When the master and company were brought aboard the Black Raven, and a council of war of all the commanders of English ships present held, they declared the ship of Dantzic, and produced writings accordingly, but afterwards denied it. Then the master said it belonged to merchants of London, but could not prove it, and there was nothing English on board. Details of his false swearing, &c. He then owned that all the papers on board were fictitious, and made to deceive the English. [ $3\frac{3}{4}$  pages.]

140. William Starkie to his brother Garrat Starkie. The night we put to sea, a great flyboat ran into us, and took away our mizen mast, and tore the mainsail; the master, being upon the poop, and thinking we had been run down, endeavoured to get on board the flyboat, but whether he succeeded we cannot tell. The wind being S.W. by S., we stood for the northward, and the next morning we put into Scarborough, for security of both ship and goods. Inform the owners, and desire them to send some one to take charge of the ship and goods, for there are none here that will meddle with them. [1 page.]

141. Capt. John Stevens to the Navy Commissioners, Tower Hill. I am sorry you refused my bill of exchange from Dover for an old anchor taken in lieu of one broken in the Downs. My owner would disburse nothing towards fitting the ship, so I started 600*l.* in debt, was taken up for 3 months, and now am wanted to keep the Channel in the winter, which requires fresh rigging. Having served 4 months, I beg bills for the 3 months, viz., 360*l.* I have spent 100*l.* here on sails and cordage, and not had a penny from the owners. We have discharged some men sick, some run away, and many are unserviceable. I have sent up our mate to get 30 or 40 more, and beg your warrant. [1 page, damaged.]

142. Dr. Walter Walker to the Admiralty Committee. I send as ordered the form of an Act to enable the Generals at sea to try those persons by a council of war. I have by proviso reserved to the Court of Admiralty the jurisdiction which it now has, but shall no way abridge the power given to the Generals at sea. In any special case, such as never came to their cognizance, it is an advantage that there be an ancient power to try it. [ $\frac{1}{2}$  page.]

143. Capt. Fras. Willoughby to the Navy Commissioners, Tower Hill. Your furnaces were so long in coming that I was obliged to buy them here, for fear of detaining the ships. The Charity is gone, and the other two only wait weather. Iron furnaces are much wanted for the pitch boat. The pitch heater dares not heat stuff for careening the Sovereign with these. I have not written lately for surgeons for the Great Charity and Black Raven, but you should not blame me if, when I ask for things and they are not sent, I provide them here. I have no objection against Harris the sail-maker. I want a copy of Taylor's contract. [1 page.]

VOL. XLII.

144. Jerrard Winstanley and John Palmer, on behalf of their fellow commoners, to the Council of State. Parson Platt and others have informed you that we and others, called diggers, are riotous, will not be ruled by the justices, have seized a house and put 4 guns into it, and are cavaliers, and wait an opportunity to bring in the Prince, on which you sent soldiers to beat us. These reports are untrue; we are peaceable men, do not resist our enemies, but pray God to quiet their hearts, and desire to conquer them by love.

We plough and dig, that the impoverished poor may get a comfortable livelihood, and think we have a right to do it, by virtue of the conquest over the late King, who had William the Conqueror's title to the land; the Norman yoke being thrown off, the land should return to the commoners, but if the Norman power is still upheld, we have lost by sticking to the Parliament.

1. We joined them relying on their promises of freedom of land; they said "Give us your taxes, free quarter, excise, and adventure your lives with us; cast out the oppressor Charles, and we will make you a free people." Therefore we claim freedom to enjoy the common lands, bought by our money and blood.

2. We claim it by equality in the contest. Parliament and army said they acted for the whole nation; you gentry have your enclosures free, and we claim a freedom in the common land.

3. England cannot be free unless the commoners have use of the land, else are we worse than in the King's days, if the Norman power in lords of manors rules over us.

There is waste land enough and to spare. We only desire leave to work, and enjoy the fruits of our labour. If this is denied, we must raise collections for the poor out of your estates; but many are proud and desperate, and will rob and steal rather than take charity, and many are ashamed to beg; but if the land were granted, there would not be a beggar or idle person.

England could then support itself, and it is a stain to religion for land to lie waste and yet many to starve.

If you grant the land, we shall rejoice in you and the army protecting our work and serve you at will. [1 sheet.]

145. Draft of an Act against customary oaths. That no person be compelled to do homage, or take an oath to do fealty, or any oath on matriculation in the Universities, or on taking any degree, or on entrance into the freedom of any corporation, society, or company.

Proviso.—Persons holding offices to take oath concerning their execution. Those who hold lands by tenure of homage to make acknowledgment of holding the lands from the owner. Also,

Draft of an Act for more speedy recovery of rents.

On a grant of rent on reversion, with a rent incident thereto, the grantee may, after due notice given by the grantor to the tenant, bring an action for rent, with the same advantages as if the tenant had attorned to such grant at the time of the notice. Actions of debt to be maintainable for rent received on a lease for life, or for rent-seck or rent-service against the tenants that should have paid it.

A rent-charge or rent-seck not to be extinguished or suspended by purchase of part of the land charged therewith, but to be apportioned as in case of a rent-service. Also,

Draft of an Act for better regulation of pleaders and their fees.

No member of Parliament shall plead in any court of justice except the counsel for the commonwealth. No one shall receive in any one cause wherein he is retained counsel more than 5*l*. nor any other thing valuable. Yet he shall give his advice and assistance till the case be ended. Also,

Draft of an Act for preventing fraudulent contracts and conveyances.

All debts by bond, mortgage, &c. incurred before settlement of any estate on wife or children or others, or in trust for them, to be satisfied by sale of the lands so settled.

Any estates in which the purchaser joins his wife or children with him, or purchases them in their name, are to be liable to his debts, as if the whole estate had been in him, or in case of his death, had descended to his heir.

All bonds or securities to persons indebted, and their wives and children, to be liable for the satisfaction of debt. Also,

Draft of an Act against the sale of offices.

No office for life or during good behaviour to be granted to an infant, or to anyone unable to execute it, or granted in reversion, or bought or sold. Any offender to forfeit double the sum promised, given, or received therefor. Any person coming in to any office contrary to this Act to be disabled from holding it. All persons selling or contracting for office to be disabled from bearing any office of profit. Any persons suspected thereof to be examined on oath, and a moiety of the forfeitures paid to the informer. [2 $\frac{3}{4}$  pages. *With marginal note (by Jos. 149. Statement on behalf of the Muscovy Company:—The English nation has been at great expense of money and men to find out the North-east passage, and though they have missed it, they have discovered several ports and havens unknown before, as the Bar of St. Nicholas and the road and river of Archangel, then belonging to the Great Duke of Muscovy, and the only seaport of his dominions. We traded there a few years till the Duke invited us to Moscow, and on account of the great benefits redounding by English merchants to Russia, he granted us large privileges, and sent an Ambassador to England therefor. The trade has been unquestioned 100 years, in spite of revolutions of Emperors, till in 1646 Alexea Michaelowitch, the present Emperor, took away our privileges, imposed large customs on us, and seized goods of great value by fraud. On his father's death in 1645 he had promised us large privilege, and sent an Ambassador, whose entertainment cost us 1,500*l*. We sent out more goods than usual, but he charged them double the customs of other nations, so that we had to forbear trading to a loss of 50,000*l*.

The next year at Whitsuntide, when it was too late to send advice to England, he told the merchants there that no English goods should be admitted, calling us traitors and the servants of traitors, and unfit to live in any Christian state. The merchants asked leave to settle accounts and get in their debts, which he allowed, but they were not to bring any goods to Moscow. He ordered us to bring in a list of our houses and debts, value 30,000*l*., which we did, and appointed an officer to attend to them, but we got no satisfaction, and were ordered to depart his dominions. This, we think, was caused by Culpeper, Ambassador of the pretended King of Scots, then residing there, the Emperor having sent or lent large sums to the said King. He also compelled us to pay in full all our debts to his subjects, though not receiving our own. [1¾ pages.]

turf, planting timber, improving mines, regulating manufactures, husbanding ship materials, breeding mariners, attending to the fisheries, taking care of the balance of exports and imports, increase of our plantations, &c. ; with suggestion that for the better effecting thereof, there should be a Committee of 12 persons to carry the same into effect. [Parchment, 1 sheet.]

152. Note that letters of marque having been granted by order of Parliament to Mary Page, widow, to seize on Dutch, French, or other ships, she and company set forth the Mary, which seized upon a ship called the Sun. At the time of the seizure, there was no Admiralty Court, and the master of the Sun, who pretended to be of Emden, petitioned the then Council of State for release ; but upon Page showing the writings taken on board the Sun, the Committee for Irish and Scotch Affairs, to whom it was referred, would not release it. Judges being appointed for the Admiralty Court, Mary Page began her legal course for condemning the ship and goods, and the judges condemned her as lawful prize. From this the claimers of the Sun appealed to the delegates, and the cause being concluded, and ready for judgment, the Lords Commissioners have appointed Major-Gen. Thomas Kelsey, Col. Jno. Clarke, and Col. Edw. Salmon, with others of the common law, and some doctors of the civil law, to be judges in the cause. The reprizers pray that their Honours will spend a few hours some afternoon at Serjeants' Inn next term, to hear the cause and give a definite judgment. [ $\frac{3}{4}$  page.]

154. Statement by Rich. Hutchinson, Navy Treasurer, of his first 3 years' action.

Sums received and issued by me in 1651, 460,000*l.* ; in 1652, 600,000*l.* ; in 1653, 140,000*l.* ; total, 2,460,000*l.* The allowances given to former treasurers, being 220*l.* fee by patent and a poundage of 3*d.*, would have amounted in the 3 years to 31,410*l.* One third part of this was proposed, which would have been 10,470*l.*, but my receipts have only been 4,000*l.* Also in the last 2 years I have had to make all payments relating to the Tower, which were formerly paid by Major-Gen. Harrison, who would have received 5,000*l.* therefor, but I have received nothing. [ $\frac{3}{4}$  page.]

155. Proposals of the Navy Victuallers:—

1. The captains to ascertain what provisions their ships can carry.
2. The stewards to take charge of the provisions.
3. The seamen not to meddle with provisions in the hoys.
4. The stewards to give clear receipts for their provisions taken from the hoys.
5. The hoymen to be punished if they neglect their voyages when laden.
6. The victuallers to be allowed to remove the great storehouse from Rochester to London.

VOL. XLII.

7. Allowance to be made for waste of provisions laden on victualling ships, and the victuallers to have liberty to put a man on board each ship to lift them forth. With note that this last clause is to be referred to the Navy Commissioners. [ $\frac{2}{3}$  page.]

156. Notes to be considered on the victuallers' business. To know what the Navy Commissioners have done in disposing of the cast ships, timber, &c. at Woolwich, Deptford, and Chatham, and about the dock at Woolwich. To consider whether the Falmouth, Bear, and Tulip should be refitted or discharged. To consider certificates about the Bear, Falmouth, and Stork. [ $\frac{1}{2}$  page.]

157. Answers of Capt. Sam. Windis, agent at Chester and Liverpool to the Navy Victuallers, to the complaints of the officers and seamen of the Satisfaction, addressed to the Admiralty Commissioners, Navy Commissioners, and Navy Victuallers. Vindication of the quantity and quality of pork, beef, beer, &c. supplied. With names of 23 persons who will prove his assertions. [4 pages.]

158. Note that Jas. Ayscough, for his fidelity and ability, was appointed master of the Cignet by General Blake. Upon an information made to the Mayor and aldermen of Bristol, he was committed to prison there, where he yet remains. This information was taken behind his back, and as he has never had a copy, nor seen or known his accusers, he cannot have a fair trial. One of the two informers has run away, and the other has been fetched away from the ship as a felon. The captain of the ship acknowledged, before the Mayor and aldermen, that the master never neglected his duty, and he has always been in actual service for Parliament, and well affected and faithful. The knowledge of this caused the Mayor and aldermen to write the Admiralty Committee for his enlargement, but the ship having gone to sea before the arrival of General Monk's order, it could not be performed.

It is believed that because the master kept a journal of the captain and other officers' actions, that he might the better give the General a true account, the captain being very tardy in discharge of his duty, and knowing the master could inform against him if required, secretly caused these complaints to be made against the master, and thus clapped him up, and then placed his own brother in the master's charge, whose connivance will not disturb his negligence. Noted in shorthand: "To offer him to take his bond, and that he appear here." [1 page.]

159. Certificate by Wm. Ryley, Norroy king-at-arms, that Rob. Blackborne, secretary to the Admiralty Commissioners and to the Commissioners of Customs in the port of London, son of — Blackborne, co. York, son of — Blackborne, co. Lancaster, is entitled to arms, but granting him a crest because, by neglect of his ancestors, there is no crest with his coat of arms. [Latin and English.  $1\frac{3}{4}$  pages.]

160. Answer of John Beauchamp, merchant, one of the defendants, to the bill of complaint of John Crane, complainant. Knows nothing of King James being seized in fee of certain lands, manors, therein mentioned, nor of any conveyance by patent of lands to persons named for the use of the late King Charles, nor of the contract in March 1633 between Sir Fras. Crane and Prince Charles of any such lands, &c., nor of the payment of money to the Prince for such lands by Sir Fras. Crane, nor of any rent reserved upon such contract to the Prince.

Knows nothing of the indenture dated 20 June 1634, between Thomas Viscount Savage, Francis Lord Cottington, Sir Fras. Crane, Sir Thos. Trevor, Sir Walter Pye, and Sir Jno. Bankes of the one part, and Sir Edw. Baesh and Jno. Beauchamp of the other part, nor of the grant said to be made by the late King on 20 Nov. 1634, of any of the lands or tenements in the bill mentioned to Sir Fras. Crane and Rich. Crane, his brother, nor that the names of Sir Edw. Baesh and Jno. Beauchamp were made use of in trust only for Sir Fras. Crane in the pretended deed; neither does he know that Sir Fras. Crane, by virtue thereof, entered into the said lands and tenements, and died seized thereof without issue, nor that Rich. Crane, his brother, heir and executor, entered into the same.

Also knows nothing of the agreement or composition of Aug. 1638, by Jno. Lightfoot, commissioner, for Rich. Crane, Sir Thomas Middleton and others, on behalf of themselves and the tenants and freeholders of the said lands and tenements, or that Rich. Crane made a will, devised several legacies, and appointed complainant, Jno. Hawtry, and Jno. Beauchamp his executors.

Believes that if any such will was made, it was not produced, but kept in secret for divers years after the death of Rich. Crane, but does not know whether Jno. Hawtry renounced probate thereof, nor whether complainant has proved the same and paid the legacies. Denies all combination, or that he was ever required to execute any trust as alleged. If John Beauchamp, his father, did in his lifetime assign or convey the pretended lease, believes such assignment was made by him with the aid of his counsel, and not without a valuable consideration. Believes that Richard Arundel is dead, and that he made a will and made Fras. Arundel, his son and heir, sole executor, and he appointed Traherne Scawen and this defendant executors during his son's minority, but denies that he, this defendant, has ever acted therein. 161. Reasons to move the Council of State to grant their order to pay 1,627l. 14s. 9½d. arrears due to Col. John White, clerk of the ordnance, and his clerks. That the labourers in the office have been paid; that his salary is no more than in times of peace, though the work is 5 times more; that he has forborne fees, though his predecessors made them worth 150l. a year; that he has waited long for his money, and disbursed much for paper and books for the office; that the Navy Commissioners, whose work is only about the fleets, are paid quarterly, whereas the Ordnance Office supplies not only fleets but garrisons, castles, trains of artillery, &c. His allowances are 315l. 7s. a year for himself, and 60l. and 50l. for two clerks. [1½ pages.]

Yarmouth
Roads.

1. Capt. Ch. Myngs to the Admiralty Committee. I attended Ambassador Whitelock, and on 15 Nov. we arrived at Gottenburg, whence he set forward on the 23rd to the Court. We were detained there by contrary winds. My crew was sickly, 90 ill and 5 died. We met 3 Holland men-of-war, with 8 or 9 merchantmen, and fired some guns upon them, but our sickly and weak condition compelled us to leave them. We came up with the Phoenix, which had left port a day before us and had been in fight with a Holland man-of-war, and had 4 killed and 11 wounded, besides the loss of her bowsprit. I shall sail to Portsmouth to revictual. [1 page.]

[Jan. 3.]

2. Petition of Peter Dacton, mariner of Barnstaple, to his Highness's Council. The George Bonadventure, laden with salt for me, was taken by the Nonsuch 28 Nov. last, and carried into Peran, Cornwall. My suit to the Protector for its restoration on payment of salvage was referred to you [see 31 Dec. 1653], and by you to the Admiralty Judges. As an Admiralty judgment would cost 10*l.* more than the salvage, I beg an order to the Prize Goods' Commissioners to act according to justice and the Act of Parliament thereon. [1 page.]

5. Sir Chas. Wolsley, Sir A. A. Cooper, Mr. Rous, Major-Gen. Lambert, and Col. Montague to be a Committee to regulate the justices of the peace through the nation, and present the names to Council. They are to send for the books of the commissioners of the peace, and the lists of those appointed by the Committee of Parliament, and the papers concerning the same, for their better information.

6. The Commissioners for the Great Seal to have notice not to alter or put in any commissioner of the peace without special order. Approved by the Protector, 10 Jan.*

7. Sir Wm. Constable, sheriff of Yorkshire, to have liberty to live in York during this year of his shrievalty, without being obliged to live in the county, he discharging the duties of his place. Approved 10 Jan.

9. Sir A. A. Cooper and Col. Sydenham to consider the case of Mr. Allen of Weymouth, and report what they think fit for his relief.

10. The petition of William Kiffin, James Barkin, Josias Everson, and Robt. Osler to the Protector, referred by his Highness to Council, read.

16, 17. That of Richard Young and others, in behalf of themselves and other creditors of Peter Smart, referred to Mr. Rous, Major-Gen. Skippon, and Col. Jones, to consider what may be done for their relief, and report.

21. Order that the Paragon be substituted for the Tiger to transport the Dutch deputies to Holland, the Tiger being supposed by the Admiralty Committee to have gone out to sea.

22. An Ordinance constituting a Committee for the Revenue, and for repealing the powers given to the former Committee, read the first and second times, and committed to Col. Jones, Sir A. A. Cooper, Major-Gen. Desborow, Col. Montague, and Mr. Strickland. Secretary Thurloe to assist the Committee therein. Approved 10 Jan.

23. The business of captives referred to the Committee for the preservation of Customs, with the same powers as the Navy Committee had formerly to issue moneys for the purpose, and report their proceedings from time to time to his Highness and Council. Approved 10 Jan.

24. Gualter Frost to pay Mr. Pell, the mathematical lecturer, his salary of 200*l.* a year as settled by the late Council of State, due and in arrear to 25 Dec. last. Approved 10 Jan.

25. The letter from the Generals of the fleet, dated Dec. 30th last, to be considered next Thursday.

26. Mr. Scobell to prepare an Ordinance for a Committee to regulate the Ordinance office, with the powers established by the late Parliament.

27. Edw. Birkhead, Serjeant-at-arms, to detain in custody all prisoners committed to him by the late Parliament, and not release them without special order from Council, and report from time to time of the business; all warrants from any Commissioners of Parliament or of the Lord Protector and Council, for apprehending delinquents, &c. to be directed to him, and executed by himself or his deputy, as authorised by order of Parliament, Oct. 12, 1653. Approved 10 Jan. [I. 75, pp. 30-34.]

3. Gens. Geo. Monk and Wm. Penn to the Admiralty Committee. We are sailing though the wind is but little E. of N. We have several times desired provision to be made for sick and wounded men sent to Portsmouth, Gosport, and the Isle of Wight, and you say you have ordered it, but Mr. Willoughby cannot pay the quarters of those already sent. Pray take speedy course, or the poor men will suffer. Let our commissions be sent.

P.S.—We have fallen down to Ellen's Point, where are several other ships. [1 page.]

- Jan. 3. 5. Capt. Hen. Hatsell to Robt. Blackborne. I received yours in Plymouth. relation to Dutch affairs and was moved at the freedom given to their Ambassadors in our very bowels, but the Lord will order all.
- The Nightingale has come in from Ireland, and at the Start, had a scuffle with a Dutch man-of-war for 4 or 5 hours, when they parted.
The Portland is nearly ready, and shall bring other ships and the 3 prizes for London. The Governor of Pendennis writes that the Elias, with the money for Scilly, has been driven back by the storm, but sailed again. Coals are 22s. the quarter here,  $15\frac{1}{2}$  bushels of our measure make a London chaldron, which is 42s. 6d. Your brother is well. [1 page.]
- Jan. 3. 6. Capt. Nich. Foster to the [Admiralty Committee]. I sailed
The Phoenix, from the Hope on 6 Nov. with Lord Whitelock, the Ambassador Ousley Bay. to Sweden, on board, as also his retinue and goods, in company with the Elizabeth and other ships appointed to attend him, and landed him at Gottenburg on the 15th, where he was honourably received by the Governor and the magistrates, and on the 30th he began his journey towards Stockholm.
- We started on 3 Dec., but were forced back ; I sailed again on the 20th, as the men were sick, provisions spending, and the frosts approaching. We had much wind and snow, but got on to the Juttish coast, when on the 21st we saw a fleet, which proved to be Hollanders from the Sound, 72 sail ; we engaged with them, but were forced to leave them after a hot fight, wherein I had 4 killed and 11 wounded, and my bowsprit and masts shot away. Details of the engagement ; 400 horse and foot stood on the shore in view all day.
- On the 22nd we bore for England, and on the 25th came up with the other ships from Gottenburg. If the Elizabeth had come out with us, we had destroyed that whole fleet. It is reported at Gottenburg that the King of Denmark is much troubled that he affronted our nation by staying our ships, and blames evil counsel for it ; De Witt endeavoured to comfort him with a cordial of their great victories over us at sea, and gave him a list of 22 sail sunk and 8 taken, besides putting the rest to flight, but his own subjects are now able to inform him that a small frigate fought and routed their fleet, and next day (the Lord helping us) made her way through 3 of their ships coming to avenge the quarrel, the least of which exceeded the Phoenix. Lord Whitelock was said to arrive on 24 Dec. at Upsal, 4 Swedish miles from Stockholm, where he is to have his audience. I have reported to Major Bourne the condition and wants of my ship, for if I went to Portsmouth, as ordered, and found no masts, time would be lost. [ $3\frac{1}{2}$  pages.]

they put waiters on board the prizes of privateers, to prevent the embezzlement of goods, and not to suffer any to be landed without account of the tenths to the State, yet in absence of the waiters, they land and dispose of the goods, and threaten that they will not give an account.

There are now 13 prizes at Dover, and if this be suffered, the State will be much wronged. Capt. Isaac Phillips contends that as the prizes he took were under letters of reprisal and not of marque, and are for restitution for wrongs done to him, the 10ths are not payable thereout; we desire the opinion of the Admiralty Judges thereon, and if the tenths be not due on these letters of reprisal, they should be taken in, and others granted liable to the tenth. 9. John Fowler to Rob. Blackborne. Our Generals have added to my toil by an order to attend the court-martials that are called on board other ships, as they have given power to the commanders of squadrons, flag commanders of divisions, and particular captains to call such courts. This will be a great increase of trouble, as I am too infirm to trust to my natural legs, but use 4 legs in our motionary wooden houses.

However, without any motion of mine, they have restored me the 16*d.* a day taken from me, with the 8*s.* a day ordered 2 Feb. last, as promised me by the late Gen. Deane, in presence of Gen. Monk, Vice-Admiral Penn and others, when I entered on my employment, but he lessened it in favour of De Bancks, appointed my assistant. De Bancks however did me little good, and has now deserted, so I hope no further trouble will arise.

The commission was dated 4 Oct., and I have acted ever since. I wish the 8*s.* a day might be issued to 31 Dec. and then begin a new year's account, so as to save my wife's trouble of coming to town and attendance. I wish you all prosperity this new year. [1 page.]

10. Jas. Robinson to Hen. Darly, Gray's Inn Lane. The people here have imposed a new duty upon English cloths, and make those pay which only pass through, contrary to the rights of free commerce. The Hollander has prohibited the transportation of hemp, pitch, tar, and cable yarn, solely to keep you from them, and render England incapable of navigation. If letters of safe conduct there and back are sent me, I will come over and declare to you or the Parliament a way of frustrating these designs, which I know by virtue of my place and calling here. Jan. 5.

12. Petition of the trustees and contractors for sale of the late King, Queen, and Prince's goods, to the Protector. We have inventoried, appraised, and sold the goods, as authorised by 2 Acts of Parliament. We have had many obstructions by restraints put on our proceedings by the Council of State, weighty affairs not permitting them to choose the 20,000*l.* worth of the goods to be reserved for the State.

Three years ago the late Parliament passed a list of the debts of several hundred creditors and servants of the late King, and ordered us to pay them, but we could not do it on account of the restraint on the sale of the goods.

The poverty of some and malignancy of others of these creditors have caused them to bring many scandalous complaints against us, as though we were unfit for our trust, but nothing has been proved against us.

We beg your orders about the 20,000*l.* worth of goods, that we may sell the rest, pay the debts, and get free from these clamours and complaints. 8 signatures. [ $\frac{2}{3}$  page.]

16. Capt. Hen. Hatsell to Rob. Blackborne. By yours of the third, I find the Dutch and we are parted. Peace is desirable, had the Lord given it us, but we must go to Him for counsel and courage to do our duty, though we may be laid in the dust. I was burdened in spirit to think of the freedom those enemies had amongst us, where they had all advantages to carry on their work, we studying their advantage rather than our own, so that some said we feared them, but I hope time will show the contrary.

Particulars of ships. If I could be more useful to you there than here, I will come up after settling affairs here. Capt. Salmon's widow has been often with me about the money given her children by Parliament. Send me a copy of the order, that I may take proper security. [2 pages.]

3. Order, on petition of Richard Fanquant to his Highness, for release of the ship Hope, that the Admiralty Committee consider whether it be fit to release the vessel, or to refer it to the ordinary proceedings of the Admiralty Court.

4. Order, on petition of Nathaniel Goodlad and the rest of the creditors of Sir Allen Apsley, deceased, that the order of the late Council of State of Dec. 9th, 1653, touching the trustees and creditors of Sir A. Apsley, be confirmed, and the several parts thereof obeyed by the persons concerned.

5. 17. Order that the report from the Admiralty Committee concerning 3 ships designed for the guard of Scotland, and the employment of a fourth there, being a prize ship taken by Cpts. Smith and Sherwyn, be approved, and that the Admiralty Committee appoint the said ships, viz.: the Duchess, Primrose, and Sun, as also the prize ship, to guard the coast. Approved 10 Jan.

6. Order, on a report from the Admiralty Committee, brought in by Gen. Desborow, that there be allowed to Thos. Smith, Robt. Thompson, Peter Pett, Neh. Bourne, Edw. Hopkins, and Fras. Willoughby, Navy Commissioners, over and above their 250*l.* salary, 150*l.* each for their extraordinary care last year for despatching the affairs of the fleet. Approved 10 Jan. Annexing,

Jan. 9.
Leghorn.

19. Charles Longland to the Admiralty Committee. Five Dutch men-of-war, and 4 English prizes laden with dry fish from Newfoundland, have come in here; they have 6 others laden with spices, lead, &c., in Provence, with 2 men-of-war, and the Dutch agent here has ordered them to be brought hither to be sold. There is not an Englishman on board; some ran away in their own boats, and the rest were put on shore by the Dutch in Spain. Two Dutch men-of-war foundered in the Gulf of Lyons by foul weather.

There are 6 English ships going from here to Zante, to lade currants for England. I cannot see how they can escape the Dutch, unless you send out a squadron; the Dutch and French have a dozen ships now in Turkey, which may return to this place or Marseilles, and 4 others plying between Spartavento and Malta, and as our ships must pass that way, I do not see how they can escape. If you send any out, it must be managed quietly; half-a-dozen of these prizes would be of good consideration to the State, and a great weakening of the enemy, for they bring some 200 bales of silk and grograin yarn, and some 400 bales per ship, besides other goods, all which would find present sale for ready money. Levant Company to Spencer Britton, consul at Smyrna. We observe in yours of 15 July, whom you have appointed treasurer, on our omission to give order. The distractions in our trade, and our hopes of better times, have delayed our resolutions, and especially our sending of a minister. Your difficulties from the deadness of trade will be partly removed by the arrival of these ships laden with cloth, &c. Much has escaped without payment of our duty, therefore fail not to receive  $2\frac{1}{4}$  dollars at least in lieu of our 9s. per cloth, which we cannot so well enforce in respect of changes here.

Our factors there abuse us in passing great bales of silk as coals; see this amended, and charge what is short of our due consulage, according to our reckoning of silk here, 186 great pounds to a bale.

The trustees of the late Roger Vivian and others claim 2,000 dollars, said to be in the Cancellaria, part of a bill of exchange due to him. Tell us the true state of the business. [Levant Papers, Vol. IV., p. 219.]

Levant Company to Mr. Riley, consul at Aleppo. We are sorry to hear by yours of 31 March, 25 May, and 22 Sept., that you have still to complain of the Basha's unjust actions, in spite of the promises of the late Vizier. Thanks for your care in taking the place of treasurer, and trying to lessen our charges in this low ebb of trade. You will receive some supply by the ships now bound for Scanderoon. See that  $2\frac{1}{4}$  dollars per cloth be paid on all goods that have not paid here.

We send this by Capt. Geo. Smith, elected marine factor, with security for discharge of his duty, and beg you to settle him in the place.

We are sorry you are in such debt, and can only clear it by a single or double consulage on all exports thence, which we desire you to take, and give us an account thereof, as is done at Smyrna.

We beg you to assist the East India Company, who are obliged to bring their silk overland from Persia by way of Aleppo. [Levant Papers, Vol. IV., p. 220.]

Commend me to Mr. Edwards, and tell him all friends at Amsterdam are well. Capt. Whittington denies he ever threatened to arrest me or had any such thought; but for his curtesious (sic) usage of George Gray, I intend to begin with him when I meet him, for I have been one of his best friends in these lands. He shall now find me the contrary for his babbling. I sent him a copy of the note which Thos. Johnson gave me at Hull. He will speak to you about it, so I send you the same. There is little news, the post not being come. If you have any, let me be partaker.

P.S.—Your cousin, John Geldart, was here when I was at Flushing, and went for Dunkirk per Zealand. By the last post from York, Mr. Hewett wrote me your uncle was dangerously sick. My services to my lord, and respects to your lady. [1 page.]

We make our offers with fear lest they may seem to obstruct the service. We pray that we and the creditors of a better mind may go on upon the said Act, as on part of our debt, without the limitations of days and sums which hitherto rendered our endeavours fruitless, and that doubled bills be given for moneys so brought in. We hope by this to do some service by advancing, by our example, the doubling of the public faith [bills], and by keeping the credit of the Act in force. Present, the King, Queen, Dukes of York and Gloucester, Prince Rupert, Lord Keeper, Lord Chamberlain, Lord Inchiquin, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, Lord Jermyn, and the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Whereas on complaint 22 December last, by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, of discourses spread abroad to his prejudice, as if he were under accusation of high treason, and on his desire that His Majesty would examine the ground of those discourses, His Majesty, after other inquiries, caused a letter to be read which had been written to himself in August last by Sir Richard Grenville, informing that the said Chancellor had made a step into England before his last coming to Paris; that he had there private conference with Cromwell, and that he had a pension paid him for a long time out of England for intelligence; for the justifying of which information Grenville, being required from His Majesty to send him the grounds thereof, had sent a letter written to him by Robert Long, which was then likewise read; upon which matter, after His Majesty had examined other allegations made by the said Grenville which he found to be untrue, and some whereof His Majesty himself knew to be false, His Majesty had declared his judgment to the said Grenville, and had forbidden him the presence.

*Moreover His Majesty examined Peter Massonett at the Board 12 January, he having been mentioned as one of the authors of that report, and likewise caused a paper written by the said Robert Long, dated this 13 January, in justification of what he had formerly written to Sir Richd. Grenville, to be read [which paper His Majesty looks on as a libel, derogatory from his own honour and justice, as also full of malice against Mr. Chancellor, and will hereafter take further consideration thereof], and on the whole matter, declares that the accusation and information is a groundless and malicious calumny, and that he is very well satisfied of the Chancellor's constant integrity and fidelity in the service of his father and himself, and moreover that he will in due time further examine this [unworthy] combination against him, when it shall be more in his power to punish the guilty. Jan. 16. 30, 31. Opinion of Chief Justice Rolle and Justices Jermyn and Atkins of the common law, Drs. Clerk and Godolphin, Judges of the Admiralty, and Drs. Walker and Turner, civilians, on the demand of the Portuguese Ambassador for the return of his brother Don Pantalion [de Saa], committed for murder, on the ground that it is against the law of nations that one of his family should be tried by these laws.

Where the offence is against the law of nations, the Ambassador and his followers forfeit privileges which they might otherwise claim. Having offended against the law of nations, they cannot pray the aid of those laws. Frustra auxilium legis invocat qui in legem committit.

Murder is an offence against the law of nations, whilst an offence against the municipal laws is only crimen prohibitum, and not malum in se.

Sir Edw. Coke reports the case of the Bishop of Ross, who came from Scotland as Ambassador, and, being here, conspired against the Queen, and endeavoured to sow sedition, which, being referred to Lewis, Davy, Drury, Aubrey, and Jones, civilians, they resolved that he had forfeited his privileges.

Dr. Clerke made a difference between the two cases; 1st, both were publicum malum, yet that of Ross was imminens periculum Reipublicæ. 2nd, Ross was no Ambassador, because his prince was in prison. In this case he said justice should be demanded of the Ambassador, and if he refused, it should be asked of the King.

Dr. Godolphin: Murder is crimen læsæ majestatis divinæ, crimen læsæ naturæ humane, crimen læsæ salutis populi, læsæ societatis politicæ. If the offender had been in the custody of the Ambassador, and he had refused to deliver him, he had first broken the law of nations. His case is here otherwise. Trial by inquisition must evidence the fact, and then if he will not disown him, the civil law will concur with the common law.

Dr. Walker: The murder is the question. Doubts not that he may be tried, but questions whether at common law by jury. It must in the indictment be felonie et contra pacem, else the indictment is void, and these words cannot come in this case. If an enemy be accused, you cannot say it is felonie et contra pacem, that implies a subjection.

There is a difference between the Ambassador and his servants, because the Ambassador represents the majesty of the King, and if he have no protection jure gentium but whilst he carries himself according to the laws, every foreigner has not. He may be tried by the law of nations, being in custody. Comes legionis is severable from him.

The mode is to demand the Ambassador to quit his privileges to his person. If he refuses, to demand him of the prince, and the King cannot say thereupon that he is not guilty; he must say subjicitur.

There is no precedent for trial by jury. Where I have committed a crimen contra jus gentium I must be tried as the jus gentium prescribes.

He is triable. If the person be out of custody, and being demanded is refused, it is justa causa belli. If in custody, he may be tried to keep off the war.

The mode is for the case to be represented to the Ambassador, and from him to the King, and then, though the King refuse, he may be tried, which heretofore was by the constable marshall, and not at common law.

The question was put whether,—if upon the demand made of the King he says justice shall be done upon them there, and demands that he be sent unto him for that purpose by the law of nations—he ought not to be sent and expect his justice.

Justice Atkins: That he may be indicted to have done it ex cogitata maliciâ, felonie et contra pacem, because he owes a legal allegiance, and is to be considered no otherwise than any other alien, having forfeited his privileges by his fact.

Dr. Walker: To the question. It must be rather an intimation than a demand.

Marginal note that Justice Atkins, at the Council the 16th of January 1653-4 delivered the opinion of the judges that the fact being committed in this land, the person guilty may be tried by the laws of the land. [2 copies, 3 pages each.]

Jan. 17. 33. Petition of Fras. Ashe, Governor of the Muscovy Company, Adventurers to Greenland, to the Protector. Having discovered Greenland, and protected the trade from the violence of the Dutch, importing furs and oil formerly brought from Biscay, they are much discouraged by intruders into their fishing, causing quarrels and law suits, in spite of orders of the Navy Committee in 1645 and of the Council for Trade in 1650 to the contrary, so that they have lost most of their stock in trade. As several interests cannot fish in one harbour without loss, they beg consideration of their rights, and of the need of managing each harbour by one interest, and by regulations encouraging English interest, and the fishing of more harbours. 36. Sir Geo. Lane, clerk of the Council to the King in France, to Sec. Nicholas. Since I waited on His late Majesty at Oxford 11 years ago, with a despatch from my Lord Lieutenant, I have diligently sought for a fit opportunity of expressing my resentment for the civility which I then received from you, and I had determined rather to do it personally, on some happy occasion of your attendance on His Majesty, than to give you the trouble of a letter expressly upon that subject; therefore, as I conceived it improper to add anything of this nature to my first letter, it being of public concernment, so I may not omit to render you my humble acknowledgments in this my second, wherein you may be pleased to receive a copy of that paper of Mr. Long's which is named in His Majesty's declaration, and branded by His Majesty's own additional manuscript, in the first draft that was presented for his approbation, according to the inclosed note. Receive the papers only as a due and particular report from me, and not as sent by any warrant from His Majesty. [1 page.]

40. Petition of the Mayor, bailiffs, and burgesses of Berwick-on-Tweed to the Protector and Council. During the troubles we have always been faithful, and we secured the town for Parliament in 1643, when the Earl of Newcastle came to surprise it, which was an important service to both nations. We have been much impoverished, for in 1640, on the King's invading Scotland, the Scots took most of our cattle, as did the King's forces on the breaking out of the war, and again in 1648, when we had recovered some stock. In 1650, we had the whole horse of the army that marched into Scotland quartered in our meadows, whilst the army remained about Berwick, and since the war with the Dutch broke out, we have lost 3,000*l.* in salmon and other goods taken by them.

Our bridge over the Tweed, built by King James, the only easy passage into Scotland, is much decayed, and will soon be impassable for troops. To repair this and our losses, we beg that the pastures in Berwick bounds belonging to Sir Jas. Douglas, Lord Mordington, a papist in arms taken in Worcester fight, may be conferred on the mayor, bailiffs, &c. for ever, for repair of the bridge, and for the good of the inhabitants; the rather that King James in 1603, those lands being then in the Crown, ordered that they should be preserved for the town, but the Earl of Dunbar, his great favourite, prevailed to obtain a grant of them from him. Signed by Step. Jackson, Mayor, and 20 others. With reference thereon to Major-Gen. Lambert. [1 sheet.] Annexing, 40. I. *Order by the King in Council, on petition of the Mayor and burgesses of Berwick, that the pastures lying about the town, to which they allege a right, and which they have long held, only that of late some have been used for the garrison, be restored to the town, and not obtained for private use, and that any suit therefor be forborne.—Woodstock, 11 Sept. 1603. Had 500*l.* a year granted by a late Act of Parliament, but the Drury House trustees, who were to set it forth, allotted him but 227*l.*, being all that was left unsold, and the rest in reversion. Has purchased from the said trustees the demesnes of Latham House, Knowlesly, Child-wall, &c., and paid the first moiety, but the last moiety of 1,800*l.* due 1 Feb. he cannot pay on account of extreme poverty and debts, having no subsistence till lately by his Highness' influence, and therefore all he has will be sequestered. 49. Petition of Sir David Watkins, Wm. Witherings, and others concerned in the foreign letter office, to the Protector. By patent of 7 Car., and by several assignments, we are interested in the office of postmaster for foreign parts, for an estate of freehold therein yet in being, during the life of Wm. Frizzell, which we have enjoyed for 20 years, save that about 16 Car., one Burlamachi attempting to inroach on our freehold, our title was resolved good, and restored by a judgment of a grand committee of the House of Commons, since which time we have faithfully executed the office.

There being many agitations before the Council of State, 29 June 1653, on our petition, it was referred to the Committee for Posts to consider our claim and report. On 30 June 1653, a warrant was gained by Mr. Manley from the Council of State, whereby he is empowered to execute the office for postage of letters, both foreign and inland, and to receive the profits. On 1 October 1653, the Council of State referred our petition to the Committee for farming the Post Office, to examine and state the fact. Being dispossessed of our freehold without a hearing by Manley's warrant, we beg its recall, restitution of the profits, and a speedy hearing. With reference thereon to Council, to put the whole business concerning the Post Office into a way of full examination, that all parties may be duly heard, and the whole matter truly stated. 51. Petition of Clement Oxenbridge and Francis Thomson, on behalf of the first undertakers for reducing the postage of inland letters to half the former rates, to the Protector. Satisfied of the freeness in law of the postage of letters to any that would undertake the same, and that the postage of inland letters might be undertaken at half the usual rates with profit, we were the first to undertake accordingly, which was so much to the satisfaction of persons of commerce and correspondence, that notwithstanding the falling of the Attorney-General to half his rates, and the advantages he took against us by stopping our mails on Lord's days, &c. the people continued to send their letters by us.

On the dissolution of Parliament, 20 April 1653, we were the only persons who performed the State's service in conveying their despatches, and it was our care to retain in employment all such postmasters on the road as were reputed godly and well affected. Our charges, losses, &c. amount to 5,146*l.* 10*s.* 8*d.*, 3,238*l.* 16*s.* 3*d.* more than we have had return of, besides our pains and time.

VOL. LXV.

At the end of the interval between the two late Parliaments, the postage of letters being referred by the then Council of State to Col. Rich and others, they made such a representation to Council, without fully hearing our case, that the postage of letters was farmed to John Manley, who violently turned us out of our house and employment, at less than an hour's warning, to our then great damage, we having accounts to make with all the postmasters, and many servants and horses on our hands. Many hundred citizens of London, and other towns, petitioned the late Parliament in our behalf, and these petitions, with our own, were ordered by the Committee for Petitions to be reported to the House 8 weeks ago.

We beg reimbursement for sums out of purse, and reparation for damages out of such moneys as the present farmer stands obliged to pay to the State, which was judged equal and just by the Council of State, in the interval between the two late Parliaments, in case the postage of letters were granted away from us; also to be free to carry letters as formerly, doing the State service, and accommodating private persons at more reasonable rates, there being a multitude of complaints against the exactions and miscarriages of the present farmer. Jan. 30. 56. Judge Advocate J. Fowler to Robt. Blackborne. My wife
The Swiftsure. reports your kindness in getting my payments. You showed me that the 16*d.* a day taken off for De Banks was to be given to any interpreter, but I acted alone. I need no one for the French tongue, and as to Dutch, having travelled 4 years, I can question any skipper and have satisfied the Generals. They have granted me a commission for full salary, which was confirmed by the Admiralty Commissioners, with an addition of 14*d.* a day from the State, which will return to the State if I have the 16*d.* granted the interpreter, and by this (with a common man's wages and diet for himself and servant, which could not be denied him) will save the State 70*l.* a year, although I believe the Commissioners will add the 14*d.* to me also. I was taking examinations and attending Courts daily. [1 page.]

57. Major Wm. Burton to the Admiralty Committee. The great frigates cannot be launched for three weeks, as the masts are still being made at London. I am working the hemp from Newcastle into yarn, but some bundles are half rotten. There are 6 or 7 Dutch men-of-war on the coast, who have taken 8 sail, one of which is mine, and I believe that as we are upon concluding a peace, a word from General Desborow would get her back for me. A vessel from Ostend reports that the States of Holland, Zealand, and most of the provinces have signed the agreement. [1 page.]

58. Petition of Major Neh. Bourne to the Protector. Fourteen months ago, there being a great want of large masts in the State's stores, I adventured to New England in 3 ships to supply them by contract; but 2 of the ships, having no convoy, were taken by the

4. The letter to the Protector from Saltonstall, Syler, and Desborow, from Leith, dated 24 January, with a paper inclosed, entitled "An answer to the information sent unto them from Council" referred to the Committee for Scotland, to consider and report.

6. 58*a.* The Army Committee to order the collecting of half the monthly assessment charged on co. Cardigan by the last Act to be respited, and to require the Treasurers-at-war, collectors, and other officers not to call for the arrears of one half the said assessment, due since December 24, 1649. Approved 3 Feb.

7. Order on report of the Commissioners for Inspecting the Treasuries, on a reference of Sir John Trevor and Mr. Lake's petition, that the 4,299*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* due upon the bills charged by Mr. Ledgard on the Army Committee to Trevor and Lake be paid out of the money in Ledgard's hands due on his account, and that the Committee for Inspection consider how this may best be paid, that the commonwealth may receive no damage. From 1645 to 1647 the duty was received by the Scots, who held that garrison. In 1647, the Revenue Committee reduced their rent to 1,838l. 12s. 4 $\frac{3}{4}$ d., of which the whole rent for 1649 is unpaid, and also 919l. 6s. 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. for 1653. But 200l. was usually allowed the farmers for 4,000 chaldrons free of duty for the poor of London.*

*Also that Dawson and Tomkins paid 4,299l. 6s. 8d. to Mr. Ledgard for Trevor and Lake, but the money was not paid them, because Sir A. Heselrigg had represented that some delinquents were interested in the lease. That Freeman and Bludder were delinquents, but have compounded for their interest in the lease, and that  $\frac{1}{5}$  belongs to Mr. Ashfield, recusant, and was accounted for at Haberdashers' Hall till 1650 inclusive. [Jan. 31.] 60. The case of the freemen adventurers for the fishing in Greenland, presented to Parliament. The fishing was discovered 40 years ago by Hull men, but the company claim the sole right thereto, on pretext of an Act of Parliament passed before its discovery, and without any relation thereto; and by Council orders, they have suppressed and imprisoned all not of the company, thus monopolizing the trade, advancing the price of oil, and compelling the import of much Dutch oil.

They now desire confirmation of Horn Sound and Bell Sound, leaving the others free; but most of the others are inaccessible from ice, and these are large enough for more fishers than ever-adventured thither.

Can it be consistent with public good to restrain the fishing to 50 people, who cannot bring in sufficient oil, and who enhance the price, when others offer to set out double the shipping, if the trade may be free? The adventurers have sent out this year 1,100 tons of shipping, as much as the company's average, and if the company's desires be granted, their voyages will be destroyed. Signed by Geo. Baker, Rich. Warner, and 15 others. [1 sheet, printed.]

Jan. 31.

61. Arguments by Fras. Ashe, Governor of the Muscovy Company, to prove that several interests cannot conveniently fish for whales in one harbour, but that it would be beneficial if they fished in several harbours. [2½ pages.]

[Jan. 31.]

62. Reasons why several adventurers and stocks cannot fish whales together in one harbour, and why the great harbour of Bell Sound should be fished by a joint stock, being too large for particular adventurers.

1. If those who first arrive choose their places, some will go a month before the season, augmenting charge and destroying profit.

2. None will build storehouses or durable accommodation for their men, which they might only enjoy for one year.

3. Most will go to Bell Sound, and the other harbours will be left to the French and Dutch. Also there will be much loss, for part of the Sound being shallow, and part blocked with ice, 30 or 40 shallops all in one interest, and killing every whale that rises, would fish it better than 60 or 70, who would rather hinder than help each other.

4. This is rather a hunting above ground than fishing under water, and would lead to much contention as to who first struck a whale, much entangling of warps and lines where more than one whale is struck, and strife as to which should cut and lose their whales, and also to contest about drift whales.

5. There are more losing than gaining voyages made, but once in 3 or 4 years the whales come in shoals, and then 300 or 400 tuns of oil are made more than can be brought home, and are left in the company's storehouses till next year; but private adventurers would neither have storehouses nor casks, nor would their mariners be willing to spend time and labour, not knowing who should fetch the oil home.

6. English interests will not be preserved against the Dutch and French, for the company sends one ship at least to each harbour for defence, whilst the rest turn the whales.

7. Unless there be a joint stock, the company's stock of 20,000*l.* will not be employed in fishing, and thus the nation's fishing will be diminished. They desire no more of the continent than they improve to common advantage, and leave all the rest free to adventurers. [1½ pages.] Also Objections of the Muscovy Company to Mr. Horth's propositions to have  $\frac{1}{8}$  in the harbour with them, and supply  $\frac{1}{8}$  of the men and fishing.

1. That if they allow it to him, they must allow it to any other who asks it.

2. It will unsettle the company's trade, as they cannot set out their ships till they know what part the rest of the nation will furnish.

3. The accounts will be endless and intricate, and the company, with a stock of 20,000*l.*, should not involve themselves with insolvent men, to whom they must pay all dues, but from whom they could receive nothing.

VOL. LXV.

4. It will send all to the harbours already settled, and none will visit the 30 or 40 more harbours discovered, but where the company do not fish.

On the whole, the company decline, on account of damage, bloodshed, and loss, to fish in a general joint stock, free for others to come into their harbours. [ $\frac{2}{3}$  page.] Also,

[Jan. 31.] 67, 68. Two copies of the preceding 9 reasons and 5 propositions. [Printed, 1 page each.]

Jan. 31. 69. Reasons by Rich. Eccleston on behalf of the adventurers of Hull, why the Greenland trade should be free.

1. That all living under the same government, and having common charges, should enjoy the same liberties.

2. That those who seek to engross the trade do it by right of a monopolizing patent, inconsistent with the freedom of a commonwealth.

3. That the State would be strengthened by the increase of shipping and seamen employed in these voyages.

4. That the country would be furnished with oil and furs, instead of buying from the Hollander, 12 ships so laden having come at one time this year from Amsterdam to Hull.

5. That if one harbour were kept for the old company, others forced by weather into that harbour would be in danger of losing their voyage. [1 page.]

[Jan. 31.] 70. Arguments addressed to the Council for Trade by Thomas and Lancelot Anderson, Edw. Whitwell, and 3 others, for the free adventurers, to prove the possibility of several adventurers fishing in one harbour, following the existing regulations, for as the whales come in shoals of 200 or 300, it would rarely happen that several adventurers would chase one whale. Bell Sound is 30 miles by 15, and Green harbour yet larger, and the circumference not known.

The entangling of lines has not been known to happen, and could easily be regulated for. The case of drift whales could be provided for by all adventurers marking their whale irons. [7 pages.]

Beg consideration of their loss and title in the present treaty with the Hollanders. [1 page.]
- Jan. ? 75. Petition of John Godolphin, Wm. Clerk, Walter Walker, and 8 other doctors of civil law, for themselves and their profession, to the Protector. My husband has been 20 years subject to fits of distraction, during which his neighbours pass by abuses done in passion; but lately one of them brought an action against him, and drew words from him in his passion for which he has been sent to prison. 2. Robt. Swanley to General Geo. Monk. I would comply with your recommendation to pay Robt. Collins and the rest of the mariners of his ship their wages if I were able, but I have waited 5 months at vast expense for satisfaction for the loss of my ship and goods, which the Admiralty judges valued at 63,000*l.*, and which passed the Committees for Irish and Scotch, and foreign affairs, and was returned to Council. I will readily pay the mariners when the State pays me. Their agent came aboard when I was setting sail from Naples to London with goods value 100,000*l.*, and forced me to put them ashore, and take service for the State. I told the mariners then that I could not be liable for their wages, and they said they required no other paymasters but the State. Collins, the Captain of the Warwick, entreated to be taken in when so much wounded that the surgeons had no hopes of his life.

5. Petition of the societies' of both the Temples to the Protector. We have in all times past, even in the late troubles, now put to an end by your Highness' great valour and prudence, been free, like other colleges and societies of learning, from any public tax or imposition, we consisting either of young gentlemen (students in the law), who live upon the exhibition of their parents, or of the elder sort, practisers or public officers in courts of justice, who are all rated for their estates in the country where they live, and have in the Inns of Court only chambers for resort of their clients in term time.

Some few of the Commissioners for the present assessment within the city of London have imposed 100*l.* a month on us, which, though an inconsiderable ease to the city, is a burden insupportable upon the societies, and will discourage the gentry in sending their sons hither, to their great prejudice in education, and to the destruction of the societies. Beg a command to the Commissioners to forbear such an innovation. [1 page.]

Has often petitioned for relief, and was referred to the Irish and Scotch Committee, who reported 10 March last that he should have 1,200*l.* A report was ordered to Parliament, but it was dissolved before the report was made. Is therefore a great sufferer, unless his Highness, ever ready to acts of honour and justice, will relieve him. With reference thereon to Council. [1 page.]*

Feb. 3. Reference thereon in Council to Strickland, Wolsley, and Sydenham, to report. [I. 75, p. 92.]

Feb. 3. 7. *Petition of Fras. Yonge, jun., Esq., woodward of Windsor Forest, to the Protector and Council. The trustees for sale of forest lands have lately empowered me to take care of the woods in the forest. There has been a late order of the Council thereon, and as I have been entrusted with that affair for divers years, to my great charge, by the late Earl of Pembroke, and then by Amb. 2. The petition of Dr. John Bastwick referred to Skippon and Rous, to consider and state the fact, and to send to Ald. Ireton for the report intended to the last Parliament, and for any other paper or persons requisite, and to report.

4. Order on Mr. Major's report on the petition of the traders in cotton wool and fustian, and of the weavers of fustian in Lancashire, that Maj.-Gen. 9. Gens. Blake and Penn to the Admiralty Committee. We have conferred with several commanders and pilots in the fleet, and find it will be dangerous with a westerly wind, which is common there, for any of the fleet to lie before Brest harbour, and with that wind they could not follow any of the ships bound in. We have, therefore, arranged that the 6 ships appointed shall lie between Ushant and the Seams, as close to the harbour as they can. If you have any orders for us, send them by land. We will give order at the next council of war to send the muster books to the Commissioners for sick and wounded.

We are sorry the treaty with the Dutch has been delayed, as delay portends no great hopes of agreement, and quickens our desires to have the fleet ready for service. We will send 6 frigates eastward to look after the 4 Holland men-of-war you mention. The master attendant at Portsmouth should have a convenient residence found for him in the dockyard there. [2 pages.]

Feb. 5. 10. Order in the Committee [for Adventurers in Ireland] concerning the 1,300*l.* in Alderman Andrews' hands,—from which the Committee for Claims desire satisfaction for their pains in managing the lots, and clearing the claims of the adventurers,—that the Committee join in the request that the 1,300*l.* be divided among them, with as much Irish land set out as shall make up the share of each to 500*l.*

That Ald. Avery and Mr. Hawkins prepare a draft report for the Commissioners of Inspection, in behalf of the Commissioners for Claims. [Draft, 1 page.]

Feb. 6. 11. Petition of Lorens Micaell to the Protector. I was born at Cadiz, but served in the State's navy, and was corporal and linguist of the Harry Bonadventure, which with her prize, the St. Peter, was betrayed into the hands of the Dutch by the Governor of Trapani and Messina, when in Trapani road. I left my country and came 3,000 miles, at great charge and peril, to give evidence in the premises, and have lain 5 months hoping for wages and reward, but can get neither. I beg payment that I may fit myself to go as corporal in the Tarrington. With reference thereon to the Admiralty Committee, and their report 9 Feb. that 15*l.* should be allowed him for arrears and charges. [1 sheet.]

Feb. 6. 12. Petition of Judith, widow of Thomas Todd, to the Protector, for the grant of a comfortable subsistence for herself and child, or reference of her case to the Admiralty Committee. Her husband served in several ships from 1642, and for two years past as master, but in the last expedition, he volunteered to serve under Rear-

Admiral Bourne in the Andrew, and was killed in the engagement near the Kentish Knock, having two months before had a command conferred upon him by the General, as the merit of his faithfulness and active service previously, but the ship was not then fitted for sea. With reference thereon to the Admiralty Committee, to order an allowance to the petitioner as to others in like cases. [1 page.] Annexing,

12. II. Rear-Admiral N. Bourne to [the Admiralty Commissioners]. I knew Thos. Todd for many years as a most faithful and active man, and he served as a master for two years. Being very zealously affected to the present cause, he preferred to go as a volunteer under my command in the Andrew, rather than embrace better offers to his outward advantage, and behaved with much zeal and courage in the engagement with the Holland fleet near the Kentish Knock, where he had his arm shot off close to his body, and died some days after. I cannot speak more in his honour than he justly deserved, and commend his widow and child to your favour, whose loss cannot be made up, but her life may be made more comfortable by your compassion. With certificate by Wm. Greenhill and 3 others as to the truth of the above. [½ page.]

[Feb. 6.] 14. Petition of the society of merchants of the Intercourse, born in the 17 provinces of the Netherlands, being 27 persons, to the Protector. By treaties between this nation and Burgundy, we have been exempted from personal taxes, or if assessed, relieved immediately by privy seal, or in later times, by orders of Parliament and the late Lord-Gen. Fairfax. The English merchants in Rotterdam and Antwerp enjoy many larger privileges on the same account.

During the late Parliament, the Assessment Committee, strangely over-rating us, ordered their collectors to distrain on our nonpayment. We applied to the Committee for Petitions, who referred us to the Committee for Trade, and they to a Sub-Committee, but no progress being made through their resignation, the collectors came to our homes, broke open our locks, and took what goods they pleased.

We then applied to the Spanish Ambassador and to the Holland Commissioners, and (as the English abroad do in like cases) protested against the Assessment Committee for our damages, and obtained a month's time to know your Highness' pleasure, which expired 29 Jan., and the Committee refuse further respite. We beg restitution of what has been distrained, and suspension of further distress, to avoid the inconveniences which will inevitably fall on the English abroad, by violation of the ancient privileges. With reference to Council, 27 Jan. 1654, to see that both parties enjoy their rights. Endorsed with note that it was left by Mr. Strickland to be given to Mr. Scobell, and that the merchants' claim, with the Commissioners' answer, were delivered to Capt. Stone 7 Dec. 1654, on an order of the Committee of Parliament for that business. [1 page.]

15. Chas. Longland to the Admiralty Commissioners. Beside the four English prizes formerly brought in here by the Dutch, two others have since come with Newfoundland fish, and one with pilchards. They are lords of these seas, and especially of this port, where they domineer to the full; they keep three of their ships five leagues off tacking about, the other five being in port. There were 10 sail, but now only 8, as 2 foundered in the Gulf of Lyons.

I need not advise you how much it would advance the honour of our nation to have a revenge on the enemy in this place, where we have been such great sufferers, and am assured you will do all in due time. It is reported by the Dutch here that they expect a Fiscal or Judge Admiral from Holland, and a Committee, the better to manage the prizes they have already got, and what they shall get hereafter, and they also intend to make a bank here of their prize money.

No ships have arrived from Holland or places adjacent for the last 6 months, so they keep all their strength at home, and in 20 days it is supposed they will go for the Straits' mouth, to wait our Zante ships, who cannot well escape; 4 Dutch ships very richly laden are

We were appointed in October 1653 to attend on the sick and wounded here; there are now only 11 under cure, though 24 arrived since our appointment, some of whom were wounded, but the rest are well and discharged; the remainder might be removed to some hospital in London, upon receipt of the order, and bedding being provided for them in their passage by sea. One man wishes to remain here because the maintenance allowed helps his family. We were allowed 6s. a day each before the other surgeons departed, and as the care and trouble has since been great, we beg consideration. [1 page.]

Feb. 7. 18. Answers by Thos. Horth to the objections of the Muscovy Company prefixed [see Jan. 31, p. 378 suprà] against his having  $\frac{1}{6}$  of the fishing:—

1. That he has as good right to Bell Sound, &c. as any, having fished there 25 years, and being the first man who ever pitched tents at Bottle Cove, and the Rock, in Bell Sound, in 1626, and has set out  $\frac{1}{6}$  of the tonnage ever since, except that in 1653, his voyage was overthrown by his men being pressed into the service. He has often joined the company on those terms, and helped to keep out the Dutch and French, and thinks it cannot be denied him to continue this, or to fish as best he may.

2. He can prove that it can not keep the business unsettled in the least.

3. That there can be more difficulty in the accounts than before, and he can prove that he is not insolvent, nor has purchased lands in his children's names, as several of the company have lately done, thus deceiving their just creditors; yet he has lost 30,000*l.*, 12,900*l.* being within 18 months, and has lent 500*l.* and 300*l.* to Parliament.

4. That all the harbours should be fished in consort, and those that have the benefit of the best contribute to the charge of fishing in the worse. [3 pages.]

Feb. 7. 19. Proposals made to the Protector by Edw. Whitwell and the Adventurers for Greenland in several stocks, concerning the late improvement by fishing in all the harbours. The fishing in common stock with the Muscovy Company, and then at the end of the voyage dividing the fins and oil equally amongst all the ships, gives no more encouragement to the industrious than to the sluggard. It prevents the breeding of English fishermen, because they cannot fish on their own account, and the company employ Biskiners as harpooners. It discourages improvements in tackle and furniture, when all fare alike. It increases expense by requiring common stewards. The company can, if they choose, by negligence or otherwise, make several losing voyages, and having a stock themselves, ruin the adventurers, and then the next year set what price they please on oil and fins.

Proposals (1) that all the Greenland harbours be open to all; (2) that a fit number of shallops be assigned to each harbour to fish it sufficiently; (3) that the first comers into any harbour choose their places, and when the appointed number has come, none others thrust into the harbour.

Men will not set out too soon to gain places, because they cannot get in till the seas are navigable. [2 pages.]

Feb. 7.

20. Marchamont Needham to the Protector. Wishing to know how the pulse beats at Allhallows, I went there last night. It was a dull assembly without Feake and Simpson, for they were the men that carried it on with heat. Highland, John Spencer, and Mr. Jessey, who now conduct it, are no Boanerges, as you know. But the congregation is crowded, the humours boiling, and as much scum comes off as ever, but more warily. Highland preached on the 8 beatitudes, but chiefly enlarged on the 2 last, relating to persecution, to which they now fit all their discourses. He magnified the happiness of the 2 sufferers now in prison, prayed for them, and prophesied their deliverance, and the confusion of all enemies, quoted the Apocalypse, and told the people the time was at hand when they should feed on the flesh of kings and great men.

John Spencer then spoke from Isaiah, c. 43, v. 1-4, to the like effect, but very cautiously. He also prayed for that servant of God now to be confined, which raised a murmur of inquiry. Jessey spoke softly, and I could not hear him.

There is reason for the total dissolution of that meeting, as you have proceeded against the leaders, and a digest of the papers I have given in, with comments upon them, should be printed at the same time.

This meeting much diminishes your reputation among foreigners, who expect changes, because they are proclaimed from the pulpit, and great things are made of it, though it is but a confluence of silly wretches.

There is a twofold design about the prophetess Hannah [Trapnel], who played her part lately at Whitehall at the ordinary; one to print her discourses and hymns, which are desperate against your person, family, children, friends, and the government; the other to send her all over England, to proclaim them viva voce. She is much visited, and does a world of mischief in London, and would do in the country. The vulgar dote on vain prophecies. I saw hers in the hands of a man who was in the room when she uttered them day by day in her trance, as they call it. He promised to lend me them; if he does, I will show you them. They would make 14 or 15 sheets in print. [3½ pages. See 6 April infra.]

On the 28th I received the Swedish agent on board in the Hope, and landed him on the 31st at Dunkirk, when he sent you many thanks for high favours. The Martin and Merlin were there as convoy to some merchant ships from England, and the winds detained us 6 days. I hear there are several Dutch merchantmen at Newhaven, bound homewards. I hope to meet them and convoy them to a nearer port, as I have with me the rest of the frigates appointed for the station between Dover and Calais. The Merlin took a Dutchman called the Temperance, which has been sent into Dover, though she pretends to be of Courland. [1½ pages.]

22. Sir Edward Walker to Sir Edward Nicholas. I have been so straitened since my return that I could not send you the copy of what I have drawn to write to Mr. Chancellor time enough to have your approbation, but I hope I have so digested it, for His Majesty's service and the honour of the order, that it will not be subject to misconstruction.

After I had briefly given an account of my being there, and my having seen the Earl of Rochester's letter to the Queen of Bohemia, I have written as follows: Hereupon, although I should most readily have obeyed His Majesty's commands in the way prescribed me, yet seeing his Lordship waives the journey, and that I am confident His Majesty's intentions for me are still the same, I shall presume (according to my oath as being of counsel with the order) to offer some particulars to His Majesty and the companions there, (if His Majesty please to call them to it), whereupon I desire fuller directions.

As first, this being but an election, and no full investiture, the usual ceremonies (which to a foreign prince receiving the order are the same as are observed at Windsor at an installation) cannot be used. May not that form devised by me in delivering the garter to the Duke of Gloucester be used with some variations, as being more ceremonious than the single delivery of any election ever was?

Next seeing His Majesty is pleased, by his letter to the Elector [of Brandenburg], to express that he hath sent me to deliver the garter, &c., whether (seeing my Lord of Rochester goes not) I may not be held capable (according to the statutes of the order, by which Garter is to carry all elections to the knights elect, and to make report of their answers) to go myself and deliver it? If so, a new letter to the Elector must be drawn and sent, wherein some alterations and additions should be made. As first, after the words J'ai trouvé à propos to insert Comme souverain du très-renommé, très-ancien, et très-noble ordre de la Gartière, de vous élire l'un des chevaliers, pairs, et compagnons du dit ordre. Then whereas it follows: La quelle par plusieurs siècles a eu l'honneur d'avoir plusieurs Rois d'Angleterre, nos prédécesseurs, et plusieurs autres Rois et Princes étrangers pour compagnons, either to omit the words, Plusieurs Rois nos prédécesseurs, or to say laquelle par plusieurs siècles a eu non seulement les Rois d'Angleterre, nos prédécesseurs pour souverains, mais aussi a l'honneur d'avoir plusieurs Empereurs, Rois, et Princes étrangers pour compagnons.

VOL. LXVI.

The reason why I propose this is because, although His Majesty styles the knights companions, yet it is improper for him to style himself and his predecessors so, being sovereigns of the order. Besides I have named emperors therein, seven of them having been companions of the order.

May it not induce the Elector to place a higher value on His Majesty's favour if this letter be fairly written in parchment, and have the Great Seal by a silk label affixed? as letters of this kind ought to pass the seal of the order, and anciently passed under the Great Seal.

May it not be proper to express therein that, when it shall please God to restore His Majesty to the possession of his Crown, the Elector shall be as fully invested as any prince that has been companion thereof? But this clause may be well considered, lest the Elector, not knowing the accidents of the order, may not then set so great a value on His Majesty's present electing him. The mention of my Lord of Rochester, he being absent, may be omitted, and if His Majesty please in this letter to entitle me his servant, as well as King-of-Arms, it will add to my reputation.

Next, seeing this letter ought to be read at the time of delivering the garter, I should have another letter of credence to deliver when I first repair to the Elector's court, implying that I am sent to deliver him the order, and with it a letter declaring his election, all which are to be presented when the Elector shall appoint a time to receive them, for I shall propose that the Elector appoint some persons to adjust all circumstances with me, that I may do my best for the honour of the order and the Elector.

Thirdly, I must have another warrant to perform my office in delivering the order, without mention of my Lord of Rochester. This done, I desire to know whether I shall wear His Majesty's coat-of-arms (which I have lately got over). And lastly, whether in delivering the garter, I shall address myself in English or French to the Elector. Would not His Majesty's letter be more properly written in Latin than French?

I desire as speedy and positive directions as may be. Please either to send me them hither, or to intimate that I shall receive them at the Hague, and I shall return thither, and do my best to put myself in equipage for so long a journey.

This much verbatim I have written to Mr. Chancellor; if it find your approbation, recommend it to him. In the interim, if the garter be come, you will increase my obligation to put Sir Chas. Cotterell in mind of my business, he having promised not to let it sleep.

For news I can only tell you that Mr. Holland, an officer of my lady, is by the last post come hither out of England, who assures me the English will have no peace with us here, nor is there any great likelihood of a strict league with Sweden, and that the Scots at Drummond Castle have cut off above 600 English. 23. Petition of Dame Christian Temple, widow, Sir Rich. Temple, Bart., and 20 creditors of the late Sir Peter Temple, Bart., to the Protector. Sir Peter (being in debt 20,000*l.*, and having but a life estate, the remainder being to Sir Richard, by virtue of settlements made by his grandfather and great-grandfather, and so only liable to Sir Peter's debts during his life), on 15 August last, drew up an agreement, by consent of Dame Christian and Sir Richard, conveying all his lands to the creditors for 10½ years, for payment of debts and of 600*l.* a year to Dame Christian, who agreed during that term to debar herself of all further benefit of her jointure. The agreement was not to take effect till signed and sealed by creditors whose debts amounted to 10,000*l.*, but before this was done, Sir Peter died. A great part of his estate passed thereon to Lady Baltinglas, being the inheritance of her mother, on which account Sir Richard sealed an indenture to the creditors enlarging the term ½ a year, but being only 20 years old, he cannot perfect the assurance, and if he should die before it is perfected, many widows and orphans will be lost.

Beg an order to the justices of Common Bench to admit Sir Richard to levy fines and suffer a recovery by his guardians, and to convey the lands to Thos. Viner, now Mayor of London, Sir Edm. Pye, Bart., and 5 other principal creditors, although he has not attained his majority. 22 signatures. With reference thereon to Council, 1 Feb. 1654. [1 sheet.]

Before the wars, I had an estate of 800*l.* a year, but was led by conscience to be amongst the first on the Parliament side, advanced large sums, and raised men and arms, at a cost of 1,875*l.* 3*s.* 9*d.* My estate being in the enemy's quarters, they sequestered my rents and plundered my mansion house, to the loss of 3,500*l.* I was 2 years high sheriff, which was a chargeable and dangerous service, and contracted such debt that I have had to sell land worth 500*l.* a year, and yet my discontented family is within the jaws of ruin. There is due to me 4,454*l.* 17*s.* 11*d.* for service, besides the raising men and serving when the Scots came in.

I have had to mortgage my debentures and public faith bills, which will be lost unless soon redeemed, though the State owes me 11,280*l.* 12*s.* I have twice petitioned Parliament, but you being now raised up in their stead, my dead hopes are revived. I petitioned with others, and the sale of it was obstructed; but now Mr. Murford and others allege they have purchased it from Mr. Lea, clerk to the trustees, as part of the concealed lands of the late King formerly called the park, whereas it was never called the park, and was always held by the constable and chief officers for the better protection of the forest. Council to the Commissioners for disposing of the proceeds of the late cathedral at Lichfield.

We are informed that a considerable sum, part of the proceeds of the cathedral, has remained divers months in the hands of private persons, without improvement or security, and particularly 600*l.* belonging to the poor of Stafford, to whom half the said proceeds was designed by an order of Parliament of April 4, 1651. Also that the poor of Stafford are very numerous, through the pulling down of some out part of the town for securing the garrison in the late war; and that the house of correction there is much defaced, which, if repaired, might be a very proper house to set the poor on work, for which it was formerly employed.

We recommend to your special care that the money so owing be speedily called in, and this and the further proceeds employed for relieving and setting the poor on work; and particularly that the town of Stafford may receive their proportion, which being a work of much charity and justice, we doubt not but you will effectually cause the premises to be put in execution. 39. Peeders Gilles Pene to Ralph Parker, Flushing. Capt. Chas. Bleyaert received a commission against the rebels of England from the Duke of York, under his hand and seal, dated Paris, 12 Feb., and the same was registered by you on 16 Feb. 1654, but he has been taken, after a day at sea, by the French, who take exception to his commission, therefore we wish an attestation of it to be sent as soon as possible, wherein you are to certify,—

1. That you have seen and read the said commission, and that it was a good commission, and conformable to those before granted by the said Duke.

2. That according to order, you registered it on the aforesaid day, and that it can now be inspected without the least difficulty. Send it to Johannis Michelseet at Middleburgh, with orders to deliver it early to-morrow morning. [1 page, Dutch.]

Feb. 20. COUNCIL. Day's Proceedings.

1. Wolsley, Mackworth, Moyer, and Rous, to be a Committee to consider the matter contained in a draft of an Act presented to Council, touching rural prebends and rectories sine curâ, to hear what shall be offered therein, to advise with counsel if they see cause, and report.

2. The Army Committee to send into the several counties the Ordinance passed last Friday touching the later 3 months' assessment.

4. Order on Major-Gen. Desborow's reporting a desire of the Admiralty Committee for an order of assistance for the greater convenience of sick and wounded men, that the Commissioners for sick and wounded seamen be authorised to empower their agents in the several ports to call to their assistance any mayors, bailiffs, constables, or other officers, for the more convenient ordering of sick men for their recovery; and all such officers are hereby required to assist. Approved 21 Feb.

5. Order on report from the*Admiralty Committee, that Sir John Wolstenholme's house in Seething Lane be purchased as an office for the Navy Commissioners, and that the Admiralty Commissioners be empowered to give order for treating with Sir John Wolstenholme for it, and to report. Approved 21 Feb.

6. Order on report from the Admiralty Commissioners, that they be authorised to require from time to time from the Admiralty Judges and Prize Goods' Commissioners an exact account of all proceedings in cases relating to ships and goods yet uncondemned, or which may hereafter be depending in the Admiralty Court, and to examine where any obstructions are therein, and to send for persons and papers, and to give such directions as they think fit, and all persons to be obedient to them. Approved 21 Feb.

43. Charles Longland to the Admiralty Committee. Although our letters from England do not give us the least intimation, yet the Dutch letters from Holland fill the town with certain advices that the peace with England is as good as concluded. Their States have sent orders here to discharge out of pay those ships of war that were raised in these seas, intimation being made thereof yesterday to 7 of them which are in this port, and another 8 leagues off, who this day have landed and paid off their soldiers. Two of their ships are still at sea hereabouts, which it is supposed they keep purposely out of the way to catch one of our ships expected here.

I have two anchors and a cable left by the Leopard and Bonadventure, as also 50 barrels of powder and shot provided for a supply to those ships in their unhappy engagement, which shall be disposed of as you may order. When the Phoenix ran aground in the said engagement, she heaved 4 pieces of ordnance overboard to lighten herself, which I have hopes of recovering. With copy of his letter of 6th Feb. Order by the Admiralty Committee that General Desborow report to the Protector and Council that the Committee—having received information that the trustees at Worcester House have sold to Michael Lea, their clerk, part of the Forest of Dean called Whitmead Park, on a suggestion that the same was vested in them by Act of Parliament for sale of the lands of the King, Queen, and Prince, but which was part of the forest, and called a park from being enclosed for a pound (as will appear by a letter from Major

45. I. Report by the said Commissioners on the 'above reference about the disposal of Whitmead lands, Forest of Dean, by the trustees of Worcester House, that by a proviso in the Act for sale of Crown lands, all lands except parks lying in forests are exempted. The trustees plead that the lands in question, which they sold to Mich. Lea, one of their clerks, on a pretended discovery, are a park, but on full hearing, it appears that they have never been severed from the forest, nor secured for deer, but used as a pound for stray cattle, and therefore should not have been sold, but the trustees should give Lea reprisals for his purchase-money. [Draft, 1 page.]

45. II. Notes of what constitutes a park, i.e., a paling round it for wild beasts and deer. Usage makes the difference between a park and a pound. It was called Whitmead Park 1 Hen. VII., &c. [ $\frac{2}{3}$  page.]

47. Petition of Margaret Hungerford, widow and executrix of Sir Edw. Hungerford, to the Protector. I petitioned with Sir Neville Poole for relief against a debt of 500*l.* owing by the State for which Sir Edw. Hungerford and Sir N. Poole became bound, being promised security by Parliament. You referred the case to Council, who have referred it to the next Parliament, but that will be too late, as a suit is commenced against us, and judgment will be forthwith obtained. The former of the two late Parliaments made an Ordinance for payment of the debt. I beg payment out of papists and delinquents' estates in Wiltshire, and the more because the State owes me 7,000*l.* besides, which I have forborne to demand, because of its great occasions for money. Feb. 21. 48. Petition of many well affected tradesmen in London, Westminster, and the parts adjacent, to the Protector. By a vote of Parliament of 9 July 1651, the court of the palace of Westminster, called the Marshal's court, was voted to be taken away. In obedience to that vote, though not binding in law, it has been discontinued, to our prejudice and ruin, as we have no easy or speedy way for recovery of our debts. We petitioned the then Parliament, and gave in a paper of reasons, on which a Committee was ready to report, but Parliament was dissolved. The government of these realms being now so happily conferred on your Highness, we beg you to provide for our relief. [1 sheet, with 13 sheets of signatures in 2 columns, most of them giving the trade of the writer.] Annexing,

48. I. Reasons alluded to, showing the usefulness of the Marshal's court held at Southwark. That many have suits in the court, and debtors in prison on executions therefrom, the benefit of which will be lost if the court be discontinued. No place  $\frac{1}{10}$  so populous is without a peculiar jurisdiction to recover debts. Most of the inhabitants trade on credit, and will lose their trade without an easy means to recover their debts. That court was expeditious, and in the higher court, where no bail is taken, a creditor will rather lose his debt than hazard 7l. or 8l. on a trial.

None will be advantaged by its suppression, but those who wish to protect themselves from the law, as this court can enter any liberty within 12 miles of Westminster except London.

Many having gone to the high courts at Westminster, have found them so tedious and expensive that they have let fall their actions rather than undergo the charge. [1 page.]

49. John Poortmans to [Robt. Blackborne]. I am glad we have had such moderate weather, otherwise the fleet would have been scattered, we have so many sluggish ships. The transfer of the steward of the Sovereign to the great frigate at Woolwich is resented by the Generals, and it would therefore be as well to appoint Mr. Hawthorne of the great frigate to the other, and thereby satisfy both parties.

I am thankful for your kind offers, but would rather have nothing urged on my behalf, but leave it to the Lord either to stand or fall. The wind having come to the S.S.E., the design of our keeping sea is frustrated, and we have arrived here, but we left the Essex and others at the station. [2 pages, damaged.]

50. Petition of Isaac Lyte, merchant, to the Protector. My request to the Council for sale of swords was referred to the Ordnance Committee, who contracted with me for 6,000, and the contract was confirmed by the Army Committee; but as that Committee was dissolved in 1650, before the order was drawn up, the swords lie still on my hands. 52. Petition of Thos. Violet to the Protector. By several orders of the late Council of State I have assisted 14 months in prosecuting in the Admiralty Court the silver ships Samson, Salvador, and George. I find hundreds of claims put in for the silver and merchandise, by Spaniards, Flandrians, and Hamburgers, and scores of examinations to prove them to belong to Spaniards and Hamburgers, and I think it my duty to acquaint you therewith.

I beg you to appoint a Committee to take an exact account of all the transactions in that business, and of how it stands in the Admiralty Court, what claims are fit to come to trial, and what should be respited till the return of commissions from foreign parts. Nehemiah Beaton,—of whose piety, ability, and exemplary life they have had 2 years' experience, since the Committee for Plundered Ministers, on their petition, settled him amongst them, allowing him 40*l.* from the profits of the rectory,—has lately only had part of this small allowance, and now the whole is denied him, and the Earl of Thanet warns them not to pay it to him, so that the smallness of the allowance will compel him to remove, and they will be destitute of a preaching minister. Beg that his abode among them may be continued, and made comfortable. [1 page. 17 signatures, of which 5 are by marks.]

On 18 Feb. 1653, the Committee for Plundered Ministers, by consent of the Earl of Thanet, ordered 50*l.* from Wiston rectory, which the Earl was wont to receive for repair of the parsonage house, and 40*l.* a year out of the profits to be paid to petitioner whilst minister there. 61. F. Cheynell to Col. Montague. I give you an opportunity to promote a small request of great concern to the Church. Mr. Beaton, an able and godly minister, is content with a very narrow allowance in our parts, where he does eminent service. He gives half his stipend to his aged mother, the widow of his father, who was honoured amongst us for his work, but died very poor. The petition is just. The Earl of Thanet receives 120*l.* a year by a lease of inappropriate tithes, which lease binds him, as he confesses, to pay 40*l.* a year to the minister, but Parliament being dissolved, he will pay nothing, so that this precious man must be either starved or removed, unless you take compassion on him.

62. Petition of Nath. Markes, merchant, to the Protector. I complained to the late Council of State of my great sufferings in name, credit, and estate, by imprisonment and detention of my estate, only on suspicion, and that the case had long been in the hands of Dr. Gurdon, who was to determine it by trial at law, but no proceedings were taken; thereupon they ordered the Attorney-General to prosecute me, and he has had all the papers from Dr. Gurdon, and advised with counsel, but finds nothing to proceed upon. I would not trouble you with my private affairs, but utter ruin threatens me, and other merchants whose estates are in my hands, and I can do nothing till I am freed, and my estate discharged. I beg that the Attorney-General may bring his report, and that I may have relief, being guiltless in the matter of which I am accused. With order thereon that the Attorney-General present his report and opinion to Council.—7 Feb. 1654. [ $\frac{3}{4}$  page.] Annexing,

62. I. Report thereon of the Attorney-General. Markes was charged with uttering false coin in Ireland, and complained to the late Council of State that the Commissioners there had seized his estate on suspicion. They referred the matter to Dr. Gurdon and divers justices of Middlesex, and on their certificate, I was ordered, 10 June last, to proceed in the business; but I found the evidence insufficient, and think he should not be indicted unless there be further evidence, but discharged.—16 Feb. 1654. Order on the above petition and report that the Attorney-General certify whether he has seen what has been certified by the Commissioners for Ireland in the business, and whether there has been any charge from them, or proceedings had thereon. [I. 75, p. 137.]

That the place being useful to secure prisoners, and as a magazine, the 100 men should be paid to 6 March next, and then be reduced to 80, whose pay, with officers, would be 135*l.* 16*s.* a month; 16 of the 80

Feb. 24. 65. Notes of proceedings in the Committee on the Greenland trade.—31 Jan., 7 Feb. and 24 Feb. 1654. [2 pages, partly in shorthand undecyphered.]

Feb. [24.] 66. Reasons assigned by Thos. Horth why divers men ought not to fish in Greenland, in the harbours appointed to the company.

In 1645, on petition of the company, Parliament gave notice to all the ports throughout England, by their burgesses, that all should come in and join the company in guarding the harbours, giving assurance to Parliament to set out yearly a certain proportion of ships. But the trade being hazardous, after 3 months' time given, none came in but York, Hull, and Yarmouth. Urges therefore that no new adventurer of only 2 or 3 years' standing should now be admitted. London, Hull, and Yarmouth have at great cost and loss defended Bell Sound, Horne Sound, Green Harbour, Cross Road, Mettle Bay, and Sir Thos. Smith's Bay, but the late intruders, Warner, Whitwell, &c., have for 2 years only sent into the company's harbours 2 or 3 small vessels, which not only refused to join them to keep out the French and Dutch, but brought in Dutch strangers to manage their stock and adventure, the consequences of which will be most dangerous to English navigation. [1½ pages.]

66. I. Miles Corbet, by order of the Navy Committee, to Mr. Balines [M.P. for Yarmouth]. The Merchant Adventurers of London have petitioned that the Greenland trade will soon be lost by intrusion of the French, Dutch, and Biskeners, unless prevented by Parliament, who referred the petition to the Navy Committee.

Mr. Owner and I, being present when it was discussed, took care that Yarmouth should not be excluded, and other ports will not be, if within 3 months they come in and undertake to set out a proportion of ships of defence yearly, to join with the Londoners to maintain the English right. But the Committee thinks that the trade should be regulated, and that the ships set out should join with the Londoners, both for offence and defence, to prevent the intrusion of foreigners into the English harbours.

See what proportion your town will be tied to yearly, whether as a joint stock or by particular men, and I will take care of it; because unless some sudden course is taken, the trade will be wholly left to strangers.—2 Jan. 1645. [1 page.]

Feb. 24.

67. Reasons by Thos. Horth for furnishing the Greenland adventurers with a competent number of seamen, as they have to fight to defend the harbours, as well as to guard their ships, and must have 50 or 55 men on each ship, of whom 25 or 30 should be able seamen and the rest landmen. Unless these can be secured, their voyage will be overthrown.

The best way to secure them would be to grant warrants for the 25 or 30 men for each ship, but allowing them to rig the State's ships at Deptford and Woolwich till the time for their voyage.

To put on each ship 15 or 20 soldiers, the merchants finding them victuals and wages, so that  $\frac{1}{2}$  the seamen may be spared, and landmen trained for seamen.

If letters of reprisal are granted, let the State have  $\frac{1}{4}$  of what is got, allow the men  $\frac{1}{4}$  above their wages, and the merchants the other  $\frac{1}{2}$  toward expenses. It would be a great encouragement if a frigate or man-of-war could be allowed them for protection. The subscribers should undertake for 3, 4, or 5 years, or else, in case of loss, most will fall off, and the harbours will be unguarded, and the State unsupplied with those commodities. [2 $\frac{3}{4}$  pages.]

Feb. 24. 68. Estimate of ships required to guard and fish in the English harbours in Greenland, viz.: 12 ships of 3,000 tons and 580 men, of which the London company supplies - 1,600 tons.

Feb. 25. 71. Gens. Blake and Penn to the Admiralty Committee. The Sovereign will be ready to receive the lower tier of ordnance when sent down. Your orders to the commanders of the ships northward to make a conjunction with the fleet are very seasonable, having respect to the intelligence that the enemy intend being at sea with 120 sail by the 1st of next month; but we have suspended the recall of the ships from the West, where they do much service, hearing that Beach is yet thereabout. If your next speaks of the treaty as still uncertain, we ask your opinion whether they should be called off.

We hope care will be taken for supplying the fleet with men, of which there is great want. We approve and join in your report to the Lord Protector and Council, about the embargo. It would have been more effectual if ordered sooner, provided the war with the Dutch goes on. We are still here with the main body of the fleet, and our squadron is at its station, and in good condition, the late foul weather notwithstanding. [2 pages.]

- Feb. 28. 77. Petition of Jane, widow of Lieut.-Col. Wolfe, to the Protector. By your appointment my husband went with you to Ireland, and died 6 months after, leaving me with 6 small children in England. Most of his estate was spent in that expedition. I beg that those who hold his estate in Ireland may be ordered to give a good account of it, as I have obtained no benefit thereby, and am void of hope therein. By your procurement, on 22 June 1650, Parliament ordered me 20*s.* a week from Haberdashers' Hall, but I have received nothing since 15 April, when there was a restraint on such pensions without further order. I beg continuance of the pension, or I shall be unable to subsist. With request signed by the Protector that Council grant an order continuing the pension, with arrears.—23 Feb. 1654. [1 sheet.]

- Feb. 28. 78. Petition of the heads of the smaller houses in Oxford University concerned in the augmentations to the Protector. Although we have been at much charge in attendance to procure our augmentations, they are a year in arrears; our places are so poor as not to afford a competent maintenance, and on account of our augmentations, we are debarred the enjoyment of such places of emolument as were formerly allowed. We beg our arrears, and constant payment in future, according to the orders of Parliament. Signed by Paul Hood, Gerard Langbaine, Josua Hoyle, Dan. Greenwood, John Wilkins, Rob. Harris, Th. [Feb. 28.] 80. Like petition to Council, for suspension of the proceedings of the Assessment Committee of London, who threaten to quarter soldiers on them in a day or two. [ $\frac{1}{2}$  page. See 6 Feb. 1654.]

Feb. 28. 81. Order thereon in Council that, forasmuch as the matter in question concerning assessments charged on the petitioners stands referred to a Committee of Council, until the said Committee shall report, and Council give further order, the Assessment Committee shall forbear to quarter soldiers on the petitioners in respect of the said assessment. [Feb. 28.] 82. Petition of Wm. Pym, English merchant, late of St. Malo, and of Nath. Manton, London merchant, in behalf of the Morlaix merchants, to the Protector. Since the last account for relief of distressed English mariners, taken by pirates set out from Brest under commission from the pretended King of Scots, and by the Dutch men-of-war, and sent ashore on the coast of Brittany, whence they seek passage by Morlaix and St. Malo, Pym has spent 150*l.* in their relief, or they must have perished or served the enemy. He has also engaged many to serve the State, and sent them to Cols. Bingham and Hayne, in Guernsey and Jersey. The English merchants in St. Malo have disbursed 800*l.* on this account since 1645, and there are many waiting passage, in great misery. Beg an order for their relief, a course for future supply, and repayment to the merchants out of the Algiers duties. With order thereon 25 Jan. that Council repay past disbursements out of contingency money, and direct some course for relief of the mariners in future. [1 page.] Annexing,

LETTERS and PAPERS relating to the NAVY, &c.

Date.	From	To	Subject.	Refer- ences.
"	Capt. Wm. Coppen, Adam and Eve, Gravesend.	"	Is detained for want of men and there are none to press. Desires the surgeon and carpenter may be hastened down, and when he has procured sufficient men, will sail with all speed.	2
"	Jo. Brewster, Dol- phin at sea.	"	Sends the muster books. Did not lose any men in the engagement on 2 and 3 June, nor had any sufficiently wounded to send them on shore, but since then has had 26 ill with the scurvy.	3
"	John Falkener, Ordnance Office.	Robt. Blackborne.	Will see that Cople, the hoyman now in custody, attends the Admiralty Committee on Saturday morning. Has written Capt. Hatsell to supply the Greyhound at Plymouth with stores.	4
"	Hen. Downeing, Bartho. Cople,	Adm. Com.	Petition for an order for payment of 110 l. due to them for carrying gunners' stores to Yarmouth for the fleet, which was performed at great risk, one of their company having lost his life.	5
"	Jno. Freeman, and Ben. Symonds, hoymen.	Navy Com <sup>rs</sup>	Sends his account of the press, as also receipts of the masters of the scout vessels for 37 l. Has drawn a bill for the amount on the Commissioners for Dutch Prizes. Hopes they will consider his labour about the press and the wounded men, and in making and returning a book to the Council of State of all the seamen's names.	6
"	Barth. Kither, Chat- ham.	"	Desires the usual allowance for Edw. Ridgway, appointed his surgeon in the Half Moon prize, to fit out his chest.	7
"	Comr. Peter Pett, Chatham.	"	As the Marigold is resolved to be dispatched from Queenborough, desires that no money may be sent down until it is arranged where to pay her. It will be prejudicial to turn over her men to another ship, when she will be so soon fitted.	8
"	John Buller, pilot, Faversham.	—	Certificate that Hen. Syball, messenger to the Council of State, impressed the Seaflower of Faversham on 21 June to carry him with letters to the Generals of the fleet on the Flemish coast, but went from place to place to seek them, and did not find them till the 28th.	9
"	Capt. Thos. Wilkes, Swan, The Spurn.	Adm. Com.	Has been plying on the coast, and met several ships, as also the Generals with their fleet bound for Sole Bay; they have left a squadron on the coast of Holland.	10
"	Capt. Wm. Part- ridge, Wildman, Downs.	Navy Com <sup>rs</sup>	Desires the powder and gunners' stores may be hastened from the Tower; when the 7 men arrive from Dover, will put to sea.	11
"	Thos. Scott, Dept- ford.	"	It seems strange that the Foresight at Woolwich, having a captain, master pilot in ordinary, and master's mate, should stay for an extra pilot to carry her to Tilbury Hope. Is going to Woolwich to survey the Elias prize and hasten her away. The Pearl will sail to-day. There is a small attendance of seamen.	12

Date.	From	To	Subject.	Refer- ences.
1653. July 4	John Morris, Graves- end.	Navy Com <sup>rs</sup>	The Mary prize has come up from Chatham to the Hope, but wants a steward. She was with- out provisions; has given a warrant to the clerk of the check for sufficient for 54 men. Asks whether to do the like with other ships in like condition; the Yarmouth pink is ordered out; 4 or 5 seamen have requested to be conveyed to the fleet by the ships with ammunition, but the masters will not take them. Sends muster book of the Unicorn, being employed by the admirals and Capt. Strong as clerk of the check, the place being void. Ask whether the contracts for the Mary ketch and Chase to carry provisions to the fleet are to be renewed, as they have both expired and the ships come in. Desire order to the Navy Treasurer to pay the bill given to Jacob Jacobson for two parcels of hemp bought of him. Particulars of 14 ships named at Woolwich and Deptford	Vol. 56. 13

"	Wm. Greenwood, Yarmouth.	Robt. Blackborne.	Certificate that Jacob Rickard of North Yarmouth, mariner, lost his right arm in the engagement with the Dutch, in the Foresight; that he has a wife and two children and a mother and sister blind, and being now disabled, he and they must perish unless speedily relieved. Petition for the place of boatswain in the Sun prize, having served the State of 7 years. With certificate by Capt. Wm. Kendall in his favour. Capt. Clarke has been in, and sailed again towards the fleet, which is now coming towards the Roads intending for Sole Bay to provide necessities. They have left 20 or 30 frigates on the Holland coast, to observe the enemy's motions. As the officers at Chatham refuse to supply any more ships with junk, and as there is none in the stores, they will be unfurnished, unless order is given to proceed as formerly. Desires if the money allowed for the sick and wounded has been paid to Mr. Odway, formerly his clerk of the check, that it may be converted into necessities to be sent to the ship. Asks an order to Commissioner Powell at Bristol to recruit his chest as surgeon of the Cignet, the crew being very sickly, and ordered for the Irish coast. Certifies that 12 men, 11 volunteers and 1 pressed man, were entered on board the State's ships between 23 June and 4 July. Sends up two muster books. Begs to resign on account of sickness, the steward's absence, and want of opportunity.	21

Date.	From	To	Subject.	Refer- ences.
1653. July 5	Thos. Smith, Dept- ford.	Navy Com <sup>rs</sup>	Has been to Woolwich and encloses a list of the ships he has sent out. As the tar was wasting in the yard by the heat of the sun, has hired a room for it of Capt. Hosier for 10s. a week and taken it for a year. It is by the water side and is 60 feet by 20. The nonpayment of the tickets to seamen who have ventured their lives in the service has caused much discontent: gave them to understand who was the cause of it. Thinks it is carnal policy. The Pearl will sail to night.	Vol. 56. 28
"	Capt. Joshua Wil- son, Victory.	"	Sends two muster books, being the 4th since sailing from Queenborough -	29
"	Capt. Philip Geth- ings, Mathias, Chatham.	"	Asks a warrant for his surgeon, that he may get his chest provided, also the sending down of what seamen can be procured, as he is hastening the fitting out, and will soon be ready to sail.	30
"	Com. Peter Pett, Chatham.	"	The Marigold will sail to-morrow for the Hope, where she ought to be paid. The Gillyflower and Westergun are ready; the victuals ought to be sent down, as the rest of the ships will not be long behind. Has ordered the provisions to be sent to the fleet going to Southwold Bay. Sends a letter from Capt. Kendall, complaining of the want of petty warrant victuals. The soldiers who went to London with the prisoners demand an allowance.	31
"	"	Adm. Com.	Is starting to the fleet at Southwold Bay according to orders received, and will do his best to advance so great a service. Particulars of ships. Encloses account of cordage and anchors sent to the fleet.	32, 33

" 6	Capt. Rich. Suffell, Duchess, Lee Road.	—	Certificate that Geo. Browne is his surgeon, and request that he may have money to recruit his medicine chest.	35
"	Navy Comrs.	Adm. Com.	Desire an order to the master shipwright to fit out the Stork prize to carry ballast and guns to ships, as she is too old and shattered for any other service.	36
"	Capt. Philip Geth- ings, Mathias.	Major Sal- wey.	Mr. Pearse, appointed master of the Mathias, has arrived from Deal, and desires his warrant, as the ship is ready to sail. Has had trouble to keep his men together. Commissioner Pett has gone to the Generals at Sole Bay.	37
"	John Wyles, clerk of the check, Mer- maid, Harwich.	[Navy Comrs.]	Sends 2 muster books and desires one may be sent to the Treasury Office. Will in future send one monthly.	38
"	Wm. Beale and Thos. Alderne, Victual- ling Office.	Adm. Com.	Fear there will be some confusion in the distribution of the victuals amongst the fleet, unless an able person is immediately appointed in the place of Mr. Blundell, the general purser, lately deceased. Have 5 pursers on the place; propose either John Petty and Wm. Addis to succeed him. If the provisions required by Capt. Limbrey are for the fleet, they have already been ordered to be supplied from Ipswich and those parts, and to be sent to Sole Bay. Par- ticulars of 300 tons sent by victualling ships named.	39

"	Thos. Scott, Dept- ford.	"	The Fellowship hulk for Harwich is waiting for men and victuals. Sent a man to procure seamen to refit the Tiger and Falmouth, who found 4, but they refuse to work under 12s. a week, which he supposes will not be allowed, as it would be a bad precedent. Men would not work at sea if they could have such wages on shore.	18
"	Capt. Jno. Tippetts	Fras.	Recommends Mr. Taylor for the place of master joiner, he having already so acted -	19
"	Comr. Peter Pett, Chatham.	Willoughby Adm. Com. "	Capt. Nich. Foster, Phoenix.	Gen. Monk.	Has sent the boats up the river every tide to press men, and has procured 100, but unless a warrant is sent to the Masters and Wardens of Watermen's Hall for impressing those in London, will not procure his complement; when they are paid off, they repair there, and cannot be induced to rejoin until their money is all spent.	21
"	Capt. Wm. Wildey, Ratcliffe.	Adm. Com.	Notwithstanding the seamen of the ships at Woolwich and Deptford have been paid off and ordered again on board, none have appeared, and most have joined the merchant service; unless speedily course is taken for keeping them on board, the ships cannot be fitted out. A boatswain is much required at Woolwich; also a place for stores, as the boatswains of the several ships spend much time in going to Deptford for every trifling article, and under that pretence, idle away their time.	22

"	"	Adm. Com.	The 40 soldiers have arrived from the Tower, but not the 500 seamen, for whom there is a great want, as also of shipwrights, as there are many ships named in hand, and the men in harbour are very neglectful, lying so near alehouses, which ought to be suppressed or searched every morning. Will launch the Half Moon and Paul to-morrow. Note of men entered on board the George and 5 other ships.	107, 108
"	Navy Comrs.	"	The Essex, Bristol, and Little Charity will be ready to sail, on being supplied with commanders and money; the flyboat victualling ships are ready to take in provisions; one of the masters of the ships with masts from Hamburg desires his freight, but they know not the terms of hire. Will observe their order as to paying off the ships; has taken proceedings to check further mutiny amongst the seamen, and the troop has come down. Is in great want of the hulk and provisions. Having lost 700 l. by the Dutch, desires a grant of 2 or 3 of their prizes at Yarmouth, paying their full value; can employ them as a private man-of-war and to fetch masts. Thanks for the allowance granted him for extra service. Asks his influence in procuring him 2 or 3 Dutch prizes.	109
"	Major N. Bourne, Harwich.	"	Has been to Shoreham and Arundel, and provided 200 loads of plank and treenails for building 2 great ships at Portsmouth; desires orders for falling more. The new frigate building at Shoreham is progressing and wants her officers. The Ruby and 4 others are in the Road; the Portland has brought in a prize of 250 tons with wine, &c.	110
"	"	Robt. Blackborne.	The ships that have come in, having been promised money, will now not stir without it, and the absence of their commanders is an obstruction.	111
"	Capt. Fras. Wilmoughby, Portsmouth.	Adm. Com.	Will endeavour to procure 2 or 3 ships to carry the goods for Yarmouth. The tar will cost 33 s. per last, the same as in London; none will meddle with it without a convoy.	112
"	"	Robt. Blackborne, Navy Com <sup>rs</sup>	Convoys some vessels to St. Malo, and found the inhabitants very abusive on account of the Sapphire having taken some of their ships bound for Spain. Cruising near the Land's End, met a frigate of Sebastian bound for Flanders, with bars of silver and pieces of 8 for the Prince of Condé; hearing of some abuse done by her to some English, has brought her in for examination, as also some Newfoundland and other ships he met with at Scilly.	113
"	Wm. Johnson, Newcastle.	"	40 of the East India ships have sailed towards the East; a great Dutch flyboat taken by the Pearl, and a small pink laden with lemons taken by the Ruby, have come in. There are several Brest and other men-of-war towards the Land's End and mouth of the Channel; hopes our ships have cleared them, but there is no news yet of the New England ships with the masts.	114
"	Capt. Rich. Kingman, Plymouth.	"	Sends copy of his warrant from the Commander-in-Chief in Scotland, and desires their further commands.	115

"	Wm. Burton, White- hall.	"	Has given a bill of 307 l. 1 7s. 1 d. for the use of Wm. Bell, in part payment for hemp purchased of him.	119
"	Navy Comrs. -	Adm. Com.	Received their order for paying some seamen of the Tiger who were taken prisoners in Holland 40 s. a piece for the loss of their clothes, but as there are others in like condition, desire a general order respecting them.	120
"	Adm. Com. -	Navy Com <sup>rs</sup>	Order to take care for receiving into the stores 963 barrels of powder and 114 masts shipped from Hamburg 10 Sept. by Rich. Bradshaw, according to his letter, and an invoice of Dan. Hechstetter, inclosed.	121-123
"	Capt. Fras. Wil- loughby, Port- smouth.	Adm. Com.	Desires order as to calling in the ships at St. Helen's, and paying them off; begs that the paymaster may be ordered down. The Elias has come in, her captain and master being wounded in a fight with a French man-of-war of 22 guns, which they have also brought in.	124
"	"	Navy Com <sup>rs</sup>	Sends the dimensions of a new frigate building at Shoreham; also a survey of her made by Mr. Castle; also a survey of cables and anchors in store by Roger Granger and two others. The Victuallers' agents much obstruct business by the non-delivery of beer. There being a rumour of Tromp being in the Channel, 12 of the State's ships have gone out.	125-128
"	"	Adm. Com.	Capt. Howett has sent in a prize, and commanded all the ships at Portsmouth to sail to St. Helen's Road, for young Tromp and his fleet has been seen off the Lizard coming up the Channel; as they sail heavily there are hopes of meeting with them. Note of ships in Portsmouth harbour.	129
"	Capt. Mich. Nutton, Satisfaction, Dart- mouth.	"	While cruising on the coast of Holland, took two busses with fish, but lost them through tem-pestuous weather; hears they were retaken and brought into Scarborough and Yarmouth; also took 2 Frenchmen with fish, and delivered them to the prize officers at Plymouth. Has orders to press men, and then put to sea to seek the Speaker, and observe Capt. Howard's directions.	130

"	Major N. Bourne, Harwich.	Robt. Blackborne	Are paying off the ships which are now waiting for men. The Commissioners are still as silent as to granting him some of the small prizes as they are in other things; hopes the time for his continuance at Harwich will be short, as he is bound to preserve the remainder of his estate. Formerly desired him to remember his brother, Capt. Farning, for one of the fourth-rate frigates building, and wrote the Commissioners thereon, but with little success; shall stop his mouth for the future.	133

1653. Oct. 30	Major N. Bourne, Harwich.	Adm. Com.	Mr. Poortmans, the paymaster, having arrived, will begin paying off the ships, and endeavour to re-engage the men for the ships ordered out. Shall begin with those ships whose men behaved best, and make a difference with the refractory. The Swan has gone to ply between Harwich and the Humber, and to convoy ships from Hull, and then to come up the river to revictual. Asks a copy of the contract for the new frigate building; also a bill of imprest; there is money enough here to answer that and other occasions; there is no hope of satisfying the men without full pay, as they are an unruly generation, and to get the ships manned is difficult to effect. The hulk has arrived at last. Wants a glazier and 3 or 4 pinnaces from 25 to 30 feet long.	Vol. 60. 134

"	Gen. Monk, White-hall.	"	Desires victuals and other necessities sent to the Gillyflower in the Hope	137
"	Thos. Scott, Deptford.	"	Sends a complaint respecting the want of rigging and cordage for the Phoenix, some having been embezzled. Seamen are much wanted for the ships afloat, as nothing is done but to those in dock, which having men on board wages, the paying of them on Saturday night gives much trouble. Is glad there is a master attendant at Woolwich, as it will give him some ease in the fitting of ships. Begs that his own salary may be made equal to that of the former master attendants.	138
"	Admiralty Com.	"	To supply the Tulip with victuals, her carpenter's work being finished	139

"	Jas. Clerk of Boston	"	Has bought 20 tons of Riga hemp at 33 s. a ton ready money, which he will make into cordage of any size at 7 l. a ton. 1653. Nov. 2	Capt. Fras. Wil- loughby, Port- smouth .	Adm. Com.	Most of the ships that were in the harbour have gone to Spithead, and those remaining are in hand. There has been a mutiny amongst the crew of the Portland, which the captain put down by running in amongst them, and putting 14 in the bilboes; 3 or 4 of the worst are to be tried by a council of war. The mariners are generally very unruly until paid, and when they receive their prize money, it will be a rub to their going out.	Vol. 61. 6
"	Prize officers, Prize Office .	Navy Com <sup>rs</sup>	Have received their order for paying 350 l. to the widow of Capt. Jas. Peacock, but before doing so, ask whether they have received any account of the informations against him.	7
"	Lient. Jno. Cuttle, of the Mayflower .	Adm. Com.	Petition for relief for the loss of his left arm in the engagement with the Dutch on 31 July, when the captain was slain. His cure has cost him 40 l. With 2 certificates, 3 and 11 Oct.; order by the Navy Commissioners, 28 Oct., referring him to the governors of the chest at Chatham, and their report, 1 Nov., that they cannot assist him, as neither lieutenants nor captains contribute to the chest.	8-11
"	"	"	Begs they will think of some other way for his relief	12
"	"	"	Give names of 7 merchant ships taken up for the service, and of their captains	13
"	"	"	Has endeavoured to pacify the seamen by a promise of their wages shortly. The Centurion, Ad- vice, and Expedition are already paid off, and progress made with the rest. The Mermaid and Assurance are nearly ready to sail.	14
"	"	Robt. Blackborne.	Returns an order of the Council of State giving him leave to take such Dutch busses brought in as prize as he may require, and desires it may be enlarged to include a flute or two and some boys. They have paid off the Centurion, Advice, and Expedition, and several of the men promise fair, having volunteered again; has an eye on the rest for the first appearance of mutiny; has routed many of the tipping schools, otherwise would have no quiet.	15
"	John Gould, Clap- ham .	Gen. Monk, Westmr.	Sends a letter from the press-masters, declining to release the registrar's clerk, who is messenger of the parish, and who was impressed; desires a note to them to do so.	16
"	Jonas Shish	[Navy Comrs.]	Ask a convoy for 3 boys with timber from Walderswick and Woodbridge. Is promised a great quantity to be felled by Sir Wm. Plater in the spring; there are 300 good timber trees at Newhall fit for long plank.	17

"	Capt. John Taylor, Chatham .	Navy Com <sup>rs</sup>	Asks a warrant to the several builders of ships to put in extra knees or other bindings to enable them the better to bear the weight of their guns, which will be a safety to the ships.	19

"	Navy Comrs.	Adm. Com.	Cannot give a list of the winter guard, never having received one. As the ships in the river and at Chatham want men, have ordered the Marshal of the Admiralty to make proclamation by beat of drum for volunteers, and if that does not procure a sufficient supply, will proceed another way. There have been some consultations at the Trinity House about the service, and the result will be forwarded.	22

Desires orders as to the timber in the forests, as also an order to come to London.	26
"	Navy Comrs.	Adm. Com.	Have perused Capt. Mill's accounts for money expended in impressing men and conveying them to the ships, and find that 136 l. has been paid him, therefore recommend that 68 l. more be allowed him, thus raising his salary to 18 s. a day.	27
"	"	"	Recommend that the salary of their clerk, Mr. Turner, be augmented to 200 l. a year, as it will take off all expectations of gratuities, and a low salary often exposes men to temptations in that kind.	28

Pack, Amity, Harwich.	Navy Com <sup>rs</sup>	Delivered the Zealander he took to the Sub-Commissioners for Prize Goods at Hull, and then sailed for Yarmouth Roads, where he was ordered by Major Burton to proceed to Harwich to refit, and to apply to them for masts and a boat, and also for a survey of the beef and pork on board, which is so bad the men cannot eat it; the remaining provisions are very indifferent. ## CALENDARS OF STATE PAPERS, &c.

[IMPERIAL 8vo., cloth. Price 15s. each Volume or Part.]

As far back as the year 1800, a Committee of the House of Commons recommended that Indexes and Calendars should be made to the Public Records, and thirty-six years afterwards another Committee of the House of Commons reiterated that recommendation in more forcible words; but it was not until the incorporation of the State Paper Office with the Public Record Office that the Master of the Rolls found himself in a position to take the necessary steps for carrying out the wishes of the House of Commons.

On 7 December 1855, he stated to the Lords of the Treasury that although "the Records, State Papers, and Documents in his charge constitute the most complete and perfect series of their kind in the civilized world," and although "they are of the greatest value in a historical and constitutional point of view, yet they are comparatively useless to the public, from the want of proper Calendars and Indexes."

Acting upon the recommendations of the Committees of the House of Commons above referred to, he suggested to the Lords of the Treasury that to effect the object he had in view it would be necessary for him to employ a few Persons fully qualified to perform the work which he contemplated.

Their Lordships assented to the necessity of having Calendars prepared and printed, and empowered the Master of the Rolls to take such steps as might be necessary for this purpose.

The following Works have been already published under the direction of the Master of the Rolls :—

THE CHRONICLES AND MEMORIALS OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND DURING THE MIDDLE AGES.

---

[ROYAL 8vo. half-bound. Price 10s. each Volume or Part.]

On 25 July 1822, the House of Commons presented an address to the Crown, stating that the editions of the works of our ancient historians were inconvenient and defective; that many of their writings still remained in manuscript, and, in some cases, in a single copy only. They added, "that an uniform and convenient edition of the whole, published under His Majesty's royal sanction, would be an undertaking honourable to His Majesty's reign, and conducive to the advancement of historical and constitutional knowledge; that the House therefore humbly besought His Majesty, that He would be graciously pleased to give such directions as His Majesty, in His wisdom, might think fit, for the publication of a complete edition of the ancient historians of this realm, and assured His Majesty that whatever expense might be necessary for this purpose would be made good."

The Master of the Rolls, being very desirous that effect should be given to the resolution of the House of Commons, submitted to Her Majesty's Treasury in 1857 a plan for the publication of the ancient chronicles and memorials of the United Kingdom, and it was adopted accordingly. In selecting these works, it was considered right, in the first instance, to give preference to those of which the manuscripts were unique, or the materials of which would help to fill up blanks in English history for which no satisfactory and authentic information hitherto existed in any accessible form. One great object the Master of the Rolls had in view was to form a corpus historicum within reasonable limits, and which should be as complete as possible. In a subject of so vast a range, it was important that the historical student should be able to select such volumes as conformed with his own peculiar tastes and studies, and not be put to the expense of purchasing the whole collection; an inconvenience inseparable from any other plan than that which has been in this instance adopted.

Of the Chronicles and Memorials, the following volumes have been published. They embrace the period from the earliest time of British history down to the end of the reign of Henry VII.

1. THE CHRONICLE OF ENGLAND, by JOHN CAPGRAVE. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1858.

Capgrave was prior of Lynn, in Norfolk, and provincial of the order of the Friars Hermits of England shortly before the year 1464. His Chronicle extends from the creation of the world to the year 1417. As a record of the language spoken in Norfolk (being written in English), it is of considerable value.

2. CHRONICON MONASTERII DE ABINGDON. Vols. I. and II. Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham, and Vicar of Leighton Buzzard. 1858.

This Chronicle traces the history of the great Benedictine monastery of Abingdon in Berkshire, from its foundation by King Ina of Wessex, to the reign of Richard I., shortly after which period the present narrative was drawn up by an inmate of the establishment. The author had access to the title-deeds of the house; and incorporates into his history various charters of the Saxon kings, of great importance as illustrating not only the history of the locality but that of the kingdom. The work is printed for the first time.

3. LIVES OF EDWARD THE CONFESSOR. I.—La Estoire de Saint Aedward le Rei. II.—Vita Beati Edvardi Regis et Confessoris. III.—Vita Æduardi Regis qui apud Westmonasterium requiescit. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1858.

The first is a poem in Norman French, containing 4,686 lines, addressed to Alianor, Queen of Henry III., and probably written in the year 1245, on the occasion of the restoration of the church of Westminster. Nothing is known of the author. The second is an anonymous poem, containing 536 lines, written between the years 1440 and 1450, by command of Henry VI., to whom it is dedicated. It does not throw any new light on the reign of Edward the Confessor, but is valuable as a specimen of the Latin poetry of the time. The third, also by an anonymous author, was apparently written for Queen Edith, between the years 1066 and 1074, during the pressure of the suffering brought on the Saxons by the Norman conquest. It notices many facts not found in other writers, and some which differ considerably from the usual accounts.

4. MONUMENTA FRANCISCANA ; scilicet, I.—Thomas de Eccleston de Adventu Fratrum Minorum in Angliam. II.—Adæ de Marisco Epistolæ. III.—Registrum Fratrum Minorum Londoniæ. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. 1858.

This volume contains original materials for the history of the settlement of the order of Saint Francis in England, the letters of Adam de Marisco, and other papers connected with the foundation and diffusion of this great body. It has been the aim of the editor to collect whatever historical information could be found in this country, towards illustrating a period of the national history for which only scanty materials exist. None of these have been before printed.

5. FASCICULI ZIZANIORUM MAGISTRI JOHANNIS WYCLIF CUM TRITICO. Ascribed to THOMAS NETTER, of WALDEN, Provincial of the Carmelite Order in England, and Confessor to King Henry the Fifth. Edited by the Rev. W. W. SHIRLEY, M.A., Tutor and late Fellow of Wadham College, Oxford. 1858.

This work derives its principal value from being the only contemporaneous account of the rise of the Lollards. When written the disputes of the school-men had been extended to the field of theology, and they appear both in the writings of Wycliff and in those of his adversaries. Wycliff's little bundles of tares are not less metaphysical than theological, and the conflict between Nominalists and Realists rages side by side with the conflict between the different interpreters of Scripture. The work gives a good idea of the controversies at the end of the 14th and the beginning of the 15th centuries.

6. THE BUIK OF THE CRONICLIS OF SCOTLAND ; or, A Metrical Version of the History of Hector Boece ; by WILLIAM STEWART. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by W. B. TURNBULL, Esq., of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law. 1858.

This is a metrical translation of a Latin Prose Chronicle, and was written in the first half of the 16th century. The narrative begins with the earliest legends, and ends with the death of James I. of Scotland, and the "evil ending of the traitors that slew him." Strict accuracy of statement is not to be looked for in such a work as this ; but the stories of the colonization of Spain, Ireland, and Scotland are interesting if not true ; and the chronicle is valuable as a reflection of the manners, sentiments, and character of the age in which it was composed. The peculiarities of the Scottish dialect are well illustrated in this metrical version, and the student of language will find ample materials for comparison with the English dialects of the same period, and with modern lowland Scotch.

7. JOHANNIS CAPGRAVE LIBER DE ILLUSTRIBUS HENRICIS. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1858.

This work is dedicated to Henry VI. of England, who appears to have been, in the author's estimation, the greatest of all the Henries. It is divided into three distinct parts, each having its own separate dedication. The first part relates only to the history of the Empire, and extends from the election of Henry I., the Fowler, to the end of the reign of the Emperor Henry VI. The second part is devoted to English history, and extends from the accession of Henry I. in the year 1100, to the year 1446, which was the twenty-fourth year of the reign of King Henry VI. The third part contains the lives of illustrious men who have borne the name of Henry in various parts of the world.

Capgrave was born in 1393, in the reign of Richard II., and lived during the Wars of the Roses, for the history of which period his work is of some value.

8. HISTORIA MONASTERII S. AUGUSTINI CANTUARIENSIS, by THOMAS OF ELMHAM, formerly Monk and Treasurer of that Foundation. Edited by CHARLES HARDWICK, M.A., Fellow of St. Catharine's Hall, and Christian Advocate in the University of Cambridge. 1858.

This history extends from the arrival of St. Augustine in Kent until 1191. Prefixed is a chronology as far as 1418, which shows in outline what was to have been the character of the work when completed. The only copy known is in the possession of Trinity Hall, Cambridge. The author was connected with Norfolk, and most probably with Elmham, whence he derived his name.

9. EULOGIUM (HISTORIARUM SIVE TEMPORIS) : Chronicon ab Orbe condito usque ad Annum Domini 1366 ; a Monacho quodam Malmesbiriensi exaratum. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by F. S. HAYDON, Esq., B.A. 1858-1863.

This is a Latin Chronicle extending from the Creation to the latter part of the reign of Edward III., and written by a monk of the Abbey of Malmesbury, in Wiltshire, about the year 1367. A continuation, carrying the history of England down to the year 1413, was added in the former half of the fifteenth century by an author whose name is not known. The original Chronicle is divided into five books, and contains a history of the world generally, but more especially of England to the year 1366. The continuation extends the history down to the coronation of Henry V. The Eulogium itself is chiefly valuable as containing a history, by a contemporary, of the period between 1356 and 1366. The notices of events appear to have been written very soon after their occurrence. Among other interesting matter, the Chronicle contains a diary of the Poitiers campaign, evidently furnished by some person who accompanied the army of the Black Prince. The continuation of the Chronicle is also the work of a contemporary, and gives a very interesting account of the reigns of Richard II. and Henry IV. It is believed to be the earliest authority for the statement that the latter monarch died in the Jerusalem Chamber at Westminster.

10. MEMORIALS OF HENRY THE SEVENTH: Bernardi Andreæ Tholosatis Vita Regis Henrici Septimi; necnon alia quædam ad eundem Regem spectantia. Edited by JAMES GAIRDNER, Esq. 1858.

The contents of this volume are—(1) a life of Henry VII., by his poet laureate and historiographer, Bernard André, of Toulouse, with some compositions in verse, of which he is supposed to have been the author; (2) the journals of Roger Machado during certain embassies on which he was sent by Henry VII. to Spain and Brittany, the first of which had reference to the marriage of the King's son, Arthur, with Catharine of Arragon; (3) two curious reports by envoys sent to Spain in the year 1505 touching the succession to the Crown of Castile, and a project of marriage between Henry VII. and the Queen of Naples; and (4) an account of Philip of Castile's reception in England in 1506. Other documents of interest in connexion with the period are given in an appendix.

11. MEMORIALS OF HENRY THE FIFTH. I.—Vita Henrici Quinti, Roberto Redmanno auctore. II.—Versus Rhythmici in laudem Regis Henrici Quinti. III.—Elmhami Liber Metricus de Henrico V. Edited by CHARLES A. COLE, Esq. 1858.

This volume contains three treatises which more or less illustrate the history of the reign of Henry V., viz.: A Life by Robert Redman; a Metrical Chronicle by Thomas Elmham, prior of Lenton, a contemporary author; Versus Rhythmici written apparently by a monk of Westminster Abbey, who was also a contemporary of Henry V. These works are printed for the first time.

12. MUNIMENTA GILDHALLÆ LONDONIENSIS; Liber Albus, Liber Custumarum, et Liber Horn, in archivis Gildhallæ asservati. Vol. I., Liber Albus. Vol. II. (in Two Parts), Liber Custumarum. Vol. III. Translation of the Anglo-Norman Passages in Liber Albus, Glossaries, Appendices, and Index. Edited by HENRY THOMAS RILEY, Esq., M.A., Barrister-at-Law. 1859–1862.

The manuscript of the Liber Albus, compiled by John Carpenter, Common Clerk of the City of London in the year 1419, a large folio volume, is preserved in the Record Room of the City of London. It gives an account of the laws, regulations, and institutions of that City in the twelfth, thirteenth, fourteenth, and early part of the fifteenth centuries.

The Liber Custumarum was compiled probably by various hands in the early part of the fourteenth century during the reign of Edward II. The manuscript, a folio volume, is also preserved in the Record Room of the City of London, though some portion in its original state, borrowed from the City in the reign of Queen Elizabeth and never returned, forms part of the Cottonian MS. Claudius D. II. in the British Museum. It also gives an account of the laws, regulations, and institutions of the City of London in the twelfth, thirteenth, and early part of the fourteenth centuries.

13. CHRONICA JOHANNIS DE OXENEDES. Edited by Sir HENRY ELLIS, K.H. 1859.

Although this Chronicle tells of the arrival of Hengist and Horsa in England in the year 449, yet it substantially begins with the reign of King Alfred, and comes down to the year 1292, where it ends abruptly. The history is particularly valuable for notices of events in the eastern portions of the kingdom, which are not to be elsewhere obtained, and some curious facts are mentioned relative to the floods in that part of England, which are confirmed in the Friesland Chronicle of Anthony Heinrich, pastor of the Island of Mohr.

14. A COLLECTION OF POLITICAL POEMS AND SONGS RELATING TO ENGLISH HISTORY, FROM THE ACCESSION OF EDWARD III. TO THE REIGN OF HENRY VIII. Vols. I. and II. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A. 1859-1861.

These Poems are perhaps the most interesting of all the historical writings of the period, though they cannot be relied on for accuracy of statement. They are various in character; some are upon religious subjects, some may be called satires, and some give no more than a court scandal; but as a whole they present a very fair picture of society, and of the relations of the different classes to one another. The period comprised is in itself interesting, and brings us, through the decline of the feudal system, to the beginning of our modern history. The songs in old English are of considerable value to the philologist.

15. The "OPUS TERTIUM," "OPUS MINUS," &c., of ROGER BACON. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. 1859.

This is the celebrated treatise—never before printed—so frequently referred to by the great philosopher in his works. It contains the fullest details we possess of the life and labours of Roger Bacon: also a fragment by the same author, supposed to be unique, the "Compendium Studii Theologie."

16. BARTHOLOMÆI DE COTTON, MONACHI NORWICENSIS, HISTORIA ANGlicana; 449-1298: necnon ejusdem Liber de Archiepiscopis et Episcopis Angliæ. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1859.

The author, a monk of Norwich, has here given us a Chronicle of England from the arrival of the Saxons in 449 to the year 1298, in or about which year it appears that he died. The latter portion of this history (the whole of the reign of Edward I. more especially) is of great value, as the writer was contemporary with the events which he records. An Appendix contains several illustrative documents connected with the previous narrative.

17. BRUT Y TYWYSGOGION; or, The Chronicle of the Princes of Wales. Edited by the Rev. JOHN WILLIAMS AB ITHEL, M.A. 1860.

This work, also known as "The Chronicle of the Princes of Wales," has been attributed to Caradoc of Llancarvan, who flourished about the middle of the twelfth century. It is written in the ancient Welsh language, begins with the abdication and death of Caedwala at Rome, in the year 681, and continues the history down to the subjugation of Wales by Edward I., about the year 1282.

18. A COLLECTION OF ROYAL AND HISTORICAL LETTERS DURING THE REIGN OF HENRY IV. 1399-1404. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1860.

This volume, like all the others in the series containing a miscellaneous selection of letters, is valuable on account of the light it throws upon biographical history, and the familiar view it presents of characters, manners, and events. The period requires much elucidation; to which it will materially contribute.

19. THE REPRESSOR OF OVER MUCH BLAMING OF THE CLERGY. By REGINALD PECOCK, sometime Bishop of Chichester. Vols. I. and II. Edited by CHURCHILL BABINGTON, B.D., Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1860.

The "Repressor" may be considered the earliest piece of good theological disquisition of which our English prose literature can boast. The author was born about the end of the fourteenth century, consecrated Bishop of St. Asaph in the year 1444, and translated to the see of Chichester in 1450. While Bishop of St. Asaph, he zealously defended his brother prelates from the attacks of those who censured the bishops for their neglect of duty. He maintained that it was no part of a bishop's functions to appear in the pulpit, and that his time might be more profitably spent, and his dignity better maintained, in the performance of works of a higher character. Among those who thought differently were the Lollards, and against their general doctrines the "Repressor" is directed. Pecock took up a position midway between that of the Roman Church and that of the modern Anglican Church; but his work is interesting chiefly because it gives a full account of the views of the Lollards and of the arguments by which they were supported, and because it assists us to ascertain the state of feeling which ultimately led to the Reformation. Apart from religious matters, the light thrown upon contemporaneous history is very small, but the "Repressor" has great value for the philologist, as it tells us what were the characteristics of the language in use among the cultivated Englishmen of the fifteenth century. Pecock, though an opponent of the Lollards, showed a certain spirit of toleration, for which he received, towards the end of his life, the usual mediæval reward—persecution.

20. ANNALES CAMBRIÆ. Edited by the Rev. JOHN WILLIAMS AB ITHEL, M.A. 1860.

These annals, which are in Latin, commence in the year 447, and come down to the year 1288. The earlier portion appears to be taken from an Irish Chronicle, which was also used by Tigernach, and by the compiler of the Annals of Ulster. During its first century it contains scarcely anything relating to Britain, the earliest direct concurrence with English history is relative to the mission of Augustine. Its notices throughout, though brief, are valuable. The annals were probably written at St. Davids, by Blegewryd, Archdeacon of Llandaff, the most learned man in his day in all Cymru.

21. THE WORKS OF GIRALDUS CAMBRENSIS. Vols. I., II., III., and IV. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. Vols. V., VI., and VII. Edited by the Rev. JAMES F. DIMOCK, M.A., Rector of Barnburgh, Yorkshire. 1861-1877.

These volumes contain the historical works of Gerald du Barry, who lived in the reigns of Henry II., Richard I., and John, and attempted to re-establish the independence of Wales by restoring the see of St. Davids to its ancient primacy. His works are of a very miscellaneous nature, both in prose and verse, and are remarkable chiefly for the racy and original anecdotes which they contain relating to contemporaries. He is the only Welsh writer of any importance who has contributed so much to the mediæval literature of this country, or assumed, in consequence of his nationality, so free and independent a tone. His frequent travels in Italy, in France, in Ireland, and in Wales, gave him opportunities for observation which did not generally fall to the lot of mediæval writers in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, and of these observations Giraldus has made due use. Only extracts from these treatises have been printed before, and almost all of them are taken from unique manuscripts.

The Topographia Hibernica (in Vol. V.) is the result of Giraldus' two visits to Ireland. The first in the year 1183, the second in 1185-6, when he accompanied Prince John into that country. Curious as this treatise is, Mr. Dimock is of opinion that it ought not to be accepted as sober truthful history, for Giraldus himself states that truth was not his main object, and that he compiled the work for the purpose of sounding the praises of Henry the Second. Elsewhere, however, he declares that he had stated nothing in the Topographia of the truth of which he was not well assured, either by his own eyesight or by the testimony, with all diligence elicited, of the most trustworthy and authentic men in the country; that though he did not put just the same full faith in their reports as in what he had himself seen, yet, as they only related what they had themselves seen, he could not but believe such credible witnesses. A very interesting portion of this treatise is devoted to the animals of Ireland. It shows that he was a very accurate and acute observer, and his descriptions are given in a way that a scientific naturalist of the present day could hardly improve upon. The Expugnatio Hibernica was written about the year 1188 and may be regarded rather as a great epic than a sober relation of acts occurring in his own days. No one can peruse it without coming to the conclusion that it is rather a poetical fiction than a prosaic truthful history.

Vol. VI. contains the Itinerarium Kambriæ et Descriptio Kambriæ: and Vol. VII., the lives of S. Remigius and S. Hugh.

22. LETTERS AND PAPERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE WARS OF THE ENGLISH IN FRANCE DURING THE REIGN OF HENRY THE SIXTH, KING OF ENGLAND. Vol. I., and Vol. II. (in Two Parts). Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham, and Vicar of Leighton Buzzard. 1861-1864.

The letters and papers contained in these volumes are derived chiefly from originals or contemporary copies extant in the Bibliothèque Impériale, and the Dépôt des Archives, in Paris. They illustrate the line of policy adopted by John Duke of Bedford and his successors during their government of Normandy, and such other provinces of France as had been acquired by Henry V. We may here trace, step by step, the gradual declension of the English power, until we are prepared to read of its final overthrow.

23. THE ANGLO-SAXON CHRONICLE, ACCORDING TO THE SEVERAL ORIGINAL AUTHORITIES. Vol. I., Original Texts. Vol. II., Translation. Edited and translated by BENJAMIN THORPE, Esq., Member of the Royal Academy of Sciences at Munich, and of the Society of Netherlandish Literature at Leyden. 1861.

This Chronicle, extending from the earliest history of Britain to the year 1154, is justly the boast of England; for no other nation can produce any history, written in its own vernacular, at all approaching it, either in antiquity, truthfulness, or extent, the historical books of the Bible alone excepted. There are at present six independent manuscripts of the Saxon Chronicle, ending in different years, and written in different parts of the country. In this edition, the text of each manuscript is printed in columns on the same page, so that the student may see at a glance the various changes which occur in orthography, whether arising from locality or age.

24. LETTERS AND PAPERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE REIGNS OF RICHARD III. AND HENRY VII. Vols. I. and II. Edited by JAMES GAIRDNER, Esq. 1861-1863.

The Papers are derived from MSS. in the Public Record Office, the British Museum, and other repositories. The period to which they refer is unusually destitute of chronicles and other sources of historical information, so that the light obtained from these documents is of special importance. The principal contents of the volumes are some diplomatic Papers of Richard III.; correspondence between Henry VII. and Ferdinand and Isabella of Spain; documents relating to Edmund de la Pole, Earl of Suffolk; and a portion of the correspondence of James IV. of Scotland.

25. LETTERS OF BISHOP GROSSETESTE, illustrative of the Social Condition of his Time. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1861.

The Letters of Robert Grosseteste (131 in number) are here collected from various sources, and a large portion of them is printed for the first time. They range in date from about 1210 to 1253, and relate to various matters connected not only with the political history of England during the reign of Henry III., but with its ecclesiastical condition. They refer especially to the diocese of Lincoln, of which Grosseteste was bishop.

26. DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE OF MANUSCRIPTS RELATING TO THE HISTORY OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND. Vol. I. (in Two Parts); Anterior to the Norman Invasion. Vol. II.; 1066-1200. Vol. III.; 1200-1327. By Sir THOMAS DUFFUS HARDY, D.C.L., Deputy Keeper of the Public Records. 1862-1871.

The object of this work is to publish notices of all known sources of British history, both printed and unprinted, in one continued sequence. The materials, when historical (as distinguished from biographical), are arranged under the year in which the latest event is recorded in the chronicle or history, and not under the period in which its author, real or supposed, flourished. Biographies are enumerated under the year in which the person commemorated died, and not under the year in which the life was written. This arrangement has two advantages; the materials for any given period may be seen at a glance; and if the reader knows the time when an author wrote, and the number of years that had elapsed between the date of the events and the time the writer flourished, he will generally be enabled to form a fair estimate of the comparative value of the narrative itself. A brief analysis of each work has been added when deserving it, in which the original portions are distinguished from those which are mere compilations. When possible, the sources are indicated from which such compilations have been derived. A biographical sketch of the author of each piece has been added, and a brief notice has also been given of such British authors as have written on historical subjects.

27. ROYAL AND OTHER HISTORICAL LETTERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE REIGN OF HENRY III. Vol. I., 1216-1235. Vol. II., 1236-1272. Selected and edited by the Rev. W. W. SHIRLEY, D.D., Regius Professor in Ecclesiastical History, and Canon of Christ Church, Oxford. 1862-1866.

The letters contained in these volumes are derived chiefly from the ancient correspondence formerly in the Tower of London, and now in the Public Record Office. They illustrate the political history of England during the growth of its liberties, and throw considerable light upon the personal history of Simon de Montfort. The affairs of France form the subject of many of them, especially in regard to the province of Gascony. The entire collection consists of nearly 700 documents, the greater portion of which is printed for the first time.

28. CHRONICA MONASTERII S. ALBANI.—1. THOMÆ WALSINGHAM HISTORIA ANGLICANA; Vol. I., 1272-1381: Vol. II., 1381-1422. 2. WILLELMI RISHANGER CHRONICA ET ANNALES, 1259-1307. 3. JOHANNIS DE TROKELowe ET HENRICI DE BLANEFORDE CHRONICA ET ANNALES, 1259-1296; 1307-1324; 1392-1406. 4. GESTA ABBATUM MONASTERII S. ALBANI, A THOMÆ WALSINGHAM, REGNANTE RICARDO SECUNDO, EJUSDEM ECCLESIE PRÆCENTORE, COMPILATA; Vol. I., 793-1290: Vol. II., 1290-1349: Vol. III., 1349-1411. 5. JOHANNIS AMUNDESHAM, MONACHI MONASTERII S. ALBANI, UT VIDETUR, ANNALES; Vols. I. and II. 6. REGISTRA QUORUNDAM ABBATUM MONASTERII S. ALBANI, QUI SÆCULO XV<sup>MO</sup> FLORUERE; Vol. I., REGISTRUM ABBATIS JOHANNIS WHETHAMSTEDE, ABBATIS MONASTERII SANCTI ALBANI, ITERUM SUSCEPTÆ; ROBERTO BLAKENEY, CAPELLANO, QUONDAM ADSRIPTUM: Vol. II., REGISTRA JOHANNIS WHETHAMSTEDE, WILLELMI ALBON, ET WILLELMI WALINGFORDE, ABBATUM MONASTERII SANCTI ALBANI, CUM APPENDICE, CONTINENTE QUASDAM EPISTOLAS, A JOHANNES WHETHAMSTEDE CONSCRIPTAS. 7. YPODIGMA NEUSTRIÆ, A THOMÆ WALSINGHAM, QUONDAM MONACHO MONASTERII S. ALBANI, CONSCRIPTUM. Edited by HENRY THOMAS RILEY, Esq., M.A., Cambridge and Oxford; and of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law. 1863-1876.

In the first two volumes is a History of England, from the death of Henry III. to the death of Henry V., by Thomas Walsingham, Precentor of St. Albans, from MS. VII. in the Arundel Collection in the College of Arms, London, a manuscript of the fifteenth century, collated with MS. 13 E. IX. in the King's Library in the British Museum, and MS. VII. in the Parker Collection of Manuscripts at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

In the third volume is a Chronicle of English History, attributed to William Rishanger, who lived in the reign of Edward I., from the Cotton. MS. Faustina B. IX. in the British Museum, collated with MS. 14 C. VII. (fols. 219-231) in the King's Library, British Museum, and the Cotton MS. Claudius E. III., fols. 306-331: an account of transactions attending the award of the kingdom of Scotland to John Balliol, 1291-1292, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI., also attributed to William Rishanger, but on no sufficient ground: a short Chronicle of English History, 1292 to 1300, by an unknown hand, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: a short Chronicle, Willelmi Rishanger Gesta Edwardi Primi, Regis Angliæ, from MS. 14 C. I. in the Royal Library, and MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI., with Annales Regum Angliæ, probably by the same hand: and fragments of three Chronicles of English History, 1285 to 1307.

In the fourth volume is a Chronicle of English History, 1259 to 1296, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: Annals of Edward II., 1307 to 1323, by John de Trokelowe, a monk of St. Albans, and a continuation of Trokelowe's Annals, 1323, 1324, by Henry de Blanford, both from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: a full Chronicle of English History, 1392 to 1406, from MS. VII. in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge; and an account of the Benefactors of St. Albans, written in the early part of the fifteenth century, from MS. VI. in the same Library.

The fifth, sixth, and seventh volumes contain a history of the Abbots of St. Albans, 793 to 1411, mainly compiled by Thomas Walsingham, from MS. Cotton. Claudius E. IV., in the British Museum: with a Continuation, from the closing pages of Parker MS. VII., in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

The eighth and ninth volumes, in continuation of the Annals, contain a Chronicle, probably by John Amundesham, a monk of St. Albans.

The tenth and eleventh volumes relate especially to the acts and proceedings of Abbots Whethamstede, Albon, and Wallingford, and may be considered as a memorial of the chief historical and domestic events during those periods.

The twelfth volume contains a compendious History of England to the reign of Henry V., and of Normandy in early times, also by Thomas Walsingham, and dedicated to Henry V. The compiler has often substituted other authorities in place of those consulted in the preparation of his larger work.

29. CHRONICON ABBATIE EVESHAMENSIS, AUCTORIBUS DOMINICO PRIORE EVESHAMLE ET THOMA DE MARLEBERGE ABBATE, A FUNDATIONE AD ANNUM 1213, UNA CUM CONTINUATIONE AD ANNUM 1418. Edited by the Rev. W. D. MACRAY, M.A., Bodleian Library, Oxford. 1863.

The Chronicle of Evesham illustrates the history of that important monastery from its foundation by Egwin, about 690, to the year 1418. Its chief feature is an autobiography, which makes us acquainted with the inner daily life of a great abbey, such as but rarely has been recorded. Interspersed are many notices of general, personal, and local history which will be read with much interest. This work exists in a single MS., and is for the first time printed.

30. RICARDI DE CIRENCESTRIA SPECULUM HISTORIALE DE GESTIS REGUM ANGLIÆ. Vol. I., 447-871. Vol. II., 872-1066. Edited by JOHN E. B. MAYOR, M.A., Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1863-1869.

The compiler, Richard of Cirencester, was a monk of Westminster, 1355-1400. In 1391 he obtained a licence to make a pilgrimage to Rome. His history, in four books, extends from 447 to 1066. He announces his intention of continuing it, but there is no evidence that he completed any more. This chronicle gives many charters in favour of Westminster Abbey, and a very full account of the lives and miracles of the saints, especially of Edward the Confessor, whose reign occupies the fourth book. A treatise on the Coronation, by William of Sudbury, a monk of Westminster, fills book iii. c. 3. It was on this author that C. J. Bertram fathered his forgery, De Situ Britannia, in 1747.

31. YEAR BOOKS OF THE REIGN OF EDWARD THE FIRST. Years 20-21, 21-22, 30-31, 32-33, and 33-35. Edited and translated by ALFRED JOHN HORWOOD, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law. 1863-1879.

The volumes known as the "Year Books" contain reports in Norman-French of cases argued and decided in the Courts of Common Law. They may be considered to a great extent as the "lex non scripta" of England, and have been held in the highest veneration by the ancient sages of the law, and were received by them as the repositories of the first recorded judgments and dicta of the great legal luminaries of past ages. They are also worthy of the attention of the general reader on account of the historical information and the notices of public and private persons which they contain, as well as the light which they throw on ancient manners and customs.

32. NARRATIVES OF THE EXPULSION OF THE ENGLISH FROM NORMANDY, 1449-1450.—Robertus Blondelli de Reductione Normanniæ: Le Recouvrement de Normendie, par Berry, Hérault du Roy: Conférences between the Ambassadors of France and England. Edited, from MSS. in the Imperial Library at Paris, by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham. 1863.

This volume contains the narrative of an eye-witness who details with considerable power and minuteness the circumstances which attended the final expulsion of the English from Normandy in the year 1450. The history commences with the infringement of the truce by the capture of Fougères, and ends with the battle of Formigny and the embarkation of the Duke of Somerset. The whole period embraced is less than two years.

33. HISTORIA ET CARTULARIUM MONASTERII S. PETRI GLOUCESTRIÆ. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by W. H. HART, Esq., F.S.A., Membre correspondant de la Société des Antiquaires de Normandie. 1863-1867.

This work consists of two parts, the History and the Cartulary of the Monastery of St. Peter, Gloucester. The history furnishes an account of the monastery from its foundation, in the year 681, to the early part of the reign of Richard II., together with a calendar of donations and benefactions. It treats principally of the affairs of the monastery, but occasionally matters of general history are introduced. Its authorship has generally been assigned to Walter Froucester, the twentieth abbot, but without any foundation.

34. ALEXANDRI NECKAM DE NATURIS RERUM LIBRI DUO; with NECKAM'S POEM, DE LAUDIBUS DIVINÆ SAPIENTIÆ. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A. 1863.

Neckam was a man who devoted himself to science, such as it was in the twelfth century. In the "De Naturis Rerum" are to be found what may be called the rudiments of many sciences mixed up with much error and ignorance. Neckam was not thought infallible, even by his contemporaries, for Roger Bacon remarks of him, "this Alexander in many things wrote what was true and useful; "but he neither can nor ought by just title to be reckoned among authorities." Neckam, however, had sufficient independence of thought to differ from some of the schoolmen who in his time considered themselves the only judges of literature. He had his own views in morals, and in giving us a glimpse of them, as well as of his other opinions, he throws much light upon the manners, customs, and general tone of thought prevalent in the twelfth century. The poem entitled "De Laudibus Divinæ Sapientiæ" appears to be a metrical paraphrase or abridgment of the "De Naturis Rerum." It is written in the elegiac metre; and though there are many lines which violate classical rules, it is, as a whole above the ordinary standard of mediæval Latin.

35. LEECHDOMS, WORTCUNNING, AND STARCRAFT OF EARLY ENGLAND; being a Collection of Documents illustrating the History of Science in this Country before the Norman Conquest. Vols. I., II., and III. Collected and edited by the Rev. T. OSWALD COCKAYNE, M.A., of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1864-1866.

This work illustrates not only the history of science, but the history of superstition. In addition to the information bearing directly upon the medical skill and medical faith of the times, there are many passages which incidentally throw light upon the general mode of life and ordinary diet. The volumes are interesting not only in their scientific, but also in their social aspect. The manuscripts from which they have been printed are valuable to the Anglo-Saxon scholar for the illustrations they afford of Anglo-Saxon orthography.

36. ANNALES MONASTICI. Vol. I.:—Annales de Margan, 1066-1232; Annales de Theokesberia, 1066-1263; Annales de Burton, 1004-1263. Vol. II.:—Annales Monasterii de Wintonia, 519-1277; Annales Monasterii de Waverleia, 1-1291. Vol. III.:—Annales Prioratus de Dunstaplia, 1-1297. Annales Monasterii de Bermundeseia 1042-

1432. Vol. IV.:—Annales Monasterii de Oseneia, 1016–1347; Chronicon vulgo dictum Chronicon Thomæ Wykes, 1066–1289; Annales Prioratus de Wigornia, 1–1377. Vol. V.:—Index and Glossary. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, and Registry of the University, Cambridge. 1864–1869.

The present collection of Monastic Annals embraces all the more important chronicles compiled in religious houses in England during the thirteenth century. These distinct works are ten in number. The extreme period which they embrace ranges from the year 1 to 1432, although they refer more especially to the reigns of John, Henry III., and Edward I. Some of these narratives have already appeared in print, but others are printed for the first time.

37. MAGNA VITA S. HUGONIS EPISCOPI LINCOLNIENSIS. From Manuscripts in the Bodleian Library, Oxford, and the Imperial Library, Paris. Edited by the Rev. JAMES F. DIMOCK, M.A., Rector of Barnburgh, Yorkshire. 1864.

This work contains a number of very curious and interesting incidents, and being the work of a contemporary, is very valuable, not only as a truthful biography of a celebrated ecclesiastic, but as the work of a man, who, from personal knowledge, gives notices of passing events, as well as of individuals who were then taking active part in public affairs. The author, in all probability, was Adam Abbot of Evesham. He was domestic chaplain and private confessor of Bishop Hugh, and in these capacities was admitted to the closest intimacy. Bishop Hugh was Prior of Witham for 11 years before he became Bishop of Lincoln. His consecration took place on the 21st September 1186; he died on the 16th of November 1200; and was canonized in 1220.

38. CHRONICLES AND MEMORIALS OF THE REIGN OF RICHARD THE FIRST. Vol. I.:—ITINERARIUM PEREGRINORUM ET GESTA REGIS RICARDI. Vol. II.:—EPISTOLÆ CANTUARIENSES; the Letters of the Prior and Convent of Christ Church, Canterbury; 1187 to 1199. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Vicar of Navestock, Essex, and Lambeth Librarian. 1864–1865.

The authorship of the Chronicle in Vol. I., hitherto ascribed to Geoffrey Vinesauf, is now more correctly ascribed to Richard, Canon of the Holy Trinity of London. The narrative extends from 1187 to 1199; but its chief interest consists in the minute and authentic narrative which it furnishes of the exploits of Richard I., from his departure from England in December 1189 to his death in 1199. The author states in his prologue that he was an eye-witness of much that he records; and various incidental circumstances which occur in the course of the narrative confirm this assertion.

The letters in Vol. II., written between 1187 and 1199, are of value as furnishing authentic materials for the history of the ecclesiastical condition of England during the reign of Richard I. They had their origin in a dispute which arose from the attempts of Baldwin and Hubert, archbishops of Canterbury, to found a college of secular canons, a project which gave great umbrage to the monks of Canterbury, who saw in it a design to supplant them in their function of metropolitan chapter. These letters are printed, for the first time, from a MS. belonging to the archiepiscopal library at Lambeth.

39. RECUEIL DES CRONIKES ET ANCHIENNES ISTORIES DE LA GRANT BRETAGNE A PRESENT NOMME ENGLETERRE, par JEHAN DE WAURIN. Vol. I. Albina to 688. Vol. II., 1399–1422. Vol. III., 1422–1431. Edited by WILLIAM HARDY, Esq., F.S.A. 1864–1879.
40. A COLLECTION OF THE CHRONICLES AND ANCIENT HISTORIES OF GREAT BRITAIN, NOW CALLED ENGLAND, by JOHN DE WAURIN. Albina to 688 (Translation of the preceding Vol. I.) Edited and translated by WILLIAM HARDY, Esq., F.S.A. 1864.

This curious chronicle extends from the fabulous period of history down to the return of Edward IV. to England in the year 1471, after the second deposition of Henry VI. The manuscript from which the text of the work is taken is preserved in the Imperial Library at Paris, and is believed to be the only complete and nearly contemporary copy in existence. The work, as originally bound, was comprised in six volumes, since rebound in morocco in 12 volumes, folio maximo, vellum, and is illustrated with exquisite miniatures, vignettes, and initial letters. It was written towards the end of the fifteenth century, having been expressly executed for Louis de Bruges, Seigneur de la Gruthuyse and Earl of Winchester, from whose cabinet it passed into the library of Louis XII. at Blois.

41. POLYCHRONICON RANULPHI HIGDEN, with Trevisa's Translation. Vols. I. and II. Edited by CHURCHILL BABINGTON, B.D., Senior Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. Vols. III., IV., V., and VI. Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH RAWSON LUMBY, B.D., Vicar of St. Edward's, Fellow of St. Catharine's College, and late Fellow of Magdalene College, Cambridge. 1865-1876.

This is one of the many mediæval chronicles which assume the character of a history of the world. It begins with the creation, and is brought down to the author's own time, the reign of Edward III. Prefixed to the historical portion, is a chapter devoted to geography, in which is given a description of every known land. To say that the Polychronicon was written in the fourteenth century is to say that it is not free from inaccuracies. It has, however, a value apart from its intrinsic merits. It enables us to form a very fair estimate of the knowledge of history and geography which well-informed readers of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries possessed, for it was then the standard work on general history.

The two English translations, which are printed with the original Latin, afford interesting illustrations of the gradual change of our language, for one was made in the fourteenth century, the other in the fifteenth. The differences between Trevisa's version and that of the unknown writer are often considerable.

42. LE LIVRE DE REIS DE BRITTANIE E LE LIVRE DE REIS DE ENGLETERE. Edited by JOHN GLOVER, M.A., Vicar of Brading, Isle of Wight, formerly Librarian of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1865.

These two treatises, though they cannot rank as independent narratives, are nevertheless valuable as careful abstracts of previous historians, especially "Le Livre de Reis de Engleterre." Some various readings are given which are interesting to the philologist as instances of semi-Saxonized French.

It is supposed that Peter of Ickham must have been the author, but no certain conclusion on that point has been arrived at.

43. CHRONICA MONASTERII DE MELSA, AB ANNO 1150 USQUE AD ANNUM 1406. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by EDWARD AUGUSTUS BOND, Esq., Assistant Keeper of the Manuscripts, and Egerton Librarian, British Museum. 1866-1868.

The Abbey of Meaux was a Cistercian house, and the work of its abbot is both curious and valuable. It is a faithful and often minute record of the establishment of a religious community, of its progress in forming an ample revenue, of its struggles to maintain its acquisitions, and of its relations to the governing institutions of the country. In addition to the private affairs of the monastery, some light is thrown upon the public events of the time, which are however kept distinct, and appear at the end of the history of each abbot's administration. The text has been printed from what is said to be the autograph of the original compiler, Thomas de Burton, the nineteenth abbot.

44. MATTHÆI PARISIENSIS HISTORIA ANGLORUM, SIVE, UT VULGO DICITUR, HISTORIA MINOR. Vols. I., II., and III. 1067-1253. Edited by Sir FREDERIC MADDEN, K.H., Keeper of the Department of Manuscripts, British Museum. 1866-1869.

The exact date at which this work was written is, according to the chronicler, 1250. The history is of considerable value as an illustration of the period during which the author lived, and contains a good summary of the events which followed the Conquest. This minor chronicle is, however, based on another work (also written by Matthew Paris) giving fuller details, which has been called the "Historia Major." The chronicle here published, nevertheless, gives some information not to be found in the greater history.

45. LIBER MONASTERII DE HYDA: A CHRONICLE AND CHARTULARY OF HYDE ABBEY, WINCHESTER, 455-1023. Edited, from a Manuscript in the Library of the Earl of Macclesfield, by EDWARD EDWARDS, Esq. 1866.

The "Book of Hyde" is a compilation from much earlier sources which are usually indicated with considerable care and precision. In many cases, however, the Hyde chronicler appears to correct, to qualify, or to amplify—either from tradition or from sources of information not now discoverable—the statements, which, in substance, he adopts. He also mentions, and frequently quotes from writers whose works are either entirely lost or at present known only by fragments.

There is to be found, in the "Book of Hyde," much information relating to the reign of King Alfred which is not known to exist elsewhere. The volume contains some curious specimens of Anglo-Saxon and Mediæval English.

46. CHRONICON SCOTORUM: A CHRONICLE OF IRISH AFFAIRS, from the EARLIEST TIMES to 1135; with a SUPPLEMENT, containing the Events from 1141 to 1150. Edited, with a Translation, by WILLIAM MAUNSELL HENNESSY, Esq., M.R.I.A. 1866.

There is, in this volume, a legendary account of the peopling of Ireland and of the adventures which befell the various heroes who are said to have been connected with Irish history. The details are, however, very meagre both for this period and for the time when history becomes more authentic. The plan adopted in the chronicle gives the appearance of an accuracy to which the earlier portions of the work cannot have any claim. The succession of events is marked, year by year, from A.M. 1599 to A.D. 1150. The principal events narrated in the later portion of the work are, the invasions of foreigners, and the wars of the Irish among themselves. The text has been printed from a MS. preserved in the library of Trinity College, Dublin, written partly in Latin, partly in Irish.

47. THE CHRONICLE OF PIERRE DE LANGTOFT, IN FRENCH VERSE, FROM THE EARLIEST PERIOD TO THE DEATH OF EDWARD I. Vols. I. and II. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A. 1866-1868.

It is probable that Pierre de Langtoft was a canon of Bridlington, in Yorkshire, and that he lived in the reign of Edward I., and during a portion of the reign of Edward II. This chronicle is divided into three parts; in the first is an abridgment of Geoffrey of Monmouth's "Historia Britonum," in the second, a history of the Anglo-Saxon and Norman kings, down to the death of Henry III., and in the third a history of the reign of Edward I. The principal object of the work was apparently to show the justice of Edward's Scottish wars. The language is singularly corrupt, and a curious specimen of the French of Yorkshire.

48. THE WAR OF THE GAEDHIL WITH THE GAILL, or, THE INVASIONS OF IRELAND BY THE DANES AND OTHER NORSEMEN. Edited, with a Translation, by JAMES HENTHORN TODD, D.D., Senior Fellow of Trinity College, and Regius Professor of Hebrew in the University, Dublin. 1867.

The work in its present form, in the editor's opinion, is a comparatively modern version of an undoubtedly ancient original. That it was compiled from contemporary materials has been proved by curious incidental evidence. It is stated in the account given of the battle of Clontarf that the full tide in Dublin Bay on the day of the battle (23 April 1014) coincided with sunrise; and that the returning tide in the evening aided considerably in the defeat of the Danes. The fact has been verified by astronomical calculations, and the inference is that the author of the chronicle, if not himself an eye-witness, must have derived his information from those who were eye-witnesses. The contents of the work are sufficiently described in its title. The story is told after the manner of the Scandinavian Sagas, with poems and fragments of poems introduced into the prose narrative.

49. GESTA REGIS HENRICI SECUNDI BENEDICTI ABBATIS. THE CHRONICLE OF THE REIGNS OF HENRY II. AND RICHARD I., 1169-1192; known

under the name of BENEDICT OF PETERBOROUGH. Vols. I. and II. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, Oxford, and Lambeth Librarian. 1867.

This chronicle of the reigns of Henry II. and Richard I., known commonly under the name of Benedict of Peterborough, is one of the best existing specimens of a class of historical compositions of the first importance to the student.

50. MUNIMENTA ACADEMICA, OR, DOCUMENTS ILLUSTRATIVE OF ACADEMICAL LIFE AND STUDIES AT OXFORD (in Two Parts). Edited by the Rev. HENRY ANSTEY, M.A., Vicar of St. Wendron, Cornwall, and lately Vice-Principal of St. Mary Hall, Oxford. 1868.

This work will supply materials for a History of Academical Life and Studies in the University of Oxford during the 13th, 14th, and 15th centuries.

51. CHRONICA MAGISTRI ROGERI DE HOVEDENE. Vols. I., II., III., and IV. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1868–1871.

This work has long been justly celebrated, but not thoroughly understood until Mr. Stubbs' edition. The earlier portion, extending from 732 to 1148, appears to be a copy of a compilation made in Northumbria about 1161, to which Hoveden added little. From 1148 to 1169—a very valuable portion of this work—the matter is derived from another source, to which Hoveden appears to have supplied little, and not always judiciously. From 1170 to 1192 is the portion which corresponds with the Chronicle known under the name of Benedict of Peterborough (see No. 49); but it is not a copy, being sometimes an abridgment, at others a paraphrase; occasionally the two works entirely agree; showing that both writers had access to the same materials, but dealt with them differently. From 1192 to 1201 may be said to be wholly Hoveden's work: it is extremely valuable, and an authority of the first importance.

52. WILLELMI MALMESBIRIENSIS MONACHI DE GESTIS PONTIFICUM ANGLORUM LIBRI QUINQUE. Edited, from William of Malmesbury's Autograph MS., by N. E. S. A. HAMILTON, Esq., of the Department of Manuscripts, British Museum. 1870.

William of Malmesbury's "Gesta Pontificum" is the principal foundation of English Ecclesiastical Biography, down to the year 1122. The manuscript which has been followed in this Edition is supposed by Mr. Hamilton to be the author's autograph, containing his latest additions and amendments.

53. HISTORIC AND MUNICIPAL DOCUMENTS OF IRELAND, FROM THE ARCHIVES OF THE CITY OF DUBLIN, &c. 1172–1320. Edited by JOHN T. GILBERT, Esq., F.S.A., Secretary of the Public Record Office of Ireland. 1870.

A collection of original documents, elucidating mainly the history and condition of the municipal, middle, and trading classes under or in relation with the rule of England in Ireland,—a subject hitherto in almost total obscurity. Extending over the first hundred and fifty years of the Anglo-Norman settlement, the series includes charters, municipal laws and regulations, rolls of names of citizens and members of merchant-guilds, lists of commodities with their rates, correspondence, illustrations of relations between ecclesiastics and laity; together with many documents exhibiting the state of Ireland during the presence there of the Scots under Robert and Edward Bruce.

54. THE ANNALS OF LOCH CÉ. A CHRONICLE OF IRISH AFFAIRS, FROM 1014 to 1590. Vols. I. and II. Edited, with a Translation, by WILLIAM MAUNSELL HENNESSY, Esq., M.R.I.A. 1871.

The original of this chronicle has passed under various names. The title of "Annals of Loch Cé" was given to it by Professor O'Curry, on the ground that it was transcribed for Brian Mac Dermot, an Irish chieftain, who resided on the island in Loch Cé, in the county of Roscommon. It adds much to the materials for the civil and ecclesiastical history of Ireland; and contains many curious references to English and foreign affairs, not noticed in any other chronicle.

55. MONUMENTA JURIDICA. THE BLACK BOOK OF THE ADMIRALTY, WITH APPENDICES. Vols. I., II., III., and IV. Edited by SIR TRAVERS TWISS, Q.C., D.C.L. 1871-1876.

This book contains the ancient ordinances and laws relating to the navy, and was probably compiled for the use of the Lord High Admiral of England. Selden calls it the "jewel of the Admiralty Records." Prynne ascribes to the Black Book the same authority in the Admiralty as the Black and Red Books have in the Court of Exchequer, and most English writers on maritime law recognize its importance.

56. MEMORIALS OF THE REIGN OF HENRY VI. :—OFFICIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THOMAS BEKYNTON, SECRETARY TO HENRY VI., AND BISHOP OF BATH AND WELLS. Edited, from a MS. in the Archiepiscopal Library at Lambeth, with an Appendix of Illustrative Documents, by the Rev. GEORGE WILLIAMS, B.D., Vicar of Ringwood, late Fellow of King's College, Cambridge. Vols. I. and II. 1872.

These curious volumes are of a miscellaneous character, and were probably compiled under the immediate direction of Bekynton before he had attained to the Episcopate. They contain many of the Bishop's own letters, and several written by him in the King's name; also letters to himself while Royal Secretary, and others addressed to the King. This work elucidates some points in the history of the nation during the first half of the fifteenth century.

57. MATTHÆI PARISIENSIS, MONACHI SANCTI ALBANI, CHRONICA MAJORA. Vol. I. The Creation to A.D. 1066. Vol. II. A.D. 1067 to A.D. 1216. Vol. III. A.D. 1216 to A.D. 1239. Vol. IV. A.D. 1240 to A.D. 1247. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, D.D., Fellow of Trinity College, Registry of the University, and Vicar of Great St. Mary's, Cambridge. 1872-1877.

This work contains the "Chronica Majora" of Matthew Paris, one of the most valuable and frequently consulted of the ancient English Chronicles. It is published from its commencement, for the first time. The editions by Archbishop Parker, and William Wats, severally begin at the Norman Conquest.

58. MEMORIALE FRATRIS WALTERI DE COVENTRIA.—THE HISTORICAL COLLECTIONS OF WALTER OF COVENTRY. Vols. I. and II. Edited, from the MS. in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1872-1873.

This work, now printed in full for the first time, has long been a desideratum by Historical Scholars. The first portion, however, is not of much importance, being only a compilation from earlier writers. The part relating to the first quarter of the thirteenth century is the most valuable and interesting.

59. THE ANGLO-LATIN SATIRICAL POETS AND EPIGRAMMATISTS OF THE TWELFTH CENTURY. Vols. I. and II. Collected and edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A., Corresponding Member of the National Institute of France (Académie des Inscriptions et Belles-Lettres). 1872.

The Poems contained in these volumes have long been known and appreciated as the best satires of the age in which their authors flourished, and were deservedly popular during the 13th and 14th centuries.

60. MATERIALS FOR A HISTORY OF THE REIGN OF HENRY VII., FROM ORIGINAL DOCUMENTS PRESERVED IN THE PUBLIC RECORD OFFICE. Vols. I. and II. Edited by the Rev. WILLIAM CAMPBELL, M.A., one of Her Majesty's Inspectors of Schools. 1873-1877.

These volumes are valuable as illustrating the acts and proceedings of Henry VII. on ascending the throne, and shadow out the policy he afterwards adopted.

61. HISTORICAL PAPERS AND LETTERS FROM THE NORTHERN REGISTERS. Edited by JAMES RAINE, M.A., Canon of York, and Secretary of the Surtees Society. 1873.

The documents in this volume illustrate, for the most part, the general history of the north of England, particularly in its relation to Scotland.

62. REGISTRUM PALATINUM DUNELMENSE. THE REGISTER OF RICHARD DE KELLAWE, LORD PALATINE AND BISHOP OF DURHAM; 1311-1316. Vols. I., II., III., and IV. Edited by Sir THOMAS DUFFUS HARDY, D.C.L., Deputy Keeper of the Public Records. 1873-1878.

Bishop Kellawe's Register contains the proceedings of his prelacy, both lay and ecclesiastical, and is the earliest Register of the Palatinate of Durham.

63. MEMORIALS OF SAINT DUNSTAN ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY. Edited, from various MSS., by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1874.

This volume contains several lives of Archbishop Dunstan, one of the most celebrated Primates of Canterbury. They open various points of Historical and Literary interest, without which our knowledge of the period would be more incomplete than it is at present.

64. CHRONICON ANGLIÆ, AB ANNO DOMINI 1328 USQUE AD ANNUM 1388, AUCTORE MONACHO QUODAM SANCTI ALBANI. Edited by EDWARD MAUNDE THOMPSON, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, and Assistant-Keeper of the Manuscripts in the British Museum. 1874.

This chronicle gives a circumstantial history of the close of the reign of Edward III. which has hitherto been considered lost.

65. THÓMAS SAGA ERKIBYSKUPS. A LIFE OF ARCHBISHOP THOMAS BECKET, IN ICELANDIC. Vol. I. Edited, with English Translation, Notes, and Glossary, by M. EIRÍKR MAGNÚSSON, Sub-Librarian of the University Library, Cambridge. 1875.

This work is derived from the Life of Becket written by Benedict of Peterborough, and apparently supplies the missing portions in Benedict's biography.

66. RADULPHI DE COGGESHALL CHRONICON ANGLICANUM. Edited by the REV. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A. 1875.

This volume contains the "Chronicon Anglicanum," by Ralph of Coggeshall, the "Libellus de Expugnatione Terræ Sanctæ per Saladinum," usually ascribed to the same author, and other pieces of an interesting character.

67. MATERIALS FOR THE HISTORY OF THOMAS BECKET, ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY. Vols. I., II., III., and IV. Edited by the REV. JAMES CRAIGIE ROBERTSON, M.A., Canon of Canterbury. 1875-1879.

This Publication will comprise all contemporary materials for the history of Archbishop Thomas Becket. The first volume contains the life of that celebrated man, and the miracles after his death, by William, a monk of Canterbury. The second, the life by Benedict of Peterborough; John of Salisbury; Alan of Tewkesbury; and Edward Grim. The third, the life by William Fitzstephen; and Herbert of Bosham. The fourth, Anonymous lives, Quadriologus, &c.

68. RADULFI DE DICETO DECANI LUNDONIENSIS OPERA HISTORICA. THE HISTORICAL WORKS OF MASTER RALPH DE DICETO, DEAN OF LONDON. Vols. I. and II. Edited, from the Original Manuscripts, by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1876.

The Historical Works of Ralph de Diceto are some of the most valuable materials for British History. The Abbreviationes Chronicorum extend from the Creation to 1147, and the Ymagines Historiarum to 1201.

69. ROLL OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE KING'S COUNCIL IN IRELAND, FOR A PORTION OF THE 16TH YEAR OF THE REIGN OF RICHARD II. 1392-93. Edited by the Rev. JAMES GRAVES, A.B. 1877.

This Roll throws considerable light on the History of Ireland at a period little known. It seems the only document of the kind extant.

70. HENRICI DE BRACON DE LEGIBUS ET CONSUEUDINIBUS ANGLIÆ. LIBRI QUINQUE IN VARIOS TRACTATUS DISTINCTI. AD DIVERSORUM ET VETUSTISSIMORUM CODICUM COLLATIONEM TYPIS VULGATI. Vols. I. and II. Edited by SIR TRAVERS TWISS, Q.C., D.C.L. 1878-1879.

This is a new edition of Bracton's celebrated work, collated with MSS. in the British Museum; the Libraries of Lincoln's Inn, Middle Temple, and Gray's Inn; Bodleian Library, Oxford; the Bibliothèque Nationale, Paris; &c.

71. THE HISTORIANS OF THE CHURCH OF YORK, AND ITS ARCHBISHOPS. Vol. I. Edited by JAMES RAINE, M.A., Canon of York, and Secretary of the Surtees Society. 1879.

This will form a complete "Corpus Historicum Eboracense," a work very much needed, and of great value to the Historical Inquirer.

72. REGISTRUM MALMESBURIENSE. THE REGISTER OF MALMESBURY ABBEY; PRESERVED IN THE PUBLIC RECORD OFFICE. Vol. I. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Preacher at the Rolls, and Rector of Toppesfield. 1879.

This work throws light upon many curious points of history, and illustrates the growth of society, the distribution and cultivation of land, the relations of landlord and tenant, and national history and customs.

73. HISTORICAL WORKS OF GERVASE OF CANTERBURY. Vol. I. THE CHRONICLE OF THE REIGNS OF STEPHEN, HENRY II., AND RICHARD I., BY GERVASE, THE MONK OF CANTERBURY. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, D.D.; Canon Residentiary of St. Paul's, London; Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford; &c. 1879.

The Historical Works of Gervase of Canterbury are of great importance, as regards the questions of Church and State, during the period in which he wrote. This work was printed by Twysden, in the "Historiæ Anglicanæ Scriptores X.," more than two centuries ago. The present edition has received critical examination and illustration.

74. HENRICI ARCHIDIACONI HUNTENDUNENSIS HISTORIA ANGLORUM. THE HISTORY OF THE ENGLISH, BY HENRY, ARCHDEACON OF HUNTINGDON, from A.C. 55 to A.D. 1154, in Eight Books. Edited by THOMAS ARNOLD, M.A., of University College, Oxford. 1879.

Henry of Huntingdon's work was first printed by Sir Henry Savile, in 1596, in his "Scriptores post Bedam," and reprinted at Frankfort in 1601. Both editions are very rare and inaccurate. The first five books of the History were published in 1848 in the "Monumenta Historica Britannica," which is out of print. The present volume contains the whole of the manuscript of Huntingdon's History in eight books, collated with a manuscript lately discovered at Paris.

WORKS PUBLISHED IN PHOTOZINCOGRAPHY.

DOMESDAY BOOK, or the GREAT SURVEY OF ENGLAND OF WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, 1086; fac-simile of the Part relating to each county, separately (with a few exceptions of double counties). Photozincographed, by Her Majesty's Command, at the Ordnance Survey Office, Southampton, Colonel SIR HENRY JAMES, R.E., F.R.S., &c., Director. 35 Parts, imperial quarto and demy quarto (1861-1863) boards. Price 4s. 6d. to 1l. 1s. each Part, according to size; or, bound in 2 Vols., 18l. (The edition in two volumes is out of print.)

This important and unique survey of the greater portion of England* is the oldest and most valuable record in the national archives. It was commenced about the year 1084 and finished in 1086. Its compilation was determined upon at Gloucester by William the Conqueror, in council, in order that he might know what was due to him, in the way of tax, from his subjects, and that each at the same time might know what he had to pay. It was compiled as much for their protection as for the benefit of the sovereign. The nobility and people had been grievously distressed at the time by the king bringing over large numbers of French and Bretons, and quartering them on his subjects, "each according to the measure of his land," for the purpose of resisting the invasion of Cnut, King of Denmark, which was apprehended. The commissioners appointed to make the survey were to inquire the name of each place; who held it in the time of King Edward the Confessor; the present possessor; how many hides were in the manor; how many ploughs were in demesne; how many homagers; how many villeins; how many cottars; how many serving men; how many free tenants; how many tenants in soccage; how much wood, meadow, and pasture; the number of mills and fish-ponds; what had been added or taken away from the place; what was the gross value in the time of Edward the Confessor; the present value; and how much each free man or soc-man had, and whether any advance could be made in the value. Thus could be ascertained who held the estate in the time of King Edward; who then held it; its value in the time of the late king; and its value as it stood at the formation of the survey. So minute was the survey, that the writer of the contemporary portion of the Saxon Chronicle records, with some asperity—"So very narrowly he caused it to be traced out, that there was not a single hide, nor one virgate of land, nor even, it is shame to tell, though it seemed to him no shame to do, an ox, nor a cow, nor a swine was left, that was not set down."

Domesday Survey is in two parts or volumes. The first, in folio, contains the counties of Bedford, Berks, Bucks, Cambridge, Chester and Lancaster, Cornwall, Derby, Devon, Dorset, Gloucester, Hants, Hereford, Herts, Huntingdon, Kent, Leicester and Rutland, Lincoln, Middlesex, Northampton, Nottingham, Oxford, Salop, Somerset, Stafford, Surrey, Sussex, Warwick, Wilts, Worcester, and York. The second volume, in quarto, contains the counties of Essex, Norfolk, and Suffolk.

Domesday Book was printed verbatim et literatim during the last century, in consequence of an address of the House of Lords to King George III. in 1767. It was not, however, commenced until 1773, and was completed early in 1783. In 1860, Her Majesty's Government, with the concurrence of the Master of the Rolls, determined to apply the art of photozincography to the production of a fac-simile of Domesday Book, under the superintendence of Colonel Sir Henry James, R.E., Director of the Ordnance Survey, Southampton. The fac-simile was completed in 1863.

FAC-SIMILES OF NATIONAL MANUSCRIPTS, from WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR to QUEEN ANNE, selected under the direction of the Master of the Rolls, and Photozincographed, by Command of Her Majesty, by Colonel SIR HENRY JAMES, R.E., Director of the Ordnance Survey. Price, each Part, with translations and notes, double foolscap folio, 16s.

Part I. (William the Conqueror to Henry VII.). 1865.

Part II. (Henry VIII. and Edward VI.). 1866.

Part III. (Mary and Elizabeth). 1867.

Part IV. (James I. to Anne). 1868.

The first Part extends from William the Conqueror to Henry VII., and contains autographs of the kings of England, as well as of many other illustrious personages famous in history, and some interesting charters, letters patent, and state papers. The second Part, for the reigns of Henry VIII. and Edward VI., consists principally of holograph letters and autographs of kings, princes, statesmen, and other persons of great historical interest, who lived during those reigns. The third Part contains similar documents for the reigns of Mary and Elizabeth, including a signed bill of Lady Jane Grey. The fourth Part concludes the series, and comprises a number of documents taken from the originals belonging to the Constable of the Tower of London; also several records illustrative of the Gunpowder Plot, and a woodcut containing portraits of Mary Queen of Scots and James VI., circulated by their adherents in England, 1580-3.

FAC-SIMILES OF ANGLO-SAXON MANUSCRIPTS. Photozincographed by the DIRECTOR-GENERAL of the ORDNANCE SURVEY, with translations by W. BASEVI SANDERS, Assistant Keeper of H.M. Records. Part I. Price 2l. 10s.

The Anglo-Saxon MSS. represented in this volume form the earlier portion of the collection of archives belonging to the Dean and Chapter of Canterbury, and consist of a series of 25 charters, deeds, and wills, commencing with a record of proceedings at the first Synodal Council of Clovesto in 742, and terminating with the first part of a tripartite cheirograph, whereby Thurstan conveyed to the Church of Canterbury land at Wimbish, in Essex, in 1049, the sixth year of the reign of Edward the Confessor.

T. GILBERT, F.S.A., M.R.I.A. Parts I., II., III., IV. (in the press),
Price 42s. each.

This work is intended to form a comprehensive Palæographic Series for Ireland. It will furnish characteristic specimens of the documents which have come down from each of the classes which, in past ages, formed principal elements in the population of Ireland, or exercised an influence in her affairs. With these reproductions will be combined fac-similes of writings connected with eminent personages or transactions of importance in the annals of the country to the end of the reign of Queen Anne.

The specimens are reproduced as nearly as possible in accordance with the originals, in dimensions, colouring, and general appearance. Characteristic examples of styles of writing and caligraphic ornamentation are, so far as practicable, associated with subjects of historic and linguistic interest. Descriptions of the various manuscripts are given by the Editor in the Introduction. The contents of the specimens are fully elucidated and printed in the original languages, opposite to the Fac-similes—line for line—without contractions—thus facilitating reference and aiding effectively those interested in palæographic studies.

Part I. contains upwards of seventy coloured specimens, commencing with the earliest Irish MSS. extant.

Part II. extends from the Twelfth Century to A.D. 1299, and contains ninety specimens in colours.

Part III., from A.D. 1300 to end of reign of Henry VIII., contains upwards of one hundred specimens.

In Part IV.—now in the Press—the Work will be carried down to the eighteenth century.
